GRAZEBROOK

Preface.

THE EDITORS have again to acknowledge with grateful thanks the kind assistance of their many correspondents who have favoured them with valuable contributions.

Among these the Aylmer Pedigree, contributed by Colonel Aylmer, and the Torkington Pedigree by Mr. Everard Green, F.S.A., Somerset Herald, are both received with thanks. The lengthened contributions by Mr. George Grazebrook, F.S.A., with a Grazebrook bookplate, and shewing the family's descent from 1065, with the pedigree from William de Busli I., are noticeable, likewise the Herries Pedigrees by Mr. D. C. Herries, and that of the Lewen family by Mr. H. R. Leighton. The Huguenot Pedigrees contributed by Mr. H. Wagner, F.S.A., are much esteemed by Huguenot families, both in France and England. The Smythies family is fully exemplified by Major Smythies, and the Rushworth Pedigree, with arms from a family Bible, and annotations by the Rev. Cecil E. Smith, is brought up to date; likewise the Pedigree of Buckeridge from 1524, contributed by Mr. A. Stephens Dyer, and that of the Fuller Pedigree from 1598. The Bor Pedigree by Colonel E. J. Bor of Holland, and communicated by Mr. J. F. Fuller, is also worthy of attention by our readers. The Registers of Papworth Everard from 1565-1691 were for the first time published.

Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica.

BOOKPLATE OF WALTER OSBERN GRAZEBROOK.

The following to the Editor from George Grazebrook, Esq., F.S.A., accompanies the presentation to the "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica" of the plate herewith given :—

Dear Sir,

In the Fourth Series of "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Vol. I., p. 257, dated 18 August 1905, I ventured to take upon myself the prophet's mantle—a garment which is always more or less lined with anxiety; and so I think I may now be allowed to boast myself a little! I trust your Readers will compare the Plate now submitted to their criticism with Miss Lawson's work of five years ago. As then pointed out, the highest and most difficult part of line-engraving is " texture," so taking this quality alone, let us go over it point by point. The Indian palm has foliage which is most peculiar, smooth and soft to look at, but hard and strong and thin and crackley—more like Court plaster than any other substance I can think of! I have studied engraving closely for over sixty years, and cannot understand with what magic touch Miss Lawson has been able to convey all these characteristics. I think it was mostly by the exquisite drawing. Bear's head, bristly on the face and great tufts of fur at the back ; Helmet true as steel; Mantling soft as silk. The old proverb declares "there is nothing like leather," but these books clearly are bound in crushed morocco !

You consider the names of the several coats interesting. Of course an atchievement is a selection made up of such quarterings, in the order of their dates, as will together form a pleasing picture. Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4 are the arms consecutively borne by the direct male line from the present back to 1065. No. 5 is Milward, No. 6 Worrall.

I am, Dear Sir,
Yours faithfully,
Geo. Grazebrook.

Descent in the Male Line of the Family of Grazebrook from 1065, with Proofs for each Generation.*

We have mentioned (Vol. III., p. 368) that Robert de Busli married about 1165 the sister of William Paganel. We now come to this very interesting record of a trial in the Pipe Roll 2 Ric. I. (1191): "Robt. de Busei R.C. de x m̃ pro hñda recogñ feođ ij mil. de maritagio uxoris sue, sororis Wiłłi Painelli, unde habet Cartā. ip̄i Wiłłi, et quod iđ Wiłłs ei deforciat. In thes̃. 3½ m̃ et debet 6 m̃ et dĩ Yorkshire. De plac foreste ꝑ Arnisū de Neviłł et Rog̃m de Hoveden," and the same entry occurs as still pending on Pipe Roll 7 Ric. I. (1195-6). I cannot find the Records of trial.

My other references are "Proceedings of the Archæological Institute at York, 1846," which is Mr. Thomas Stapleton's "Hist. of Holy Trinity Priory," p. 118. Ernisius de Nevill and Roger de Hovedon were Justices Itinerant in Yorkshire in 1185 (Eyton's "Itinerary of Henry II.," p. 265), and again in 1187 (p. 281). Plantagenet Harrison's "Notes from the Plea Rolls," vol. iv., p. 1060, indexed at the Record Office, but they could not find the original trial for me; and from what I now know, I think probably it never came into Court, as William Paynell was then in the hands of Josceus the Jew of York. And in 10 Ric. I. (1198-9) Pipe Roll, he owed a fine for 12 bovates of land in Hooton Paynell, taken into the King's hands on the death of Josceus, whose pledge it had been for a long time. And Mr. Stapleton gives a long list of debts owing by William Paynell from the Pipe Roll of 3 John (3 May 1201 to 22 May 1202). Evidently he was a ruined man, and died during the 5 Joh'is, when his entailed estates came to his two daughters Frethesant and Isabel. Since Mr. Stapleton also was unable to find any further records of this trial, I, too, must abandon the search.

Robert, son of Roger de Gresbroc, had two sons, Adam, who succeeded his father in these estates; but it will be more distinctly shewn if I at this place clear away his second son, BARTHOLOMEW de Gresbroc (Fam. C, Gen. 5), who was born about 1170. He left Yorkshire, and about 1204—14 was subinfeuded by Robert de Grendon I. in the estates at Shenston, co. Stafford. It is not usual to say anything about money payments at so early a date; the "gersuma" paid in hand is only occasionally mentioned until we come to charters of some 30 or 40 years afterwards. At this early date "possession" seems to have been usually considered sufficient, with the charter stipulating the services due. I think it probable that some conspicuous law suit may have occurred which made it obviously better to declare in charters the consideration for which subinfeuding had been granted, and thus establish more completely the position of tenants since they had paid for their privileges.

As this "gersuma" is a supposition for which I am entirely responsible, I should like to submit a few instances. In Domesday Book [claims in Yorkshire, fo. 373, col. 1], William Malet bought 7 carucates of the lands of Sprot in Sand-Hutton in Bossall parish for x marks of silver. Now we must suppose that these lands were responsible for knight services, and that Sprot had "subinfeuded" Malet, and continued himself to be chief lord under the feudal customs. In Pipe Roll 1130-1, Oxfordshire, Robert owes "cccc. m̃ ar̃g de Gersoma pro Comitatu habenđ," and Essex and Herts, "Wiłł. de Aeinsford R.C. de c. m̃ ar̃g de Gersoma pro Comitatibꝫ habenđ v. annis"; these two were for the purchase of the Sheriffdom, an appointment of profit. So I now give a plain straightforward charter of lands from Harl. MS. 3759, being the original Chartulary of Blyth Priory [pencil folio 62^{b}] : "I. Wiłł fił Richeri de Blida give to Adam de Legerton 1 acre & 1 Rood, also one half acre of land." The rent was 1*d*. yearly on Christmas Day. "Et pro hac donacione the said Adam gave me ij^{s} & vj^{d} de Gersuma." Unfortunately I cannot establish the date of this document, but such a declaration of the whole transaction becomes quite usual in the thirteenth century.

I give another instance, because it is interesting, but endless cases might be found : "Rich^{d} de Courcy by the petition & concession of Alice my wife have given to Jordan de Fourches 3 parts of the vill of Bescoby (co. Leicester) by the service of 1 knight. But for this donation & concession the said Jordan gave to me x marks, & a horse valued vij marks, by the hands of Helyas de Salteby, who is a parcener of the same fief. And the same Jordan, for this concession gave to Alice my wife x marks and one golden ring by the hand of Robert of the Cross of Bingham." The date is about 1140. (Chartulary of Tutbury Priory, fo. 85^{b}.) This is the same Salteby which is mentioned in the foundation of Blythe Abbey (see Vol. II., p. 315, also Vol. III., p. 20), and Mr. Stapleton, in his "History of Holy Trinity, York," shews how de Courcy came into possession of it. (Archæol. Inst. at York, 1846, at p. 33.)

Bartholomew de Gresboc, 2nd son of Robert, son of Roger III., seems to have paid, probably out of his share as a younger son, such a Gersuma for the charter of his Shenstone estates in 1204—14, at which date Avicia, the wife of Robert de Grendon I., was lately dead : "which Domina Alicia formerly held of him in Senestan as of her dower" (Charter "Staff. Histor. Collect.," xvii., p. 292). Afterwards the representatives of Avicia became sole heirs of her father William de Bray, which William is also required to pay in Oxfordshire, shewing that he held lands in that county.

In Rot. Cancellarii Autigraph, 3 Joh'is 1201-2, at p. 51 : "Staff. Nova oblata Wiłłs de Brai deƀ xi łi pro defalta qui requirebatur in Oxineforđ." At p. 274 : "Oxineforđ Wiłłs de Brai R.C. de xii łi pro defalta. In ŧhro xx s. et deƀ xi łi et amota est in staff."

I give this to shew that de Brai still held his Oxfordshire lands.

He was in full possession of Shenston in 1166, as the son and heir of Tanetinus de Bray, who was brother and heir of Richard de Bray, who held the manor of Shenston before 1127. Henry de Oilli, who was "Constable to the King" from 1136 to 1139, sold the wardship of William, son of Tanetine de Bray of Shenston ; and, while still using the title of Constable, confirmed to him his father's manor of Shenstone ("S. H. C.," vol. iii., pp. 197-8). So Tanetinus had died, and William the son had come of age within those three years. The father of Tanetinus, Luvellus de Bray, was an Oxfordshire knight holding under Nigel de Oilli, and is found witnessing their charters, and was alive 1074 to 1112. (See my Shenston Charters, "Staffordshire Historical Collections," vol. xvii., p. 239.) William de Bray was still alive in 1213 ("S. H. C.," vol. iii., p. 161). And as it is now proved that the blood of De Brai and de Grendon have both come down to the de Gresbrokes, I give the following most extraordinary Protest addressed to the King's Justices! I found it in the Bodleian Library (Oseney Charters, No. 249), and it has never, I think, been printed. I therefore translate it as a curiosity :—

"To the Justices of the Lord the King. Walterus de Tiwa greeting Know ye that Robert de Oilli, lord of the manor of Senestan, held within his manor and gave a certain membrane of that manor, by name Stanhale, to Hugo de Tiwa, grandfather of my father for his service—before any ancestor of William de Brai held anything within the manor of Senestan. But the same Hugo, grandfather of my father, by the previous concession of his aforesaid lord Rob. de Oilli, gave that membrane of Stanhale in charity to the house of Oseney, which the same Rob. de Oilli had founded, before any ancestor of William de Brai had anything within the manor of Senestan. The canons of the said house hold the same tenement until this day without any service, which they make therefor. Therefore the aforesaid William unjustly oppresses the said canons and their men for the aforesaid tenement. I pray you earnestly, by the will of God, that ye make this so that the charity of my ancestors may remain safe and without vexation to the aforesaid canons. Valet."

This protest was no doubt instigated by Oseney Abbey, but the family of de Tiwa were large Oxfordshire tenants of de Oilli, and Walter was delighted to express their jealousy at the preference shewn to the de Brais, which had been smouldering for four generations. There are several suits and a final concord between William de Brai and the Abbey, settling their disputes. (See "S. H. C.," vol. xvii., p. 246, etc.)

Robert de Grendon I. married, about 1180-5, Avicia de Bray, and had in frank marriage mills and lands in Shenston, and was still alive in 1213. He was son of Richard de Grendon, and conjointly they confirmed the grant of Gopsal Church, given by Earl Ferrers, to Mereval Abbey, and this was confirmed by King Henry II. and by Lucius III., who was Pope 1181-5. They afterwards combined in a grant to the same Abbey lands in Mora and Goppeshall, in which charter William de Bray appears as a witness; and in 1190-1 a final concord passed between Miravall Abbey and Richard de Grendon as to the advowson of the church of Grendon (Nichols' "Leicestershire," vol. iv., p. 854). I have given the pedigree of de Brai and Grendon in the "Staff. Historical Collections," vol. xvii., p. 294. Two of Avicia's brothers were priests, and the third, Robert, witnesses about 1190 and then disappears entirely, and the heirs of Avicia succeeded to the whole of her father's estates at his death.

I consider it is proved that Bartholomew de Gresbrok, some years after 1209, married Edith, dau. of Robert de Grendon I., and got in frank marriage with her mills in Shenston worth xv s. yearly rent and other lands, and that Robert de Grendon II., who was alive on 7 April 1269 and dead before 1273, had during his lifetime, by some strange confusion, alienated these mills worth xv s. and other lands which his father had previously given to Edith, sister of Robert II., and apparently given them a second time to his other sister Alesia with her husband Philip de Lega. Upon the death of Robert II. all this came to light, and hence the five fines paid so hurriedly for a writ of Pone for a plea mort d'ancestor, and all between 18 Sep. and the 20 Nov. 1275—all within two months and one day—versus Ralph de Grendon II., son of Robert de Grendon I., and to be taken before the Justices Itinerant Henry de Montforti and Solomon Rochester. The Legas or Leyes put forward their claims April 1268, and it was still going on Hilary Term, 22 Edw. I., m. 27 dorso (January 1294), also in Easter Term of that year, Coram Rege, m. 44 dorso. ("Staff. Hist. Collections," vol. iv., p. 170; vii., pp. 10, 15; xvii., p. 256.) Scholastica, the widow of Robert de Grendon II., had also claimed her dower upon the rent of these mills and lands in 1273. ("S. H. C.," vol. vi., pp. 60-61.) In my Staffordshire Chartulary ("S. H. C.," vol. xvii., p. 254), by Charter No. 14 Philip de Lega surrenders to Robert de Grendon II. this mill, cum omnibus pertinenciis, which had been given to him with Aleys his wife in free marriage, but the exact date I could not fix. There are also several other contributory suits bearing upon it. From which accumulated evidences it is plain that Bartholomew did marry Edith, daughter of Robert de Grendon I., and the elder sister of the above-named Alesia.

Anyone who reads the petition of Robert de Grendon III., which I printed "S. H. C.," vol. xvii., p. 297, must conclude that his father and grandfather, the two Ralphs, were simpletons and under the complete control of their relations.

On looking up the Assize Rolls, No. 1230, 4 Edw. I. (29 January 1276), at the Record Office, I found the heading is "Placita coram henr. de Monteforti," and then, interlined in very bold writing, "et S. de Roff." apud Kenefar in com. Staff., etc., thus fulfilling exactly the King's breve for which the fine was paid, and in that Assize the names are altered from Robert II. (the Defendant in April 1268) to Radulp de Grendon I. (29 January 1276); also that Adam, son of Bartholomew de Gresbrok, being then dead, Robert his brother and heir was to succeed as Prosecutor,

In "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Third Series, Vol. III., p. 117, I have already printed the pedigree of the Shenston house, in which the male line continues down to the present day—from 1204 to 1899—but have not there given the maiden name of Edith de Gresebrok! Friends, critical genealogists, before whom I had laid the documentary evidences, all declared that I should be quite justified in saying she was the daughter of Robert de Grendon I., and that it was clearly established; but I wished to consider again the whole surroundings and to be quite satisfied myself. Also I felt that it could be declared, and perhaps more opportunely, when this earlier portion came to be printed. It will be noticed that Bartholomew named his elder son after his father Robert, and Adam the younger after his own elder brother.

It is evident by the above, also by later records, that Bartholomew held a portion of his estates "by charter," that is, he had bought the old Manor House of the de Brays and an estate in Shenston, and subsequently acquired another portion, including a mill, by his marriage with Edith some few years afterwards, and it is noticeable that in the petition of Robert de Grendon III. ("Staff. Hist. Collections," vol. xvii., p. 297), where he describes fully the manor of Shenston, he declares "a Mill which goes by water," and worth £10 rent, so there was only one mill to dispute about!

Looking at the lists of witnesses to our charters referring to Shenston lands, I notice several who were probably neighbours or tenants in Yorkshire, as they are evidently Yorkshire names, who seem to have followed Bartholomew and settled near him in Staffordshire. The reign of John was a time of great oppression and displacements in the West Riding. I need only refer to the document printed in Vol. III., p. 111, for a most startling instance! King John was a savage, and selected for advancement those who resembled himself—not pleasant overlords! Three or four centuries later it would be somewhat dangerous to draw conclusions from the occurrence of names only. The population had then begun to scatter, and family names ceased to shelter themselves as previously in what had been the paternal nest; but among some witnesses which may be doubtful, I give a short history of one only for which our records seem to supply very strong evidence.

The family of Barneville took their name from the Deanery of that name in the Cotentin (Rot. Scacc. Normann., i., lxxxiii—cxxxi, ii., where some members continued to reside so late as 1165 and 1202; ii., cxcii—cclxxvi), but in Yorkshire William de Barneville appears as a witness to the foundation of Kirkham Priory in 1121 (Dugd. "Monast.," vol. ii., p. 106, l. 1ª), where they were apparently under-tenants of Walter Espec. A Robert witnessed the foundation of Ellerton Priory in Yorkshire about 1195 ("Monast.," vol. ii., p. 822, l. 3ª; p. 825, l. 3ª). They or some of them appear in the charters of Elslack and Glusburn in Craven about 1270 ("Collect. Topog. et Geneal.," vol. vi., pp. 123—147), holding Espec lands which came down to the de Busli family and others, which Espec lands were all confiscated and transferred by that extraordinary document of 6 January 1200. We find that very soon after that date they or some of them seem to have followed Bartholomew into Staffordshire and settled there; confer "Hist. Collect. for Staffordshire" at these references: vol. xi. (New Series), p. 241, Rob. de Barnevil on a jury 1272-3; p. 246, on an inquisition 1282-3; Shenston Charters (Original Series), vol. xvii., Thomas, p. 289 (1361—1368); p. 290 (1370—1375 bis); Gilbert, p. 291 (1386). But some of the family still continued in Yorkshire, for I find that "Johnathan Barnevill, Knt.," was buried in Doncaster Church, "who gafe up the Goste 10 Oct. 1409." (Wainright's "Tickhill," p. 86.)

I frankly confess that, after years of examination, I refuse to accept any early pedigree which is not provided with dates and references to where the proofs may be seen! This is a great innovation I know, as such skeletons have passed current for centuries, but now they are quite inadmissible. The records are collected together, and open to every one, many of them already calendared! If a "nobilis" had an existence he must appear upon these Rolls with county and date. Family charters, pleas, and documents may be lost or astray. I have met with such during my searches—sometimes a bundle of title-deeds which had not been restored when mortgages were paid off! But all taxes and fines and payments are recorded, and no head of a family, above a certain status, ever escaped from them, or else the reason is declared, which often tells us more than we should otherwise learn! Prove his existence and relationship before you dare to include him as a step in the family stairs, otherwise he may be the mythical residuum of a dream—equally difficult either to assert or deny!

It is on this account that I have omitted—not rejected—several possibilities and probabilities, and what family legends there may be. Future students, with their greater advantages of research, will I know point to the confirmations then discovered—of some of them—and will blame me for this silence; but I prefer to leave my work, like that famous Castle of WARK, small and compact and quite impregnable.

Following the sequence of dates, I am still engaged upon the history of Robert son of Roger (Family C, Gen. 4), and now take up his elder son Adam de Gresbroc (Gen. 5), who died during the lifetime of his father, but in whose heirs the male line continued for two generations, after which it became extinct in coheiresses. Adam was born about 1170, and married shortly before 1200 Dionysia, the eldest daughter of William (I.) and Florentia de London, who held the manor of Tinsley in Yorkshire, also lands in Notts and Derby and in Wilts. (See Notes on Inquis. post-mortem August 1249, post.) He acquired with his wife half a knight's fee in Tinsley, held by Serjeantcy.

This said William de London (I.) died in France very soon after their marriage, and we find (Rot. Chartarum in Turr. Asservati, folio 156^b) that on 5 August 7 Joh'is (1205) the custody of the lands and heirs of William de London (I.) of Tinsley until the full age of the heir, together with the marriage of the heirs and of Florentia, who was the wife of the said William, was granted to Robert de Veteri Ponte, which Robert was a cousin of Adam de Gresbrok, and at that time Sheriff of Notts and Derby, and we have seen in Vol. III., p. 255, that the Constableship of the Honour and Castle of Tickhill had been conferred on the same Robert, who was jure uxoris Chief Lord of all those original 7½ knights' fees of Domesday.

On the death s.p. of her brother William de London (II.) (Inq. p.m. 1249) Dionysia the wife of Adam was declared to be in her representative the elder of the two coheiresses. Several suits at law will be abstracted when we come to the next generation, which declare the estates and circumstances, and these can then be introduced with more distinctness than here, also with the correct sequence of dates. Adam received with his wife some portion of Tinsley, which manor was counted as one knight's fee, of which he and his wife held half a knight's fee. In his younger days he resided in Rotherham, and was then recorded as Adam or Edde de Roderham, and is also called de Gresbrok after his father. Hunter "S. Yorksh.," ii., pp. 28, 32, Flower and Glover Visitation 1563-4, and all other authorities also call him de Londoner, but I don't think they held any other de London lands until after 1248, also jure uxoris de Tinsley, which is correct, as they had the principal manor house as well as half the manor, and his father continued to hold Gresebroc; but I should like to point out that in those early times the parish of Rotherham was very extensive, and included the chapelries of Greasbrok and Tinsley and the townships of Brinsworth, Catcliffe, Kimberworth, Orgreave, Rotherham, and a part of Dalton, and so it would be possible perhaps to find him with any of those names, and the reasons for the above three varieties at different dates are obvious! In Vincent's Yorkshire Collections in the College of Arms, vol. iii., p. 78, his coat of arms is given as Arg., a chevron between 3 Wolf's heads erased Gu., being, as I suppose, the seigneurial coat for the manor of Tinsley, and his ancient hereditary heraldic bearings were Argent, two bars Sable.

In one of the lawsuits referred to above it is declared that Adam "had already received his share" of the London estates, and we shall presently see it proved that that was the gift with his wife of half a knight's fee in Tinsley, as mentioned above, and hence his use of that surname, since he and his wife now held that portion by serjeantcy for themselves and their heirs in tail.

When we come to Henry, son and sole heir of Adam, I mean to give the pedigree of de London with a few additional preuves, and so shew how the blood of Roger de Busli III. (1131) had descended through Beatrice, the only child of Roger and Eune, together with Eune's estates, and were then vested in William de Londres (I.), and so came to the representatives of our Adam de Gresbroc, thus combining the two lines in him: and I will continue the descent down a little later, so as to shew the bearing of these lawsuits which we have to detail when we come to the next generation, Henry (Gen. 6), the son of Adam.

Mr. Hunter ("S. Yorksh.," ii., p. 28) mentions the descent of these lands, and repeats the original curious tenure as given in Vol. III., p. 306. In the Close Rolls, vol. i., p. 339^b, in a List of Magnates of Yorkshire who were readmitted to the King's Peace by writ dated 2 November 1217 and addressed to the Sheriff, we find Adam fil Roberti. Adam died quite a young man after 1228 and about the year 1230, and long before the lawsuits began, which followed on the death of his mother's only surviving brother, whose inq. p.m. (Esceat 33 Henry III., No. 55) is dated 23 August 1249, and abstracted in the London pedigree. Henry his son was then under age (Wilts Curiæ Regis Case in 1249), that is, he was born after 1228, but exactly when I cannot declare! If as Mr. Jos. Hunter supposed, and it seems to me correctly, he may have been only two years old at his father Adam's death in or about 1230.

PETT FAMILY, LINCOLNSHIRE.

Can any one say whether there was any relationship between this family and that from which the famous builders of the Royal Navy were descended?

[1] An entry in the Register of the Hamburg Lutheran Church in Trinity Lane, where all the children had been baptized, bearing only the date of the year 1723, runs: "Mr. Henry Scheibel, an Apothecary and an Eldest [sic] of our Church, dyed in the time of my Absence in Germany, burried by Mr. Ruperti in our Church in the vault." Two silver plates or circular dishes, bearing the London date-letter for 1684-5, and presented by him to this church in 1695, shew us the donor's arms engraved in the centre, which appear to be Gules, a saltire couped azure, and the crest, a Vol. The dishes are figured in Plate XIV. of Mr. T. A. Jones's "Old Silver Sacramental Vessels of Foreign Protestant Churches in England," published in 1907. A printed "Epithalamium sent by a true friend of the Bridegroom from beyond the Seas, Ano Dom. 1686," and "A true Character of Mr. Henry Sheibel, and good Wishes in his intended Marriage, sent by a Well-wisher and Friend of his," are preserved in the British Museum, bound up in a volume of "Poetical Broadsides."

[2] He, Jacob Wilhelm, who may have been the father of the John naturalized in 1706, is found as the writer of a rhymed letter of congratulation (in German), addressed to his brother in 1686, which is now bound up with the Epithalamium.

[3] Perhaps to be identified with the John Phillip, son of William Sheibell, "shoemaker," who appears in the Books of the Apothecaries' Company on 1 March 1697, as bound for eight years to Henry Sheibell, and on 6 March 1704 as having served full term and admitted free.

He presumably had another son, besides the John Sheibell given in the pedigree, in Barnard Sheibell, who appears in these same books on 7 Feb. 1720, when he was bound to James Hill, as "son of John Sheibell, member of this Company."

[4] 1708, 6 July, George Sheibell, son of Henry, London Apothecary, was bound apprentice to his father for eight years. 1715, 16 Sep., entered at Leyden University as Georgius Fridericus Scheibell, Londino-Anglus, 24, Med.

[5] William Sawbridge was buried "in the middle aisle, under pews 20 & 21," and his wife "in the middle aisle, under pews No. 1 & 2." Her grandfather, Thomas Peade (son of Leonard Peade by Priscilla, dau. of Luke Eales, a yeoman of Rugby), had been bapt. at St. Lawrence Jewry 3 Aug. 1636, and there bur. in "N. side of Middle Isle" 3 Feb. 1679.

[6] One of these three daughters had married and predeceased one Francis Disney, an Apothecary in St. Martin's parish, and brother to Joseph Disney, Vicar of Cranbrook, Kent. His will, made and proved in Sep. 1732, is in P.C.C., 226, Bedford.

[7] The announcement, under date of 21 Dec. 1728, in the "Historical Register" (vol. xiii., p. 64), of "Mr. [blank] Shibell appointed Apothecary to H.R.H. the Prince," may refer either to Henry or to his cousin John. They occupied premises at the corner of Suffolk Street, Pall Mall, on the site of the present United University Club.

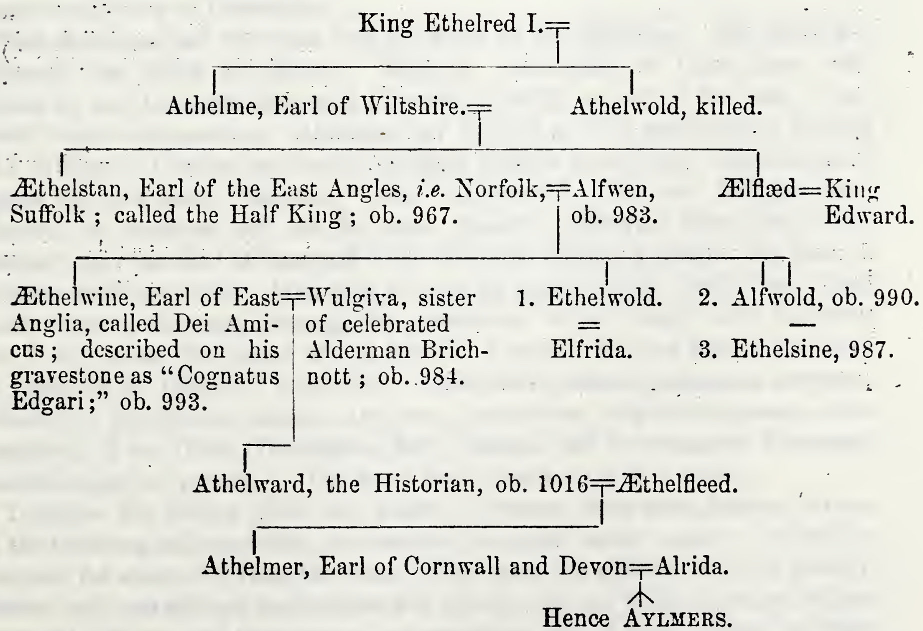
The Aylmer Family of England and Ireland.*

AYLMER is a purely Saxon name and is the Norman reading of Aþelmer, the second letter being a diphthong, the θ of the Greek being unknown to the Normans, and having some similarity to their letter y they so understood it; and in all old English books the word "the," Saxon "þe," is written "ye." Athelmer thus became Ayelmer, and by dropping the then superfluous "e" became Aylmer. The meaning of the name is "the more noble"—Athel=noble, mer=more. In early Saxon times names beginning with "Athel" were given nearly always in the Royal Family. The heir to the throne was called the Atheling, i.e. "most noble," and the other members were "noble"=athel, with some addition.

The Aylmer family of England and Ireland come from the Saxon Royal House, being direct descendants of King Ethelred I., the elder brother of King Alfred the Great. King Ethelred left two children, too young to reign, and the crown was given to their uncle Alfred. King Alfred mentions them very kindly in his will, leaving them considerable properties. They were "Athelme" and "Athelwold." On King Alfred's death the younger, who the Saxon chroniclers stated was not of so contented a disposition as his elder brother, claimed the throne, and after considerable fighting with King Edward was killed in battle. Athelme (so written in the King's will, that is without our final "r") was Earl of Wiltshire, and carried King Alfred's offerings to Rome. He died A.D. 898, aged 40. The descent from him to the time of the Norman Conquest is as follows:—



King Ethelred I.
Athelme, Earl of Wiltshire.
Athelwold, killed.
Æthelstan, Earl of the East Angles, i.e. Norfolk, Suffolk; called the Half King; ob. 967.
Alfwen, ob. 983.
Ælflæd=King Edward.
Æthelwine, Earl of East Anglia, called Dei Amicus; described on his gravestone as "Cognatus Edgari;" ob. 993.
Wulgiva, sister of celebrated Alderman Brichnott; ob. 984.
1. Ethelwold. = Elfrida.
2. Alfwold, ob. 990.
3. Ethelsine, 987.
Athelward, the Historian, ob. 1016
Æthelfleed.
Athelmer, Earl of Cornwall and Devon
Alrida.
Hence AYLMERS.

---

* Compiled by the late Captain JAMES EVANS FREKE AYLMER, and communicated, with some additional Notes, by Colonel F. A. AYLMER.

The following are two or three notes regarding the foregoing :—

Alfwen, the wife of Earl or Duke Athelstan, nursed and educated King Edgar. This King, hearing of the beauty of Elfrida, only daughter of Ordargus, Earl of Cornwall, sent Alfwen's son Ethelwold to see her and report to him. Instead, Ethelwold married her and was put to death by the King (see account in history). When Ordagus her father died, the King, to make some amends, gave the earldom of Cornwall to Ethelwold's great-nephew "Athelmer." Athelward's chronicle is in all libraries and should be read.

In a charter to Abingdon Monastery King Ethelred in 993 recognizes the relationship in blood of Earl Athelmer. King Ethelred II. was son of Elfreda, "Hæc proc patarin descriptio terrarum facta est per admonitionem ordulphi avunculi mei atque Athelmari consanguinatate mihi Conglutinate si"—"My blood relation."

The proper Saxon title of rulers of large districts was "Alderman," but later, from mixing with continental nations, they are always described as Earls or Dukes, and Earl Athelmar is in some records described as one, sometimes the other. He was called "the great," and was very munificent to churches. He built several, but in this short notice I will only mention one—he built and endowed the Monastery of Eynsham in Oxfordshire. As late as the reign of King Henry VIII., when monasteries were suppressed, prayers were said yearly for the souls of him, his wife, and his son Athelward. I may, however, mention the Abbey of Arne, built by him because the famous Ælfric, in the preface of the Book of Homilies, says that he, a poor monk, was brought there to teach by that nobleman Athelmer. This Ælfric first translated the Bible into English at request of Athelward, and became Archbishop of Canterbury.

Earl Athelmer had two sons and we know of one daughter. His eldest son Athelward was killed by Canute. Stigand, Archbishop of Canterbury temp. William I., and Athelmer, Bishop of Thetford, Norfolk, are called his sons in one record ; both were married. Athelmer left Blofield and the properties in Norfolk to his children. Perhaps the Norfolk Aylmers descend from them. The celebrated Stigand left two sons, "Secamen" and "Athelmer." The two Bishops were, I believe, his nephews and not his sons. Besides Athelward there was a son Athelmer, who was Earl of Cornwall until 1043, and his son Athelwin was Earl of the same until A.D. 1056. After this we have no record of the family for a long period. Before, however, shewing the connection of our family with the great Earl, I will quote the record of the death of Athelwin, the last Earl of Cornwall and Devon of our family : "A.D. 1056. Ecclesiarum amator, pauperium recreator, viduarum et pupillorum defensor, Oppressum subventor, virginitatis custos, comes Athelwinis, id est Odda (Devonshire Earl) decessit, sed in monatoris Persorensi honorifice sepultus quiescit." The great Earl Athelmer's will is extant.

Tradition has always given our family the descent from these famous Saxons, but the following will shew that the tradition is in this matter correct. After the Conquest, for about 100 years the Saxon clergy were not allowed to write history. Norman only was allowed in churches and schools, and the Norman writers seldom mentioned a Saxon, and then only to say something bad of him. Hence we have no record of that troubled time, but we have in the Harleian Manuscripts, unearthed by me, an Aylmer pedigree, in which the first Aylmer in it is described as "the Founder of Eynsham Abbey." This man lived in the fourteenth century. He could not have been the founder, for, as I have shewn, this abbey was founded in the tenth century by the great Earl. I referred the matter to Mr. Freeman, the Anglo-Saxon historian, and he said the word "founder" was used in those days to describe the lineal successor of the founder, or what we would call the patron of the living, and Freeman allowed that a man so described must be the head of the family and the male representative of the founder. Now it was a man or men of this man's family which first went to Ireland with Strongbow, and to shew how the English and Irish Aylmers kept up their connections, I will further on copy you this Harleian Manuscript, and you will see that one Aylmer (English) in it married a daughter of "Richard de Legh;" and if you look at the third Aylmer in our pedigree you will see that he, John Aylmer, married into the same family.

Following the Conquest, all lands were forfeited and given to Norman lords, exception for the moment being made in regard to estates belonging to churchmen. What became of our family I know not, but some, certainly Norfolk and Suffolk, joined the household of the great Earl of Clare.

At this time Wales was unconquered and troublesome, and the King of England gave large estates in bordering counties to great Norman lords, called Lords of the Marches, provided they would repel the inroads of the Welsh, amongst others the Clares and Mortimers, and with the former, who had lands in North Herefordshire and South Shropshire, I imagine the Aylmers went, as I first find our ancestors in these parts, and always in connection with the de Clares, the Mortimers, the de Herefords, the Tyrells, and the de Leghs.

In the will of Elizabeth de Burgh (the Lady of Clare), daughter of Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Gloucester, legacies are left to two of her retainers, "Sir W^m^ Aylmer and Thomas Aylmer" (will dated 25 September 1355); and in will of Elizabeth, sister of Philippa of Hainault, wife of King Edward III., mention is made of a Robert Aylmer.

In 1174 Richard de Clare, Earl of Pembroke (Strongbow), conquered Ireland. His fleet was commanded by his Admiral, Sir Adam de Hereford, and the van of his army was commanded by Hugh Tyrrel, and the fleet was provisioned and equipped by Sir Hugh de Legh. No mention is made of an Aylmer, but seeing these three names which come together are those in our own pedigree before mentioned we may conclude that an Aylmer went with them; the more so, as shortly after we find them together, as the following short extracts taken from Calendar of State Papers of Ireland shew:—

"1205. Witnesses to a grant of land: Walter Aylmer, Adam de Hereford, Rich^d^ Tyrrell."

"1205 (8th John). Acquaintance to Walter Aylmer and Adam de Hereford and others."

"11^th^ July 1205. Document regarding marriage of Walter Aylmer."

There are numerous others, but above are sufficient. Whether we descend from this Walter Aylmer, or Stephen Aylmer, or Rudolph Aylmer, all of whom are mentioned as being in Ireland in the State Papers a few years after Strongbow's conquest, I know not, but they were of the family of Aylmer referred to as

"founders" in annexed papers as living in North Herefordshire, for Tyrrell, de Legh, and de Hereford came from there, and are constantly mentioned together as inhabiting this district up to the conquest of Ireland. Adam de Hereford got enormous estates from Strongbow, including Lyons, Donadea, and other properties afterwards in our family, and as he could not defend them Giraldus says he sent for his two brothers and others to England to share them with him, and in the year 1299 we find a Ralph Aylmer paying tithes to the See of Dublin.

1299. Walter Aylmer paid on account of his lands at Tassegard. Compare this with No. 1 of our own pedigree, and many other similar entries of the same and of other Aylmers, but we are not able to connect them by regular descent with No. 1 on accompanying pedigree.

The Family of Rushworth.

[From a Family Bible now in the possession of Mrs. CECIL E. SMITH, with Annotations by the Rev. CECIL EVAN SMITH, M.A., The Rectory, Titsey.]

John Rushworth,* senior, born 25 October 1721 at New York; died at Cowes 30 August 1780, and lies buried in the Church of Northwood in the Isle of Wight, near his wife Sarah Rushworth, who died at West Cowes 7 May 1780, aged 56 years. Had issue :—

Edward Rushworth, born 17 October 1755; baptized 2 January 1756 at Kingston Church, Portsea.

John Rushworth, born 29 January 1758; baptized at Kingston Church, Portsea; died 7 September 1793 at Hythe, near Southampton, and buried at Dibden Churchyard, near Hythe, on Thursday the 12th Sep.

Elizabeth Rushworth,† born 6 July 1762; baptized at All Saints' Church, Southampton; in 1781 married Mr. John Keele of Southampton, Surgeon, had nine children, and died 22 July 1817 at Southampton and buried there.

Edward Rushworth,‡ married at the Parish Church of Calborn in the Isle of Wight on the 27th August 1780 to Catharine Holmes, youngest daughter of the Rev. Leonard Troughear Holmes§ of Westover Lodge, created in 1797 Baron Holmes of Kilmallock, county Limerick, and had issue :—

1. Catharine, born 16th November 1781 at ½ past 3 P.M. at Afton House, Isle

* John Rushworth, senior, was, I believe, a great-grandson of Daniel, brother of John Rushworth (1607—1690), the compiler of the "Historical Collections," but I forget the exact degree of descent.

Tablets to the memory of John Rushworth and his wife are on the walls of Northwood Church, Isle of Wight:—

"In Memory of John Rushworth, Esq^{r}, 22 years a Post Captain of His Majesty's Fleet, who died the 30th day of August 1780 in the 59th year of his age, and lies interred near this place."

"Sarah the wife of John Rushworth, Esq^{r}, Captain in the Royal Navy, died the 7th day of May 1780, and lies interred near this place."

The family of the Rushworths, related to the Fairfaxes and to John Rushworth, the compiler of the "Historical Collections," had settled in America during the dissensions between Charles I. and the Parliament. When the trouble with our American Colonies began John Rushworth, senior, had to decide whether to give up his interests in America or become a citizen of the new United States and an enemy of England. This (his granddaughter told me in 1885) undermined his health (as in the case of many others similarly situated) and hastened his death about the time of the declaration of Independence. His wife's name was Sarah Mayne. John Rushworth's (senior) death is recorded in the "Gentleman's Magazine," 1780: "At West Cowes, aged 58, John Rushworth, Esq., a senior post Captain of His Majesty's fleet & regulating the impress Service in the Isle of Wight."

† Elizabeth Rushworth, afterwards Mrs. Keele, was the mother of Admiral Keele, and of Edward Keele, a midshipman, whose heroic death is mentioned in Alison's "History," and great-grandmother of the present Admiral John Rushworth Jellicoe, etc.

‡ Edward Rushworth was a Founders' Kin Scholar of Winchester College (and, I believe, a Fellow of Trinity College, Oxon). He took Deacon's Orders in the Church, and was afterwards M.P. for Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, and Recorder of Newport. He built Farringford and resided there. (It is now the residence of Lord Tennyson.) He was also afterwards M.P. (1784 onwards) for Newport. On his election the unsuccessful candidate, Mr. John Barrington, petitioned the House against the validity of his return on the ground of his being in Holy Orders. A Select Committee was appointed to consider it, and reported that Mr. Rushworth had been "duly elected to serve in this Parliament." Afterwards, in order to get rid of Horne Tooke, an Act was passed disqualifying all the clergy of the Church of England from sitting in the House of Commons. This Act took effect in 1802.

§ In Northwood Church, Isle of Wight, there is a monument to "Thomas Troughear, D.D., Vicar of Carisbrooke with the Chapels of Newport and Northwood annexed, and of Elizabeth his wife, daughter of Col. Henry Holmes, member in several parliaments for the Borough of Yarmouth & L^{t} Governor of the Isle of Wight. He died Anno 1761, aged 81 years. She died Anno of Wight; baptized at Freshwater Church 8th January 1782; Sponsors: Sir Philip Jennings, Clerke, Bart., Lady Holmes, and Mrs Troughear (gt grandmother); died 26 June 1783 at 6 o'clock A.M. and was buried at Yarmouth in the Isle of Wight in the Church there (near the Communion Table and in a vault which Edward Rushworth caused to be built as a Receptacle for the Remains of himself, his wife and children) on the 29th day of June (being Sunday) at eight o'clock in the morning.

2. Elizabeth, born the 15th October 1783, at Afton House, about twenty minutes past seven A.M.; baptized at Freshwater Church the 6th of January 1784; Sponsors, Capt Christian, Mrs Holmes, and Mrs Worsley (her Aunt); married on Monday the 31st January 1803, by the Revd Benjamin Holmes, the Rector, at Freshwater Church, to James Patrick Murray, Esqre, only son of the late Honble General James Murray, formerly Governor of Quebec and afterwards of Minorca, Brother to Patrick, 5th Lord Elibank, and fifth son of Alexander, 4th Lord Elibank; died 15th November 1865.
3. Holmes Jervoise, born at Afton House on Monday night the 26th day of September 1785 at ten o'clock exactly; baptized at Freshwater Church the 9th of November 1785; Sponsors, Mr Holmes, Mr Jervoise, and Miss Le Marchant; died in a fit the 9th of March 1787, at 3 o'clock P.M.; buried in the Vault at Yarmouth Church.
4. Edward, born at Afton House on Saturday morning the 11th of August 1787 at ten minutes before three o'clock; baptized at Freshwater Church the 21st of December 1787; Sponsors, his uncle, the Revd Henry Worsley, Mr Blackall of Great Haselee in Oxfordshire, and his cousin Miss Richards of Yarmouth in Norfolk; died at Jamaica on the 19th day of June 1812 at two o'clock in the morning and was interred in the Military Burial-Ground the same evening at Port Royal. At the time of his death he was Capt. of H.M.S. "Barbadoes" on that Station.
5. Mary,* born at Afton House on Wednesday morning the 27th of May 1789 at twenty minutes past eight; baptized at Freshwater Church the 10th of July 1789; Sponsors, Henry James Pye, Member for Berkshire, her Grandmother Mrs Holmes, and her cousin Miss Margaret Dickon-

1788, aged 92 years. Their issue were Henry, Mary, Thomas, Robert, Leonard, John, & Elizabeth. Henry, Captain in the Army, died in Ireland, 1752, aged 27 years. Mary, married Benjamin Leigh of Thorley, Esq.; died anno 1768, aged 42 years. Thomas, Lieutenant Governor of this Island, Lieutenant Colonel in the Army, and member of Parliament; died at the Siege of Havannah anno 1761, aged 34 years. Robert, Lieutenant in the Navy; killed on board his Majesty's Ship Lenox off the Havannah Oct. 1748, aged 18 years. Elizabeth, married to Thomas Dickonson, Esq.; died Anno 1775, aged 34 years. Their surviving issue, Leonard and John, bound by filial and fraternal affection have caused this monument to be erected Sacred to their memories."

Colonel Henry Holmes, above mentioned, was nephew, and married the daughter of Sir Robert Holmes, Admiral, Captain-Governor of the Isle of Wight (who died 1692 and is buried in Yarmouth Church, Isle of Wight, where is his statue in the Holmes Chapel). Leonard Troughear inherited the Holmes estates, and was created Baron Holmes of Kilmallock 1797. He left two daughters—

1. Elizabeth, married 1st, Ed. Meux Worsley, and 2ndly, Sir Henry Worsley, afterwards Worsley-Holmes, and from her descends Lord Heytesbury.
2. Catharine, married Edward Rushworth, Esq.

Leonard Troughear (afterwards Troughear-Holmes) married a Miss Elizabeth Tyrrell, who was the mother of the two, Elizabeth and Catharine, just above mentioned.

"Capt., afterwards Sir Rob. Holmes, went to attack the Dutch Settlements in Africa. Leaving the Coast of Africa suddenly he sailed across the Atlantic & reduced the Dutch Settlement of New Netherlands to English rule under the title of New York." (Note, "Pepys," vol. vi., p. 254; see also Campbell's "Naval History," vol. ii., p. 89.)

* Henry James Pye, godfather to Mary Rushworth, was the Poet Laureate. Sir John Pringle Dalrymple, her husband, was the 5th and last Baronet of Hailes, Haddingtonshire, and great-grandson of Sir David Dalrymple, 5th son of James, 1st Lord Stair. Lady Dalrymple died 23 May 1865 at Purbrook Heath House, Hants.

son; married 28th December 1807 to Sir John Pringle Dalrymple, Bart., Lt.-Colonel of the Royal Regt of Malta, at the Parish Church of Freshwater, by the Rector the Revd Mr Holmes; died 23 May 1865 at Purbrook Heath House, Hants.

6. Charles Powlett, born at Afton House the 23rd of February 1791 at ten minutes before 12 o'clock at night; baptized at Freshwater Church the 4th day of August 1791; Sponsors, Harry,* Duke of Bolton, Mr Thomas Dickonson (his uncle), and his Grandmother Mrs Holmes.

Genealogical Notes and Queries.

FELL.

("Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," New Series, Vol. IV., p. 368 ; Second Series, Vol. II., p. 288.)

In the name of God, Amen. I, Lister Fell, being at this time sensible of the many blessings conferred upon me by Almighty God, and being uncertain how long He may permit me to remain in this world, I do hereby declare this to be my last will, &c., and appoint my brothers Robert and Joseph Fell executors thereunto, and recommend to them the paying of all my debts and legacys as soon as conveniently can be after my decease. First, I do hereby give unto my brother Joseph Fell the sum of £3000, to be paid him within 6 months, and in case the said Joseph should die before me then my will is that the said £3000 shall be equally divided among the lawful children of the said Joseph Fell, and be paid unto their guardians to be put out at interest for their benefit till they come of age. I give to the two children of Mr. John Perkins, namely John and Ann Perkins, the sum of £50 each, to be paid unto Mr. John Perkins the father. I give unto my good friend Mr. Daniel Hudson of Malaga in Spain the sum of £60, to be paid or remitted him within 6 months after my decease. All the rest of my estates that I have not hereby disposed of I give unto my brother Robert Fell and his heirs.

In witness whereof I set my hand hereunto the twentieth day of August 1754.

LISTER FELL.

Witnesses: Sam^{l} Weaver, Eliz: Richardson.

Proved at London 8 November 1762. (P.C.C., 458, St. Eloy.)

John Fell, late of H.M.S. "Fox," and now of the "Princess Royall," bequeaths all his estate to his loving friend Sarah Baxter of the parish of St. Margaret's, Rochester, she to be his sole executrix of all his pay and wages due, or to be due on board the "Fox," &c.

Dated 31 January 170$\frac{2}{3}$; proved 18 June 1746 by oath of Sarah Durham formerly Baxter, wife of Samuel, sole ex^{ix} named. (P.C.C., 177, Edmunds.)

John Fell of the parish of St. Mary, Aldermanbury, London, leaves to his sister Grace Fell £40, to be paid when she comes to age of 21 years; to his nephews Walter Fell and John Fell £20 each at the age of 21 years; in case of the death of the one the whole £40 to be given to the survivor, and in case of death of both the £40 to be divided between sister Grace Fell and the children of "my sister Adamson then living"; to his niece Mary Adamson, and nephews Thomas Adamson and Christopher Adamson, £20. He appoints his mother Julian Fell and his brother Joseph Adamson his executors.

Witnesses: Benjamin Cotton and Thomas Barritf.

Dated 20 September 1749; proved at London 27 September 1749. (P.C.C., 280, Lisle.)

SOLOMON FELL. On 23 June 1773 administration of the goods and chattells of Solomon Fell, late of the parish of St. Giles in the Fields, co. Middlesex, Esq., deceased, was granted to Solomon Fell, Esq., the son, and Mary Smithson (wife of William Smithson), and Ann Betty Gaitskell (wife of John Gaitskell), daughters of deceased, Anne Fell, his relict, dying without having taken up Letters of Administration, and an interlocutory decree having been interposed for the validity of a revocation in writing of every will, codicil, &c., of deceased, and the said deceased being pronounced to have died intestate.

(P.C.C. Admon. Act Book, 1773.)

Any further information as to pedigree of Lister Fell, and also the places in any Fell pedigree of Solomon and the two Johns will be most acceptable. Have the Registers of St. Matthias and St. John, Poplar, ever been printed?

ALFRED MOLONY.

Reviews.

Llyfr Baglan, or The Book of Baglan. Compiled between the years 1600 and 1607 by John Williams. Transcribed from the Original Manuscript in the Public Library at Cardiff and Edited by JOSEPH ALFRED BRADNEY, B.A., F.S.A. London : Mitchell Hughes and Clarke, 140 Wardour Street, W. 1910.

THIS is a well arranged Work on antique paper, beginning with the pedigree of Edward III., shewing the descendants of his various children. The Pedigree of Brut, the first King of Brittaine, is followed by that of Charles the Great, King of France and Emperor of Almaigne, thence descending to Ph'e 3, King of Spain, and a lengthened Pedigree of "Cadwalader the last King of the Brittones," is carried on to the father of Henry VII., King of England. In addition to the pedigrees of well known families of Wales, Monmouthshire, and Herefordshire, it also consists of a large number of the pedigrees of smaller gentry of those districts, many of which are nowhere to be found except in this book. Herein lies the value of the Work, as it gives much information about the lesser landowners of the Elizabethan Period, whose names can only be found in deeds inaccessible to the general student. To enumerate more of the pedigrees is too lengthened a task, but the knowledge the original compiler of this book had of the ancestry of the Kings of England and Wales, the nobility and gentry, together with their heraldry, is remarkable. The original MS. ends with the account of the house of Llanfoiste, the last being William Prise who was Sheriff in 1607. We must congratulate the Transcriber and Editor on the way in which the whole Work is carried out, making 346 pp. of the oldest pedigrees, and amplified with notes giving the known names of districts. It is the best example of Welsh literature we are aware of, and ought to be in the library of every Welshman, and it will be invaluable to genealogists. We notice that the learned Editor attended the Levee of His Majesty on 1st March as Colonel of his Regiment, and that his son, Lieut. E. Bradney, of the Royal Engineers, was also presented on the same occasion.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XVIII., No. 1, January 1910.
Virginia Historical Society. Richmond, U.S.A.

A FULL and lengthened account of the Randolph Manuscript begins the present volume, giving the negotiations in regard to a new charter, 1625, and proceedings recorded at General Courts held up to 1670. Virginia Legislative Papers are continued, likewise Orders of the Council of State, from 1654 to 1656, and these are followed by Miscellaneous Colonial Documents and Petitions sent in between 1770 and 1779, and the Revolutionary Army Records for about the same period. The paper is still continued of Virginia Gleanings in England, communicated by Mr. Lathrop Withington of London ; it gives several interesting accounts and wills of persons residing in Virginia from 1611, including the family of Opies. In genealogy the account of the Brent family is still continued, likewise the Robinsons of Middlesex, etc. The whole part is interesting, although mostly concerned with Virginia, which can hold the first place in literature, though Boston is the chief town in America for collections of books.

The Genealogist's Legal Dictionary. Vol. VI. Charles A. Bernau, Walton-on-Thames. 1910.

THIS is another Part on Genealogy, the compiler being Mr. P. C. Rushen. It gives a summary of certain law terms arranged alphabetically, from Abjuration to Yardland, varying in districts from 15 to 30 acres. It will be very useful to refer to in all law proceedings, from the definition of armiger to that of villein, wapentake, curucate and socage, terms which we frequently come across in old documents.

Mr. Bernau has also published a handy quarto entitled "Ancient Handwritings," by William Saunders. The work is nicely got up, and gives ample examples of Square and Rustic Capitals, as well as the Corsive and Minuscule forms of handwritings as used by the Romans, as well as the Anglo-Saxon and Lombardic hands. As characteristic of the thirteenth to the seventeenth centuries, the Author gives examples as also abreviations adopted during that period, and many are given, as well as punctuation marks and modes of making corrections. The writer then deals with Facsimiles with Notes, giving eight examples from photographs, and concluding with a few words of the Court and Chancery hands, shewing those from the early Tudors till the reign of George II.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Vol. XLI., No. 1, January 1910.
New York : 226 West 58th Street.

THIS present Part commences a new volume, and has as frontispiece the portrait of Cornelius Cornelissen Cuyler, the banker, who was unfortunately killed in Spain in a motor car July 1909. The first paper in the Part is entitled "Clues from English Archives," giving the wills of Peeter Hooker of 1639, John Whale of 1609, John Reheathland of 1639, Symon Younge of 1609, all of America, besides several other wills of Englishmen of 1630—1637. The Church Register of the Walpeck Congregation from 1772 to 1791 is next given, and an ample account of the Dutcher family from 1694 to 1726, followed by the Lineage of the Hoppe-Hoppen-Hopper family, giving marriages from 1797 to 1805, both continued from the previous volume, likewise a Digest of Essex Wills from 1566 to 1590. The Society's Proceedings and Reviews conclude an interesting record of genealogical events of 1600 and 1700, which prove often valuable for reference.

His late Majesty King Edward VII.

BORN NOVEMBER 9TH, 1841. DIED MAY 6TH, 1910.

The literature of the Country has been so eloquent in every detail of his late Majesty's life, and this has been so reiterated in all the capitals of the world, both in the senate and the press, that it behoves us as a genealogical Journal to join in all the just laudations the death of his late Majesty has originated, feeling convinced that his Royal successor, King George V., will instinctively follow his honoured Father's gracious example, as King Edward VII. did in succeeding our late Sovereign Queen Victoria.

As Rudyard Kipling has so eloquently versed his praises, so he will pardon us in quoting them :

> "For on him each new day laid command, every tyrannous hour,
> To confront, or confirm, or make smooth some dread issue of power;
> To deliver true judgment aright at the instant, unaided
> In the strict, level, ultimate phrase that allowed or dissuaded ;
> To foresee, to allay, to avert from us perils unnumbered,
> To stand guard on our gates when he guessed that our watchmen had slumbered;
> To win time, to turn hate, to woo folly to service, and mightily schooling
> His strength to the use of his Nations, to rule as not ruling.
> These were the works of our King: Earth's peace is the proof of them,
> God gave him great works to fulfil and to us the behoof of them."

Among the many excellent reminiscences of his late Majesty we venture to quote the notice of The Times of May 7th : "King Edward VII. is no more. After an illness which was not known, even in London, to the public until the evening of Thursday (May 5th), he died last night a little before midnight. The suddenness with which it has fallen upon us makes it the more overpowering to us all. To the last he has shewn the courage of his Royal race, a quality which he has often proved he possessed in a signal degree. The swiftness and the wholly unexpected character of this blow will add to the pain which it will bring, not to his own people only, but to all England's well wishers, and to those who love peace throughout the world. No sovereign knew better how to defend the interests and to assert the dignity of the State he ruled."

(See also "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Vol. III., 4th Series.)

Buckeridge—the name of an ancient family in Berkshire, who have had their seat at Basildon, near Reading, ever since the seventh of William the Conqueror; of this family all the Buckeridges in England are descended. The Estate is at present enjoyed by Mr. Thomas Buckeridge. Of this family was John Buckeridge, Bishop of Rochester in 1611, transferred to Ely in 1627, who had for his bearing In a field or two pallets between five cross-crosslets fitchée in saltire sable.

The above is from "The Historical, Geographical, Genealogical, and Poetical Dictionary" of Jeremy Collier (b. 1650—d. 1726), and seems to have been taken from the Work of the Abbé Moreri, as almost the same is given by him. Who was responsible for the family's arrival at Basildon, the seventh year of the Conqueror, is difficult to ascertain, as may be imagined. The name, however, is found at an early date. Felicia Bokerihc was tenant in Dunstewe, Oxon, in 1279. Sara Bokeringg paid subsidy at Basildon in 1327, and one William Buckerugg was Priest of Farley, Wilts, in 1360.

The following pedigree is intended chiefly to correct an error made by the families of Blandy, Wilder, and Knapp in their claim to Founders' Kin to St. John's College, Oxford, through a supposed brother of Bishop Buckeridge, whose mother, Elizabeth Kibblewhite, was kinswoman of the founder, Sir Thomas White. As will be seen, the Thomas Buckeridge of Basildon they were really descended from was first-cousin to the Bishop, and the pedigrees in Berry's "Berkshire Genealogies," Burke's "Landed Gentry," Burke's "Royal Descents and Founders' Kin," and Stacey Grimaldi's "Memorials of the Knapp Family," 1828, which states them to be related in blood to Sir Thomas White, are entirely wrong.

John Blandy, son of John Blandy of Purley in the parish of Chaddleworth, Berks, was in 1733 certified by the Heralds to be related to the founder of St. John's. He took a Founders' Kin place, and seems to have been responsible for the allowed claims of Henry Wilder of Purley Hall in 1766 and Jerome William Knapp in 1777, as a candidate for a Founders' Kin place was only required to shew his descent or relationship to a former successful candidate:—

"To all to whom these presents shall come We the Kings Heralds & Pursuivants of Arms being desired on behalf of John Blandy Commoner Civilian of St. John's College Oxford to certify his relation to Sir Thomas Whyte Lord Mayor of London Anno 1554 & Founder of St. John's College in Oxford aforesaid Do hereby Certify and Declare that the said John Blandy is son of John Blandy of Purley in the Parish of Chaddleworth in the County of Berks by Mary eldest daughter & coheir of Thomas Saunders of Purley aforesaid; which said Thomas Saunders married Mary daughter of Thomas Buckeridge of Basildon who married Elizabeth daughter of . . . . Clark, was a son of another Thomas Buckeridge of the same place one of the brothers of John Buckeridge Fellow of St. John's College first Bishop of Rochester afterwards Bishop of Ely & related in blood to the said Founder, as by the above written Pedigree more plainly appears. In testimony whereof we have hereunto affixed the Common Seal of our Sovereign Lord George the Second by the grace of God King of Great Britain France & Ireland Defender of the Faith &c. Anno Dom. 1733."

We now come to a very interesting and curious entry in the Rot. Cancellarii vel Antigraphum Magni Rotuli Pipæ 3 Joh'is, 8vo. 1833, that is 1201-2, which if it were an ordinary Pipe Roll would give us the taxation payments due between 18 May 1200 and 2 May 1201; but this is a Chancellor's antigraph or "estimate," and contains many unpaid balances for several previous years, all in fact that could be gathered in or claimed for those very disturbed times at the end of Richard I. and the accession of K. John. This is quite plain from many entries. Richard I. was an open-hearted generous man, and would listen to pleas for delayed payments, and so his officials allowed many to be postponed; but King John was a very different man, always needy, always grasping, and here we have a great many items due in previous years and now included for immediate recovery. I give a few instances selected at random. Richard I. was liberated from captivity on 4 February 1194, and his ransom was collected by a scutage: p. 236, "Com̃ de Augo (or Ewe) 3^{d} Scutage for Redemption of Ric. I.;" p. 346, "de tercio Scut. R' Ric̃;" p. 168, "de primo Scut. R' Ric̃;" p. 172, "de sc̃do Scut. R' Ric̃;" p. 275, "pro primo Scut.;" p. 149, "Henry fil. Com. de Auco de oblatis" (Henry the 7th Earl died in 1183, eight years before our antigraph, and was succeeded by his brother John, Vol. III., p. 19); p. 282, "John de Bulli pays for the firm of Scardeburgh" (he held it from 1201 to 1208, Vol. III., p. 261); so we see that payments due at many dates appear on this list!

Fellow students will understand quite well that the date when such commissions were returned into the Exchequer do not in the least represent the time of the facts reported; these may extend back for many years. The King's breve shews only the date when the commission was issued. I have already pointed this out and proved it in the case of the Rotuli de Dominabus, Vol. III., p. 108, which was returned into the Exchequer in 1185.

The statements given in Kirkby's Inquest extended over many years, from 1277 to 1295, and so the various clauses include a wide range of dates! Such records as Pipe Rolls, Clause Rolls, etc., give us exact dates of each transaction, but lest general readers should think I am straining the importance of this point, I would refer them to the introduction to the Rotuli Hundredorum, which clearly shews the reasons for and the process of such enquiries backwards. "In consequence of the revenues from such and such Feudal returns having greatly diminished, etc.," King Edward I. issues his breve on 11 October 1274 for a Commission to enquire into and report upon all such fee farms of the Crown, withheld or understated. The process was to find out the date of the latest payment in full—and that might be years back—and then to ascertain what reasons could be advanced for the deficiency. It may be glibly suggested that the Sheriffs were paid to do this work, but it was not so. They were supplied with a list of the payments in and out for the last year, and had to collect and account for these. BUT powers to make any outside enquiry followed on the King's writ. A commission could demand evidences which in some cases might extend over many years, and such could not be enquired into without the King's mandate!

In this antigraph (or estimate) at p. 311 we have this very interesting payment:—

"Notts & Derby Honor de Tickhuƚƚ.

"Rob̃ de Vet'i Ponte quater xx ƚi & C. s. (£85) de firmã honoris de Tikehill.

* Communicated by GEO. GRAZEBROOK, Esq., F.S.A.—continued from p. 7.

"Iđ Roƀ xlij ƚi & x s. de firma ej'đ honoris de dim̃ año p't'ito (that is for the past half year).

"Roƀ fil Rog'i xlij ƚi & x. s. de firm̃ ej'đ honoris de alio dim̃ año 1. Et lxxj ƚi & ijs. & iiijđ de firma ej'đ honor̃ de p't'ito.

"Iđ R. fiƚ Rog'i xxxvj s. & iiij đ de firm̃ t're q̃ fuit Wiƚƚi de Handweit. Et xlix s. de firm̃ de Grave. Et xvj s. de firm̃ de Netlewurđ. Et viij ƚi de firm̃ de Tineslawe. Et xlviij s. & iiij đ de firm̃ de Ordeshale. Et C s̃ & iiij đ de firm̃ de Mekeburc & de Awic. Et iij s̃ de terra ꝗ fuit Roƀ de Catebi. Et iiij ƚi de firm̃ de Pev'elestorp."

Now to explain this. Robert de Veteri ponte was the son of William by Matildis, heiress of the de Morevilles, Vol. III., p. 254, and was Sheriff of Notts and Derby in 1201-2, and again 1205—11 (7 to 12 Joh'is). He was with King John in France in 1202 (Pat. 4 John, m. 11), and was at the battle of Mirabel, where the nephew of the King of France was taken prisoner and committed to his care, but was afterwards transferred to Hugh de Gurnay (Matthew Paris, anno 1202, Blore's "Rutland," p. 14). And so Robert de Vipont had appointed his cousin Robert, son of Roger de Gresbroc, to collect and pay in that portion of his Ferm of Tickhill which fell due during his absence. And by the next paragraph we see how Adam de Gresbrok or de Tinsley also was in the retinue of his chief lord with the army in France. His father Robert, son of Roger, being still alive, Adam had not yet succeeded to the family estates, but had left his father to act as his agent, to collect and pay in what fell due on Tineslaw, held by Adam jure uxoris, when he was paying in his own taxation, accruing on Robert's paternal estates. This is plainly shewn by the list given, with the separate ferms mentioned and the sums due on each. We have seen, Vol. III., p. 254, from Carta in Turr. Asservati, fo. 156^b, that the custody of the lands and heir of William de London (I.) until he came of age, together with the marriage of Florentia, the widow, were granted on 5 August 1205 to Robert de Vipont. The process of law will account for a certain lapse of time, opening out the estate, application to the King, payment of fines, etc., so it seems to me certain that William de London was already dead in 1202, and that the usual legal delays account for the three years intervening before the guardianship of lands and heirs was settled. This does not much affect us here, and I must again take it up when giving the descent of the family of London. Except Tinsley every one of these estates were portions of the original 7½ knights' fees, in which Family C had been subinfeuded under the chief lordship of Family B, or else estates which Robert son of Roger held as guardian.

Adam de Roderham, de Gresbrok, or de Tinsley, as he was named at various dates—which last he could only have used as a surname after he had acquired the half knight's fee and the manor house of Tinsley on his marriage in 1200 with Dionysia, the eldest daughter of William and Florentia de London, which were held of the King by serjeantcy as of the honor of Tickhill—went with his chief lord to the wars in France. So it becomes interesting for us to establish when that marriage took place.

In Rot. Oblat. et Fin. (p. 145) for the year 1201, "William de London (I.) gave xx^s because he held nothing in capite in co. York, and yet was summoned to go across sea." Now this shews us that he had a year or so before that date given over to de Gresebrok and de Brett all his holding in Tinsley, co. York, with his two daughters, and establishes for us that their marriage took place shortly before. My view is that this fine of xx^s was imposed for some informality, such as not having duly advised the authorities of the transfer of his serjeantcy, and perhaps paying some small fine thereon, and thus William de London (I.) was summoned to perform feudal service on Yorkshire lands where he held nothing, and the Sheriff of that county then summoned Adam de Gresbrok and Hugh de Brett; and the Sheriff of Notts and Derby would then summon de London for services due on his holdings in those counties, who proceeded in his retinue to the wars in France and died there.

As already shewn, p. 7, Adam died about the year 1230, when Robert his father, if he still survived, would continue as guardian of the heir and have charge of the estates with his own, all of which were to descend to Henry his grandson. Records fail me here. I cannot see evidence as to when the grandfather died, and am not sure that he survived his son. It was 700 years ago, so he is certainly now dead, and father, son, and grandson are so closely tied up together in our records to be presently shewn that the exact year is of no moment.

De London.

Pedigree of de Londres or London, which shews how the blood of Roger de Busli III. and Eune de Tinsley his wife eventually vested in the descendants of Adam de Gresbroc (Family C, Gen. 5), and explains the lawsuits in 1248 and 1284.

Pipe Roll 1130-1, Roger de Maieroles paid fine for the lands which had been Eune de Tinsley with the marriage of her daughter, between 5 August 1129 and 4 August 1130. The manor of Tinsley was afterwards granted by King Stephen after 1135 to this Roger de Maieroles.=

William de London (I.), who held half a knight's fee, also lands in serjeantcy in Nettleworth and Wareship (Worksop), Notts, and Tinsley, Ebor (Pipe Roll, 1195-6). These lands had descended through Beatrice de Maieroles, being her portion of the de Busli estates. In 1197 William de London xii librates terræ in Ebor unde fuit disseis. when in Notts Castle cum Comite Johan' (Mag. Rot. 9 Ric. I., Madox Hist. Excheq., p. 485). In 1199 Henry de Arches gave 1 m' to have a br' Versus Wm de Arches his brother and Wm de London de xx s. terræ (Rot. Oblat. et Fin., p. 16) Mich. 1 Joh. Sept. 1199, rot. 2. Inter Henricus de Arches and Wm de London. Law had been betw. Thomas de London, father of said William, and Gilebertum, brother of said Henry, concerning lands of Catesclive and Haia, and judgment for Thomas and Wm after him, until the said Henry disseised him when he was in Tickhill Castle, therefore William has the King's Writ of Seisin (Abbrev. Placitorum, p. 24). In 1201 William de London gave xx s. because he held nothing in capite in co. York, and yet was summoned to go across sea (Rot. Oblat. et Fin., p. 145). Therefore he had before that date transferred all Tinsley to Adam de Gresbroc and Hugh de Brett. On 5 August 1205 grant to Robert de Veteri Ponte of the lands and heirs of Wm de London de Tineslowe, until the heir be of full age, with marriage of the aforesaid heir, and of Florentia, who was the wife of the said William (Rot. Cart. in Turri Asserv., i., p. 156b, 7 Joh'is). So William (I.) had gone to the wars in France in 1202 and died there, and William de London (II.) was the aforesaid heir, and under age.=Florentia de Maieroles, elder da. and coheir of William and Beatrice, born about 1140; married about 1165; survived a widow in 1205, when their son and heir was under age, and therefore born after 1184, but he was the youngest of their family and quite an infant.

Of course 1232 is 27 years after 1205, but in any case we could infer no age from it; it is one of the peculiarities of mediæval law that an infant in arms could present to an advowson, and this still obtains to the present day! The document has been cut off here and the remainder missing. The date of taking the Inquisition has been omitted. If there was another taken in Yorkshire I cannot find it. Indeed I have already shewn that Tinsley in that county had been given by William's father in frank marriage with Dionysia and Eva, the elder sisters of this William (II.), also that William de London (I.), the father, had declared in 1201 that he then held no estates in Yorkshire (Rot. Oblat. et Fin., p. 145).

† The descents from Richard de Emildon to Alice, wife of Walter Lewen, are based upon Mr. F. W. Dendy's "Account of Jesmond" ("Archæologia Æliana," Third Series, vol. i.).

‡ (Reg. of John, Duke of Lancaster, Richard II., vol. xiv., p. 816, P.R.O.) John Lewen was a somewhat noteworthy person in Durham. He was "the Bishop's mason" during the Pontificate of Bishop Thomas de Hatfield, and may very possibly have erected the Bishop's throne in Durham Cathedral, "a structure worthy of the Palatine See of Durham and of the mighty Prime-Bishop who erected it."

About thirty years ago I received from the late Benjamin Fuller, D.L., of Hyde House and Germans, Bucks, photographs of the arms on an illuminated pedigree of Fuller or Fulwer family, the original of which he informed me was then in the possession of Mr. Joseph Fuller of "The Rookery," Dorking. This pedigree consists of twenty generations, and ends with John, eldest son of Nicholas Fuller (by his wife Sara Backhouse), who died young. This fixes the probable date of the roll at about 1580, as John's brother Sir Nicholas, according to monumental inscription in Thatcham Church, was 28 when he died in 1619-20. The generations run as under :—

1. Gasparus de fulwer=Johanñ vne filearũ Thos. Wake. 2. Rogerus de fulwer=Elinore vne file Wilhelme de Vmphrevil. 3. Ambrosus de fulwer=Marie vne filẽ et herẽ Thome de Clare. 4. de fulwer=Winifride une filẽ et herẽ Johs̃ de Bello Campo. 5. Gaulterus de fulwer=Elene une filĩ Gilberti Broughton miles. 6. Henricus de fulwer=Marthie une filearum Jacobi Villers. 7. Henricus de fulwer=Constantiæ une filearum Simonis Bonvile. 8. Galfridus de fulwer miles=Dorothie filea Ric̃i de Brewes. 9. Johanes de fulwer=filea Georgĩ Beaupele. 10. Edwardus de fulwer=Isabelle filea Oliveri Aubrey. 11. de fulwer=Winifride une file et here du thome de Mountforde miles. 12. Rogerus de fulwer=Marie vne file et here du Ric̃i Cressi. 13. Edwardus de fulwer=Susanne une filiarum Edmundi Segrave. 14. Ricũs de fulwer de Markeshall in com̃ Essex=Magdalene filæ Ric̃i Danbye. 15. Thomas fulwer de Markeshall=Anne une file et here Wilhelmi Bersett miles. 16. Thomas fulwer de Markshall=Agnes file et here Henrici Ashewell in Com̃ Cantabrigii. 17. Thomas fulwer de Nettes in Shepey=Erminelde une file et heredũ .... Benet de Kent. 18. Nicholas fulwer ij filius Thomæ=Elizabeth file .... standish de Duxbury in com̃ lanc̃. 19. Nicholas fulwer=Saræ une file Nichĩ Backhouse. 20. Johañes fulwer obiit puer.

I have been seeking confirmations of this pedigree from time to time, and have come across facts which enable me to present it in somewhat extended form. Grants of crests as recorded in Heralds' College have let in a good deal of light; but the most important confirmation has been obtained from a MS. volume of pedigrees signed by "Brooke als York Herald 1598," now the property of the Rev. A. Fuller, who has kindly permitted me to transcribe what I required.

York Herald begins the pedigree at Edward ffulwar and gives his wife as Ewstace, daughter of Edward Segrave, whereas the illuminated roll gives her as Susanne, daughter of Edmund Seagrave. After this both authorities agree. York Herald does not go beyond the marriage of Nicholas fulwer and Sarah Backhouse, nor does he mention John, brother of said Nicholas. Their descendants have been added by me.

I have not been able to connect Nicholas Fuller the Biblical critic with this or indeed any other branch of the family. (The "Dic. Nat. Biog." is wrong in the date of his death and the name of his son, which was Nicholas and not Michael.) He was Prebendary of Salisbury, Rector of Bishop's Waltham and of Allington, son of Robert Fuller by Catherine Cresset; his wife was Catherine Harwood, and his sister wife of Archdeacon Barlow. In his will he mentions "my brother Barlow, Archdeacon of Sarum, and my brother Harwood, Prebendary of Winchester;" his son Nicholas and daughter Katheyrine, who married Thomas Bennett in 1672. He left his MSS. to Sir Thomas Bodley, and among them are the following:—

Brother ffuller. After my heartie Commendacons I have me comended unto you beinge very glad to heare as of all your good healthes (wch I pray God long to Continew) so especially of the welfare of yor young Sonne I had purposed to have bene wth you before this tyme but we are so busy in haying yt I cannot yt wagge.

In this connection it is curious to note that, in the pedigree herewith, Elizabeth Standish, wife of Nicholas ffuller, by her first husband Edwards of Shropshire had a daughter married to a Worwood. These facts tend to shew that the unplaced Rev. Nicholas ffuller was somehow connected with this line. The Christian name of Nicholas I take it came into the family through the Clarells, Margaret, daughter and coheir of Nicholas Clarell, having married Thomas ffuller.

I append the pedigree of the Fullers of Dorking, made out by me some years ago, down to the children of the late Henry William Fuller, M.D., Physician to St. George's Hospital. But I have not identified Joseph Fuller of "The Rookery," the owner of the illuminated pedigree roll. A banking branch of the Fullers resided for two or three recent generations at "The Rookery." Perhaps some member of it will be so good as to throw light on the identity of Joseph Fuller. The Rev. A. Fuller suggests that he was probably the fourth son of Richard, purchaser of "The Rookery."

WILL OF THOMAS FULLER OF NEATSHALL, ISLE OF SHEPPEY.

(P.C.C., F 18, Alenger.)

In the name of God Amen. The 3rd day of May in the yere of the Lord God 1540. I Thomas Fuller, Citizen and Mercer of the City of London, being, thanks be unto God, of sane mind and memory, altho infirm and weak in body, do ordaine and make this my present last Will and Test^{t} in form following. First I bequeath my soul into the hands of my Saviour X^{t}, my body to bury all when it shall seme mete to the executing of this my Testament. And I bequeath unto Margaret my wife in way of recompense of her paynes susteyned with me all and singular my goods moveable and immoveable all my Chattels as well real as personal together with all my debts, averages and demandes, those to obtain and convert to such use as she shall think most convenient without impediment or any accompte to be rendered for them saying that these same my goods and chattels shall be liable and bound for my debts and funerall and true satisfaction thereof if any be and of this my present last will and Testament I constitute and make the said Margaret my lawful and sole Executrix. In witness whereof the said Thomas Fuller unto this my present last will and Test^{t} have set my hand and seal the yere and daie above mentioned.

Probatum fuit supscriptum Test^{s} coram D^{no}, etc., apud London 3 Dec^{r} A.D. 1540. Juramento Margaret, Relict et Executrix, etc.

NOTE.—The order of witnesses: John Butler was a connection of the wife Margaret Clarell (see Pedigree, p. 30); Andrew Fuller comes next as brother of Testator; Thomas Fuller as eldest son and Nicholas second son of Testator, both by his first wife; and last, John Fuller as third son by his second wife Margaret.

ADMINISTRATION OF THOMAS FULLER, CITIZEN OF LONDON, AND ELDEST SON OF LAST TESTATOR, OF NEATSHALL.

. . . 1563 Primo die Maij emanavit commissio Thome More ac Elizabethe eius uxori nuper Relicta Nicolai Fuller def: dum vixit frīs naturalis et ltime Thome Fuller Civi^{tu} London, Mercer, defuncti ad administrand bona dicti Thome Fuller defuncte per Aliciam eius Relictam non dum administrat de bene et ac de pleno inventario, etc. Jurat.

(P.C.C. Adm. Act Book, 1559—63, p. 63.)

NOTE.—The above Thomas Fuller, eldest son of T. F. of Neatshall and brother of Nicholas Fuller, must have been long dead when this administration was taken out, as in his brother Nicholas' will, dated 1545, he was even then mentioned as "my late brother Thomas Fuller, Mercer." In the interval therefore after his death it would appear also the wife Alicia must have died, and the administration was carried out or at least fully completed by his sister-in-law Elizabeth (widow of the brother Nicholas) and her third husband Thomas More.

For marriage of Thomas More and Elizabeth Fuller see Harleian Soc., vol. xxiv., "Marriage Licences at the Faculty Office of Archbishop of Canterbury."

Mar. Lic.—"1546, 5th Sep^{r}. Thomas More & Elizabeth Fuller of London."

        - II. Daniel Haldenby.
        - III. Anne.
        - IV. Mary.
4. William Haldenby, dead before 1612.
5. Henry Haldenby.
6. Christopher Haldenby.
7. John Haldenby.
8. Anthony Haldenby.
1. Elizabeth, or Elsabeth, or Isabel.[13]

ROBERT HALDENBY of Haldenby, eldest son and heir, born about 1550 ; married Ellen or Helen, da. of Philip Tyrwhitt of Barton on the Humber, M.P. co. Lincoln 1554, who died 29 November 1558, son of Sir Robert Tyrwhitt of Kettleby by Maude, da. of Sir Robert Talboys. Robert Haldenby died v.p. before 1596. By his wife[14] (whose will dated 1592, proved 1595) he left issue :

1. FRANCIS HALDENBY, his heir.
2. Christopher Haldenby.
3. Robert Haldenby.[15]
1. Elizabeth, married, 1595, Francis Bayldon[16] of Kippax (buried at Kippax 11 March 1612-13), and had with other issue :
    - (a.) Gilbert Bayldon, baptized 1 December 1611, who married . . . ., and had a da. :
        - I. Anne, born 25 January 1634-5 ; died 19 March 1640-1.

FRANCIS HALDENBY of Haldenby and Swanland, eldest son and heir, aged 2 (but query 12) in 1585. Will dated 10 December 1620 ; proved 7 August 1621. Married, , Elizabeth (born 1572), da. of Richard Darley of Buttercramb, and sister of Sir Richard Darley. She was living in 1646, aged 74. Her will (London) dated 10 June 1654, as of "N. Ferriby, Hull" (John Crompton and Edw^d Williamson, executors). They had issue :

1. ROBERT HALDENBY, who follows.
2. Edward Haldenby ; entered Gray's Inn 8 August 1623.
1. Alice.
2. Anne, married, 1614, Robert Crompton[17] of Great Driffield.
3. Mary, married, 1625, Robert Morton, Mayor of Hull 1627 and 1639.
4. Frances,[18] married, 1625, Thomas Lascelles of Northallerton.
5. Joan.

ROBERT HALDENBY of Haldenby and Marshland, born 1600 ; aged 12 at the Visitation in 1612 ; dead before 1646 ; married Joan (born 1602, though said to be aged 42 in 1640, "Royalist Composition Papers"), da. of Sir Francis Cobb, Knt., and sister of the celebrated Sir Francis Cobb, and by her (who remarried Edward Hamerton, 2nd son of Matthew Hamerton of Monkrode, and whose will was proved 4 April 1674) he had issue :

1. ROBERT HALDENBY, who follows.

1. Mary.
2. Joan.
3. Frances.
4. Anne.

All living 10 Dec. 1646, unmarried, and "without any provision for raising their portions."[19]

He is probably the Robert Haldenby who entered Corpus Christi, Cambridge, in 1619. He (after 1625) gives a Release for a valuable consideration, made to Sir Francis Cobb aforesaid, of an annuity of £20, charged on the Rectory of Ottringham.[20]

ROBERT HALDENBY, only son and heir, of Haldenby, Swinefleet, and Swanland, a Delinquent who "was in Arms against the Parliament, and at Oxford, and hath neither taken the Oath nor Covenant." Living 1646. He married . . . ., da. of . . . ., and was probably father of

Robert Haldenby of Haldenby, who on 17 September 1679, then aged about 28 (born about 1651), had licence to marry[21] Katherine Knollys of Rotherfield Grays, co. Oxon, spinster, aged about 23, and at her own disposal, her parents dead.[22]

NOTES.

[1] "Robertus de Haldenby" appears in the West Riding Poll Tax, 1379. Haldenby is a "township in the parish of Adlingflete, W. R., and signifies the dwelling of Haldane, the first settler." Haldan, son of Ketch, gave lands in Brantingham and Burgham A.D. 1160 and 1182.

[2] She was, on 2 November 1457, named as his wife in the will of her step-mother Elena, Lady Portington. Sir John Portington was one of the executors of the will of Ralph, Lord Cromwell, dated 1444. The Judge's will is dated 20 November 1457 and was proved 22 April 1458: "to be buried at Eastington near Howden."

[3] She may have been da. of the first-named Robert Haldenby.

[4] She married secondly William Girlington and had issue.

[5] She was da. of John Hastings of Fenwick, de jure Lord Hastings, by Anne, da. of Thomas, Lord Morley, through whom her descendants have a Royal Descent.

[6] A Margaret Halldenby was buried at Patrington 18 April 1587.

[7] She was then very young, and there is a curious reference to her in her father's will. The marriage was, apparently, not consummated in 1521.

[8] The will of a Mrs. Elizabeth Haldenby of Haldenby was proved 5 November 1605.

[9] Contents of "John Haldenby's chamber" in Barmston Manor House are given in "Poulsen," i., 218.

[10] Edward Walker's will is dated 26 March and proved 3 October 1582. By him she had an only child to survive, Ann Walker, baptized 2 February 1580; living 1591.

[11] Rector of Swine 1599—1625 and of Easington 1625—1639.

[12] Administration of a Francis Haldenby at York 19 July 1603. This marriage and issue are taken from "Visitation of London" (Harl. Soc.). The name is there mis-spelt Holldanby. There is a long Latin inscription in the N. aisle of Adlingflete Church to Francis Haldanby, Esq., but it does not state his parentage or date of death.

[13] The will of an Elizabeth Haldenby was proved 8 October 1604.

[14] She was a legatee in the will of her mother Margaret, da. and heir of Edward Barnaby of Barton on the Humber, 24 February 1591-2.

[15] Inquisition p.m. of Robert Haldenby at Hull 6 Car. I. His will, as of Adlingflete, dated 13 November 1630; proved 19 April 1631.

[16] Joshua Baildon, gent., dedicates his work, "The Rarities of the World, etc.," printed in London in 1651, to "My honoured friend & kinsman Paul Holdenby [sic], Esquire." The dedication begins, "When you arrived at Dover from your travels near upon 20 years since," etc. (i.e. about 1631). These parties have not been identified.

[17] She was his second wife. He died shortly before 1646, having had a son by her, Thomas Crompton of Great Driffield, who married Mary, da. of Richard Remington of Lund.

[18] These daughters are described in the Marriage Licences as of Ferriby or North Ferriby.

[19] Royalist Composition Papers.

[21] At St. Andrew's, St. Giles, or St. Paul's, Covent Garden.

[22] It is well to explain that I have not had an opportunity to consult all the wills referred to. The pedigree in the Visitations starts with a glaring inaccuracy about the Usflete marriage. Any corrections or additions to this attempt to construct the pedigree of a once prominent Yorkshire family would be very acceptable, and blanks have been left for unascertained dates, etc., with a view of filling them in from later researches.

Genealogical Notes and Queries.

THE GRAZEBROOK FAMILY.

To the Editor of "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica."

Sir,

In common, no doubt, with many of your readers, I have perused Mr. Grazebrook's contributions to your pages with considerable interest. But in the most friendly way I would advise him to call a halt and state briefly what are "the Proofs for each generation" on which he relies.

I have studied his articles most carefully, and am quite unable in many instances to discover his line of argument. This state of things occurs so frequently that I cannot think that the explanation lies always in my own denseness; and as it seems to me undesirable that a lengthy history professing to prove an important pedigree should appear in your valued pages unless it fulfils its pretensions, I ask permission to state my objections and points of agreement. Few readers will have taken the trouble to examine Mr. Grazebrook's arguments so carefully as I, for which reason my criticism is all the more necessary, and will yet be regarded by him, I trust, as all the more complimentary.

Your obedient Servant and Subscriber,

W. F. Carter.

(1) Vol. II., p. 270, l. 30. We see here that the two sons who had succeeded to the old Seigneur de Buslei, viz., Rogerius and Ernaldus, etc.

As a matter of fact the deed quoted as shewing all this does not shew that (a) there was any "old Seigneur de Buslei," or that (b) the witness Roger de Buslei was son of any seigneur de Buslei, or that (c) "Hernald who owns part of the tithe" was any relation to Roger de Buslei the grantor.

(2) Vol. II., p. 312, l. 54. To his brother Ernaldus de Busli and the younger branch he (Roger de Busli) gave, etc.

No proof other than mentioned in (1)—which is no proof—is given to shew that Ernald was brother of Roger. Nor can I gather on what evidence Mr. Grazebrook relies to prove that Roger "gave." I presume it is Domesday Book, but no reference is given.

(3) Vol. III., p. 22, l. 37. We have already proved that Rogerius de Buslei, together with his brother Ernaldus, etc.

Again I must state as in (2) that no such proof is given. The real proof of the brotherhood of Roger and Ernald is the pedigree given in the 1219 suit brought by Robert and Idonea de Vipont and mentioned by Mr. Grazebrook on p. 255 of Vol. III. A few lines lower down Mr. Grazebrook argues that Ernulf and Ernald are variations of the same name. I do not know why he introduces this point, which does not prove anything in his pedigree, and which curiously enough makes it seem a little more possible that Hernald the part tithe-owner was identical with Ernulf the provost (præpositus) who appears in the same facsimile, and was therefore probably not a seigneurial "de Buslei" at all.

(4) Vol. III., p. 25, l. 46. Ernaldus died . . . ., leaving his eldest son William de Buslei a married man with young children, and he succeeded to the 7½ knights' fees in Maltby, Sandby, etc.

No evidence has so far been given to shew that Ernald left any son William, or that any William succeeded to the 7½ knights' fees.

(5) Vol. III., p. 77, l. 1. William de Busli I., the elder son of Ernaldus, succeeded his father .... We see on pp. 21 and 24 that at his uncle's death he was a married man with young children.

We do not see any such thing. On p. 21 is the mere statement that "the eldest son of Ernaldus, William de Buislei, was a comparatively young man," but no proof for the statement. On p. 24 a charter of 1121 is quoted shewing that William de Buyssy, Jordan de Buyssey, and Roger de Buyssy, three of the witnesses, were sons of Hawis, eldest sister of Walter Espec, but there is nothing to shew the Christian name of the husband of Hawis, and therefore Mr. Grazebrook's elaborate calculation as to the ages of the three witnesses is beside the point. The particulars as to Willoughton, given a little further on, certainly shew that a William de Bussa (i.e., Busli) had succeeded a Roger de Busli about 1101-9, but nothing as to their relationship or William's parentage.

(6) Vol. III., p. 85, l. 9. We are told by contemporary charters in 1121 and 1131 that William de Busli I. married Hawisia de Espec.

I have shewn in (5) that the 1121 charter does not shew the Christian name of Hawis' husband, and reference to p. 81, l. 1, will shew that the 1131 charter also gives no more information on the point.

(7) Vol. III., pp. 106—113. It is satisfactory to find that the pedigree (p. 112) given in this instalment is very clearly proved by the evidences accompanying it, which also are strengthened by further particulars given on p. 201.

(8) Vol. III., p. 254, l. 18. We see (p. 108) that John de Bulli had married Idonea before 1164-5.

Turning to p. 108 we see no such thing. We see from the Rot. De Dominabus quoted there, l. 31, and from p. 109, as shewn in the pedigree on p. 112, that John de Bulli married his cousin Cecilia. This is no doubt a mere slip of the pen, but confuses the narrative which is dealing with another Idonea.

(9) Vol. III., p. 306, l. 3. Roger III. had married about 1113 the lady Eune.

Unless he means us to accept as an authority the 1584-5 Visitation of Yorkshire, when Glover the herald is found "stretching his hand back for 400 years," Mr. Grazebrook offers no evidence for this marriage, or for the existence of Beatrice the issue of it, or for the marriage of Beatrice with a certain Archil. He does, however, quote an entry on the Pipe Roll of 1130-1, shewing that one Roger de Maierolles paid two marcs for the land of Eune de Tinsley with her daughter.* This, however, does not bring in Roger de Busli at all, and makes it necessary for Mr. Grazebrook to argue that under feudal arrangements de Busli was deprived of the guardianship of his daughter because she was heiress of her mother. So far as record evidence is concerned the Lady Eune drops into the pedigree from the clouds.

(10) Vol. III., p. 308, l. 3. For "Augustus Vincent" read "Augustine Vincent."

(11) Vol. III., p. 312, l. 31. Roger de Busli III. having settled his residence at Gresbrok and so taken that name.

No evidence is given in support of these statements, though Mr. Grazebrook suggests that Roger may have been ejected from Tinsley and gone elsewhere. Nor has evidence been offered for any of the following statements on the same page concerning Roger:—

(a) That he had held Gresbrok "in joint occupancy with his elder brother Jordan."
(b) That he died before 18 December 1156,
(c) Leaving his eldest son Robert.

* We should surely read "cum filia sua."

(12) Vol. III., p. 366, l. 3. The first time where I have found this Robert mentioned (says Mr. Grazebrook) is in Dugdale's "Monasticon," when his first-cousin Richard de Busli founded Roche Abbey, to which charter he appears as a witness under the name of Robert de Scalzebi.

Except that Scawsby or Scowsby (a hamlet of Brodsworth) was one of the Domesday manors of Roger de Busli the first, no shadow of evidence is offered for this identification of the two Roberts !

(13) Vol. III., p. 366, l. 13. Robert, son of Roger (de Busli), had also given lands towards that endowment, for by a second charter Richard de Bulli confirms the gifts to that Abbey (Roche), Ailricthorpe . . . . et terram quam habent de Roberto milite meo de Scalzebi, and his knight then follows as a witness Robertus de Bulli.

How can Mr. Grazebrook possibly divine that Robert de Bulli the witness is identical with Robert the knight mentioned in the deed ? It may be so; it may even be capable of proof, but he simply assumes it as in the instance just preceding he assumed the identity of Robert de Scalzebi with Robert whom he calls "de Gresbrok."

No record evidence whatever is offered for the leaving, or taking up, or for the use of name, or for the match with Paynell. Mr. Grazebrook certainly shews the presence of a Robert de Bulli or de Bussei in the district, but does not attempt to prove him to be connected with Gresbroc.

(15) Vol. III., p. 370, l. 9. Should we not for "Brodsworth" read "Dodsworth"?

These criticisms have now taken Mr. Grazebrook's history down to the end of Volume III., where they may conveniently halt.

GRAZEBROOK AND RUSHWORTH.

The blazons and families of two quarterings required.

In the last number of "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Fourth Series, Vol. IV., pp. 1 and 41, are two achievements :—

P. 1 (GRAZEBROOK), the third quartering of which reads like: Argent, a chevron gules between three ? wolves' heads erased . . . . (? proper). Mr. Grazebrook in his letter only says this quartering has been in the direct male line since 1065, so tradition may enable him to kindly answer the question : Is it the old Welsh coat, in which the heads are sable ? I find Papworth says there is in the family a quartering of de Hesden ; can it be that ?

P. 41 (RUSHWORTH). As 1 and 4 quarters are Rushworth and 2 Holmes, one would think the third was brought in by Holmes. It reads like : Argent, three pole-cats or weasels passant in pale ? proper. In the pedigree I can find nothing that might lead to its identification, but curiously enough I find in "Notitia Anglicana," vol. ii., p. 32, that the Duchess, wife of Duke Philip Wharton, who was a daughter of the Hon. Lieut.-General Holmes, bore Gules, three dogs passant in pale argent, but I cannot make out that she was an heiress, and so entitled to be quartered ; and I can find no confirmation of this coat, whilst the charges being blazoned "dogs" is surely unusual.

REV. THOMAS HERVEY (p. 44).

To the Editor of "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica."

If he was born at Dovenby it is very likely that he would be baptized at his parish church Bridekirk, near Cockermouth. If so, the entry might include the name of his father. The registers might of course give other information about the family.

Reviews.

The Parish Register. Vol. VII. of the "Genealogist's Pocket Library." By William Bradbrook, M.R.C.S. Walton-on-Thames: Charles A. Bernau. 1910.

This is another issue of the "Genealogist's Pocket Library," and the price is 2*s*. 6*d*. The Author devotes a chapter to proper names, and he cites the variations of spelling Shakespeare's name at Stratford-on-Avon in eight ways and in fifteen ways in Rowington register.

Pedigrees of the Family of Boyle of Limavady and the Family of Ogilby of Ardnargle and Pellipar, Dungiven. Compiled by E. M. F. G. Boyle.

These are two sheet pedigrees, measuring 56 by 18 inches, the former in eight generations, from James Boyle in 1660 to Edward Ogilby Boyle in 1902; the latter of the Family of Ogilby, from 1670 in nine generations, to Major George Delamain Crocker, who married Mabel Norah Ogilby in 1906. Both Pedigrees are authenticated by dates, parentage, etc., and shew skill in drawing out, and we have to congratulate each family in having such a genealogical historian as our Author. The arms and crest are given with each family.

English Church Brasses, from 1300 to 1700. By Ernest R. Suffling, Author of "Epitaphiæ," etc. With 237 Illustrations. London: L. Upcott Gill, Bazaar Buildings, Drury Lane. 1910.

This is a volume of 468 pp., and the brass to Bishop Ysowilpe, 1231, in St. Andrew's Church, Verden, Hanover, is a good example. The Author gives a good account of the demolition of brasses which began in the reign of Henry VIII.; the suppression of monasteries and convents, turning out nearly 150,000 monks, priests, and nuns, and the sacking of the religious houses, involved the ruthless destruction of all the brasses extant, which were torn from their slabs and thousands melted down and sold for cash. Great Yarmouth utilized the opportunity by ordering the brasses to be recast for all measures, weights, and scales to be used for the town.

The rubbings of mail armour given are very interesting, beginning as early as 1277, and samples of ladies' head-dresses of 1325 and the skirts worn in 1535 are worth notice. Figure 94 is of Aphra Hawkins 1605, where she is dressed in the height of fashion, as the Author says.

Among the 237 examples of rubbings given, each is interesting for shewing the different styles adopted between 1277 and 1500, and in all the counties the localities are given. The Work in every way is worth the student's study, and the price of 10*s*. 6*d*. will enable many readers to secure copies. It is furnished with a good index, and bound in cloth.

The Visitation of England and Wales. Vol. XVI. By FREDERICK ARTHUR CRISP, F.S.A. Privately printed, 1909.

THIS volume, just issued, is edited with the same care as its predecessors, and contains forty pedigrees, including Baron Walsingham of 1788, who was educated at Eton and Cambridge in 1799, dying in 1839; Lord Rosebery, born in 1847, and was Prime Minister in 1894; and Duke of Devonshire, born in 1868, and now Mayor of Eastbourne: all three noblemen have a full-page Plate of their Arms. There are eight Plates in all, including portraits of Admiral John Bazely, who died in 1809, and Rear-Admiral Bazely, who died in 1828.

The Work besides is illustrated by about 130 autographs, and the whole book is printed on fine paper, making a volume of 256 pages, with full Index, etc., and is half-bound in white vellum.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Vol. XLI., No. 2, for April, 1910. New York: 226 West 58th Street.

THIS Part has a portrait of Robert Hoe, the celebrated engineer, to whom, from The Times downwards to all the smaller newspapers, all are indebted for the finest examples of printing presses working. Mr. Walter of The Times was the first to patronize him in England, we believe, and Mr. Hoe died in London in September 1909, leaving a large family. He was the possessor of a great library, and fine bindings were also his charm, he having a great collection of silver Elizabethan bindings, as well as miniatures. The present Part is enriched with an illuminated copy of the Arms of Thacher family, with two Plates of the Thacher Pitcher and Arms; they were originally of Salisbury, England, and their son Antony went to America in 1635, and settled in Yarmouth, Massachusetts. "The Visitation of Sussex in 1530," published by the Harleian Society of England in 1905, has the original pedigree of the family.

The Part has also the genealogy of the Dutcher family of 1701, and the Cromwell and Lewis families of the Mohawk Valley, and a Digest of Essex Wills, with particular reference to names in the American Colonies, besides a paper on the Science of Genealogy as a growing study in the United States. Altogether this is an excellent Part, and very interesting is its contents.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XVIII., No. 2, April 1910. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Part keeps up the Records of the Randolph Manuscript and the Virginia Legislative Papers from 1776. Virginia in 1656 to 1658 had its usual petitions and orders issued by the Council, besides naming persons who had been kidnapped as soon as they arrived. The Virginia Gleanings in England give the wills of Englishmen bound to Virginia from 1670 to 1710, and the genealogy continued comprises the families of Brent, Brooke, Pleasants, and Robinson, all interesting to many of the same names in England. The Proceedings of the Virginia Historical Society are likewise given, concluding the Part, which is interesting throughout.

Descent in the Male Line of the Family of Grazebrook from 1065, with Proofs for each Generation.*

We have already seen by Pipe Roll 7 Ric. I. (1195-6) that William de London, the father, then paid x marks for half a knight's fee and for certain lands of the serjeantcy in Nettleworth and Worksop (Notts) and Tineslaw (Ebor). Therefore these two marriages had taken place between 1195 and 1201.

1249. Curia Regis Roll 135, rot. 27, Mich. 33 Henry III. (September-October 1249). Wylt. Assize if Joħes Sweting, father of Dyonisia, wife of Walter Sweting, was seised of two parts of a Virgate and 5 acres of land with ꝑtin extraneis 2 acres in Sutton die quo obiit, which land Adam Durant holds, who called to warranty Roger de Crũhal, who called to warranty William de London. And now the said Adam Durant came and said that the aforesaid William died after he called him to warrant him, and further said that one Eva, sister of William, and one Henry, the son of Dyonisia, another sister of William, are heirs of the aforesaid William, and he calls them to warranty. But he says that the aforesaid Henry, the son of Dyonisia, is under age and in custodia D'ne Regine. And said that all the land of the aforesaid William is in the same manner in manu ip̄ius Dñe Regine, and that Walter Sweting and Dyonisia his wife are aware of this. And a day is given in Easter Term, and in the interim the Queen's wishes to be ascertained.

This shews that Adam and Dyonisia were both dead, and that Henry, who was the son of Dyonisia, and Eva, the sister of William de London (II.), were heirs of the said William, and that Henry (de Tinsley), son of Dyonisia, was still under age and in the hands of the Queen.

Pat. Roll 1225, m. 5 dorso. Ass. mort. antecessoris at Wilton inter William de London pet. versus Johannem de Baalun ten., 1 Caruc of Land in Magna Sutton, addressed to the Vicecom. Wiltescire. There are three vills called "Sutton" in co. Wilts. This shews us which was held by our William.

De Banco Roll 12 Edw. I., rot. 31 dorso, co. Nottingham, Trin. Term (May and June 1284), Walter Bret petit versus Henr. de Tyneslowe: One messuage and two bovates of land cum pertin^s in Netleworth as his right and inheritance, who says that one William his ancestor was seised of the aforesaid tenement, "ut de feodo et jure tempore pacis," in the time of the Lord King Henry, father of the now King, holding therein "expletia ad valentiā," etc. And from the said William, who died s.p.m., the right descended to Eva, Alienore, Isabel, and Deonisia, as his sisters and heirs. And from this Deonisia, who died without heir, the "Jus" descended to the aforesaid Eve, Alienore, and Isabel as sisters and heirs. And from the aforesaid Isabel, who entered into religion apud Ambresbur and was there professed, descended the "Jus" to the aforesaid Eve and Alienore as sisters and heirs. And from the said Alienora, who died without heir, descended to the said Eva as sister and heir. And from the said Eva to one Richard as her son and heir. And from that Richard to Walter, who now claims as his son and heir, etc., etc.

And Henry came and defended his right, etc., and said that whereas the said Walter in his narrative said of the aforesaid Deonis that she died without heir from her descended, and so the "Jus" came to her sisters and heirs. The same Deonis had him the said Henry as her son and heir; and the heir seised proportionately of the aforesaid tenements and asked for judgment. And Walter said that the aforesaid Henry could not be the heir of the said Deonis because he was a Bastard, and this he was prepared to prove. And in order to verify this the Court had to consider by what course the truth might be fully known through the Ecclesiastical Courts, and the Archbishop of York is asked that "cōnotatis coram eo constandis" he enquire diligently as to the truth of the matter, and that the Justices send to him their letters Patent, etc., to that effect, and it was adjourned sine die.

I have been unable to find any verdict in the Records at York, but Mr. Hunter ("South Yorkshire," vol. ii., p. 31) remarks: "It is manifest the Archbishop's return was favourable as Henry and his posterity enjoyed their share of the lands," and we now see the proofs that Henry and his descendants long continued to hold and hand them down.

The heraldry for the above London Pedigree as drawn up by Richard Gascoigne for Thomas, 1st Earl of Strafford, in 1661:—

Busli.—Arg., 3 bars Sable (should be 2).
Tynneslowe.—Arg., a chev. betw. 3 wolves heads erased Gules.
Maieroles.—Gu., 10 cross-croslets 4, 3, 2, 1 or.
London.—Az., a lion ramp. Or and bordure erm.
Hooton of Hooton Roberts.—Arg., a cross pattée Sa.
Skelton.—Az., a fess betw. 3 fleur de lys or.

These are also given in "Glover's Visitation, 1584," and allowed by the Heralds temp. Q. Elizabeth, and are in Wentworth Chapel on the tomb of Thomas Wentworth and Margaret Gascoigne his wife, dated 1587; Harl. MSS. 1047, 1394; Hunter's "South Yorkshire," ii., p. 98; "Yorkshire Archæolog. Journal," vi., pp. 344, 371; Foster's "Yorkshire Pedigrees," in Watson-Wentworth achievement. The Heralds' College also made up a similar list of quarterings for the 2nd Marquis of Rockingham, who succeeded to the title in 1750. I have not got Edmondson's "Baronagium," but should expect to find them there.

In addition to the variations in spelling which we find in all early oft-repeated names, this family of London appears frequently, during the first half of the thirteenth century, written "de Londoniis," "Londonensis," "Londoniensis." This has been a great puzzle to all of us! Mr. Joseph Hunter mentions it (vol. i., p. 399), and Mr. Holmes can make nothing of it in his "Pontefract Chartulary"! I put forward as a possible solution that some school of scribes considered that since charters were in Latin the surnames also should be Latinized throughout. Christian names were so treated in very early times, and appear with genitives, datives, and accusatives, but the surnames had no cases! Some surnames did not lend themselves to such treatment, and continue undiluted. This a mere suggestion of mine, and requires careful examination, but on hastily looking through a quantity of charters it seems probable that it was a fashion taken up by some eccentric transcribers, about the above date, in certain districts only and especially among the Charters of Pontefract.

[C. Gen. 6.] Henricus de Tynneslow, declared to be the son of Adam de Gresbroke and Dionysia his wife, and under age in Curia Regis Roll, Wilts, Sep.—Oct. 1249, that is he must have been born after 1228, and his father and mother were both dead in 1249. As my interest in this portion of the Pedigree is greatly lessened I shall only extend it down to the two granddaughters of Henry when his male line became extinct, and the large estates were divided between these two coheiresses. I therefore propose to cease details which may almost be termed biographical, and give to each generation only a few contemporaneous evidences, but quite sufficient for proof.

Henry married Lucia, da. and coheir of Robert de Hoton Robert by his wife Lucia, da. and coheir of Sir Richard Skelton (refer to pedigree of London, Vol. IV., p. 58), and had with her half a knight's fee in Hoton Robert.

Vincent, vol. iii., p. 78, and Gascoigne, Harl. MS. 1047, both say that Henry de Tinneslawe occurs as a knight in 1272 (1 Edw. I.), but I do not know their reference. I feel certain that he would have become a knight immediately on succeeding to Tinsley held by Serjeantcy, on his father's death, which occurred after 1228 and about the year 1230 (Vol. IV., p. 7). Therefore he must have been a knight long before!

The Statute of 1 Edw. II., cap. i. (1307-8), enacts that every gentleman holding a full knight's fee by knight's service might be compelled to take out his knighthood. This shews me that some laxity had prevailed prior to that date, which was thus corrected; and I have often found instances where it was sought to evade the burthens attached to that honour. [Refer to "Genealogist," vol. xxi. (for 1904-5), p. 143.] This law continued uncancelled until 17 Charles I., cap. 20 (1641-2).

1249, Sep. Curie Regis, Wilts, Adam and Dyonisia both dead, Henry their son under age, therefore born after 1228. Refer to documents attached to London pedigree.

1271. Abbrev. Placitorum, p. 183, Rot. 21, dorso, Ebor, 56 Henry III. Henry de Tineslawe versus Richard fil. Roger de Stokewell and others, breaking into his house at "Sande de malo passu," and theft. Coram Rege Roll, Hil. 56 Henry III., m. 25 dorso. There is a place called Sande within the villa of Doncaster and Wappk. of Strafford Hundred Rolls, p. 110. (Wainright's "Strafford and Tickhill," p. 9.)

1284. Walter Brett, son of Richard, son of Eva the sister and coheir of William de London, claimed against Henry de Tyneslawe, who was son of Dyonisia the eldest sister (Plac. de Banco, Trin. 12 Edw. I., rot. 31) June 1284. Refer to London Pedigree documents, Vol. IV., p. 126.

1292, Easter Monday, 7 April. Idonea de Leybourne grants privileges to Bawtre, mentioned Vol. III., p. 259, is witnessed by Sir Henry de Tinslow, Knt. (Hunter's "S. Yorkshire," i., p. 70.) He seems to have witnessed nearly every charter in his neighbourhood about this time.

"In 1292-3 the Jurors of Wap. of Strafford found that Henry de Tineslawe and Walter le Bret held the Vill of Tineslawe of the heir of William de Londre, Uncle of the said Henry, of the Honour of Tykeshill as partners in an inheritance by the serjeanty of keeping a hawk [osterium] from Michaelmas to Easter in each year. They received each day while on guard 7½^{d}. There were no arrears, but Walter Bret had alienated out of his share to Master John Letard 20 acres of wood 3 years before; to Henry Letard, John's father, 2 bovates of land 20 years before; to Roger Hering of Tyneslawe 40 acres of brushwood [brussati] 2 years before; to William Jordan of Tykhill 30 acres of wood and a moiety of the advowson of the free chapel of Tynslawe 3 years before; to Idonea de Leyborne, the Lady of Kimberworth, 4^{s} of rent and 2 acres of meadow 2 years before; without the Royal licence." (Yorkshire Archæological Society "Records," vol. xvi., p. 79, under "Lay Subsidy Roll of 1297"; also Yorkshire Assize Rolls, N. 1, 14-1, fo. 28.)

So we see that the unthrifty le Bretts had started, at least as early as 1272, selling off piecemeal what they held in Tinsley as one half of a knight's fee, and without the necessary licence from the King! This opens one's eyes to the desperation which drove Walter Bret to his proceedings at law, 1281 and 1284, as detailed in the documents given in our pedigree of de London.

1297. Inquisition of Tenants of Blythe Priory, parish of Darfield: "Et dñs Henricus de Tyneslawe tenet̄ 4 bov' tꝰre per servicium xl. denarii per annum. (Harl. MS. 3759, Blythe Chartulary, fo. 140.)

1300. Military Summonses. Henry de Tinsley (Henricus de Tyneslouwe Tyneslowe) returned from the Wapentake between Ouse and Derwent in co. York as holding lands or rents, either in capite or otherwise, to the amount of £40 yearly value and upwards, and as such summoned under the general Writ to perform military service against the Scots. Muster at Carlisle on the Nativity of St. John Baptist, 24 June 28 Edw. I., 1300. (Parliamentary Writs, vol. i., p. 332, No. 17; Harl. MS. 1192, No. 53, fo. 1^b.)

1301. Henricus de Tynneslowe sum^d from co. York to perform military service in person against the Scots. Muster at Berwick-on-Tweed on the nativity of St. John Baptist, 24 June 29 Edw. I. (Idem, vol. i., p. 256, No. 6.)

As we have seen the de Brets selling off their share of Tinsley, co. York, from the year 1272, I think it will be interesting to give the following:—

"1297. Rogerus le Bret returned from Co. of Notts and Derby as holding lands and rents to the amount of £20 yearly value and upwards, either in capite or otherwise, and as such summoned under the general writ to perform military service in person with horses, arms, etc., in Scotland. Muster at Nottingham on Sunday next after the Octaves of St. John Baptist, 7 July 25 Edw. I." (Idem, p. 287, No. 16.)

1301, dated on the day of Pentecost, 23 April, at Tynneslaw. William, son of Roger Heryng, gives to Richard Peryn of Tynneslawe a parcel of woods in the Park of Tyneslawe. Testibus No. 1, Henricus de Tyneslawe milite, and No. 3, Willelmo fiƚ D'ni Henrici de Tyneslawe militis. Here we see the son Peryn selling again the woods bought by his father in 1290. (Add. MS. 24,467, Deed 11, fo. 701. The name and position of the lands are fully given.)

1301. Annora, sometyme wife of Henry de Perpont, grants all her lands in the town of North Auston. Testibus Henry de Tinneslow, Robert de Waddisley, knights, etc. (Harl. MS. 801, fo. 8^b; Hunter's "S. Yorkshire," vol. i., p. 305); but it would be endless and useless quoting any further instances of Sir Henry's occurring as a witness!

1316. Henry de Tinsley is certified pursuant to the writ tested at Clipston 5 March 1316, as Lord of the Township of Tinsley, co. York. (Palgrave's "Parliamentary Writs," iv., part 2, No. 32, p. 416.)

1318-20. Mr. Jos. Hunter says Sir Henry died 12 or 13 Edw. II., that is between 8 July 1318 and 7 July 1320, which agrees with my evidences. ("South Yorks.," ii., p. 32.)

He left several sons surviving, of whom we need only mention two, who in turn succeeded to these estates.

[C. Gen. 7.] William de Tynneslowe, who was mentioned as his son, on the day of Pentecost, 23 April 1301, also in the suits concerning the de London inheritance (Vol. IV., p. 126). He married the da. of Sir William Waddesley, Knt. ("Visit." 1563-4; MS. D. 2 in Coll. of Arms; Harl. Soc., xvi., p. 325.)

I don't know what became of him; perhaps he went on foreign service. These were very disturbed times, frequent wars in Scotland and Wales, and it seems probable that William de Tinneslowe was constantly drawn away by his feudal services. And as explained, I have always found the military Records so very unsatisfactory, as not giving sufficient proofs for identity, that these have not been searched! However, the very full and exact particulars given in the Inquisitio post mortem supply all we want in finishing off his career. He died at the end of the year 1321, s.p.m.

Inquisitio post mortem. On the death of William de Tynneslowe, 15 Edw. II. (1321-2), Record Office, No. 28, YORKSHIRE. At Rotherham on Monday after the Feast of Purification (2 February 1322), among the Jurors William Hering and Roger Hering (already mentioned as sub-tenants in Tinsley). Held nothing in demesne as of Fee from the King in Capite as of the Crown, on the day he died, but held in his demesne as of fee the Manor of Tyneslowe with appurt. of the honor of Tykhull by the service of keeping a goshawk until the mewing of that goshawk, and for the mewing and for having the care of that goshawk he had sevenpence halfpenny a day, and by making homage and fealty twice a year to the great Court of the Castle of Tyckhull. And they say there is in that same Manor a Capital message worth per ann. in all issues 6^{s} 8^{d}. And there are 80 acres of land there in demesne, every acre worth 4^{d} a year. And there are 7 acres of meadow, every acre worth 2^{s} a year. And there is a certain park the grass of which in summer is worth yearly 3^{s} 4^{d}. And there are two Water Mills worth yearly 26^{s} 8^{d}. And there is rent from the free men 24^{s} 8^{d} a year, to be paid at the terms of Pentecost and S^{t} Martin's in winter by equal portions. And the rent of the bondsmen and Cottars £4 10^{s} a year to be paid at the two terms aforesaid equally. And they say the Pleas and perquisites of the Court are worth 6^{s} 8^{d} yearly. Total for the Manor of Tynneslowe £9 18^{s} 8^{d}. They say that the same William held a messuage and 2 bovates of land with appurt. in Le Fold next Tyckhill, in his demesne as of fee on the day he died, of Roger de Clifford as of the Manor of Maltby by the service of appearance at the Court of Maltby yearly from three weeks to three weeks, and it is worth xiij^{s} 4^{d} a year and gives scutage when it is due. And they say that the same William held in his demesne as of fee on the day he died a messuage and 2 bovates of land with appurt. in Gresbroke of the same Roger de Clifford as of the Manor of Kymberworth by the service of appearance at the Court of the same demesne Manor yearly from three weeks to three weeks, and is worth yearly in all issues xiij^{s} 4^{d}. And they say that the same William held in demesne as above the day he died, the advowson of the chapell of S^{t} Lawrence of Tynneslowe of the honor of Tyckhill as an appurtenance of the said Manor of Tynneslowe, and the chapell is worth per annum 10 Marks. Also they say that the same William held no other lands or tenements in the County of York on the day he died. Also they say that Walter de Tynneslowe, brother of the said William, is his nearest heir and forty years of age and more. In witness, etc.

Statement of lands, etc., in co. York :—

Of the King of the Honor of Tykehill.	Tinsley Manor with secta Curiæ by homage and fealty.
Of the Manor of Maltby. Family B.	Le Fold juxta Tyckhill by appearance at the Court of Maltby and Scutage when due.
Of Manor of Kymberworth. Family B.	Gresbroke by appearance at Manor Court.
Appurtenant to the Manor.	Advowson of chapell of Tinsley.

Inquisition taken by Thomas de Burgh, Escheator of the Lord the King beyond Trent. [N.B.—" This side," or " beyond Trent," depended entirely on where the King's writ had been dated from.]

Nottingham.—At Warshop in co. Notts on Wednesday after the feast of Epiphany (6 January 1322) in the fifteenth year of King Edward, son of King Edward. Say, under their Oath, that William de Tinneslawe held on the day on which he died, in Nettelworth, one site of a manor and 30 acres of land in demesne of the lordship of the King in soccage of the ancient demesnes of Maunsfield by the service of 5^{s} yearly and per secta curia of Maunsfield from three weeks in three weeks, which are worth per annum 10^{s} if they were let on lease, but now they lie waste. And that the same William held on the day he died, in Nettleworth and Warshop, certain lands and tenements as declared hereafter of Stacy Morteyn as of the Manor of Grave by the service of the sixth part of one Knight's Fee, namely in Nettelworth 10 acres of land in demesne whereof every acre is worth per annum 4^d, and the sum 3^s 4^d. And in Warshop 7 bovates of land which 14 Customary tenants of the Manor hold at rent, and they pay per ann. for each bovate at four terms 6^s, namely at the feast of Saint Thomas the Apostle, the Annunciation of the blessed Mary the Virgin, the Nativity of S^t John the Baptist, and the Nativity of the blessed Mary the Virgin by equal portions, summa 42^s. And there is also the half of one Water Mill which is worth yearly in all profits 13^s 4^d. And they say that the before mentioned lands and tenements are worth yearly in all issues 68^s 8^d, of which they ought to pay yearly at Maunsfield for the service aforesaid 5^s, and at Averham for sustaining a certain lamp in the church there 18^d, and at le Grave 2^s 8^d yearly. And they say that Walter de Tinneslawe, brother of the said William, is his next heir and 50 years of age and more. In testimony of which, etc.

Statement of lands in co. Notts :—

In lordship of King in soccage of the ancient demesne of Maunsfield.	Nettelworth Scitus Manerii and 30 acres of land by 5^s yearly and secta Curiæ of Maunsfield, now waste.
Of Stacy Morteyn as of the Manor of Grave.	In Nettleworth and Warshop, viz^t 10 acres in Nettleworth, worth 3^s 4^d, and in Warshop 7 bovates held at rent by 14 Tenants, summa 42^s, and half a water Mill 13^s 4^d ; and they calculate the total Income 68^s 8^d and out payments stated at 9^s 2^d.

We see that on 2 February 1322 Walter de Tynneslowe his brother is declared to be 40 years of age and more ! while on 6 January 1322 his age is set down at 50 years and more ! But we can never guess anything from such ages, they merely meant that he was a man of full age ; perhaps also, what was interesting in taxation, not yet 60 years, and so still liable to feudal services in person.

[C. Gen. 7]. Walter de Tynneslowe, younger son of Henry de Tynneslow, Gen. 6, and heir at the death of his brother William de Tynneslowe, s.p.m., at the end of the year 1321, had married Agnes, da. and coheir of Hugonis de Moles. (Gascoigne ; Vincent ; Harleian MS. 1047 ; Hunter's "South Yorkshire," vol. i., p. 399.)

In 1277 we find Walter de Tynneslawe and Johes de Shelton holding half a knight's fee in Shelton de honore de Tikhill (both in Kirkby's Inquest), and again in 1301 in the Aid granted to Edw. I.

Again in 1295 Walter de Tynnesley and John de Schelton hold half a knight's fee in Tinsley (Harl. MS. 801, ref. K. 95^a). I think both of these must have been an allowance out of his mother's lands to him as the 2nd son. His mother was Lucia, coheiress of Robert de Hoton by Lucia, coheiress of Skelton.

In 1322 Walter is declared heir to his brother William de Tynneslowe (Inq. post mortem, Vol. IV., pp. 129-131); and in 1323 Walter de Tynneslawe, brother and heire of William Tynneslawe, gives 5 Marks for his relevium for his manor of Tynneslawe, 17 Edw. II. (Harl. MS. 801, ref. LL. 114^a.) That would be the payment for 1 knight's fee in capite, but I know not whether for co. York only.

Walter enjoyed the estates for a very short time and died in 1326, leaving only two daughters who survived him, viz. :—

(1) Isabella, elder da. and coheir.=William de Wintworth, jun.,
(Family C. Gen. 8.) | who occurs 1313.

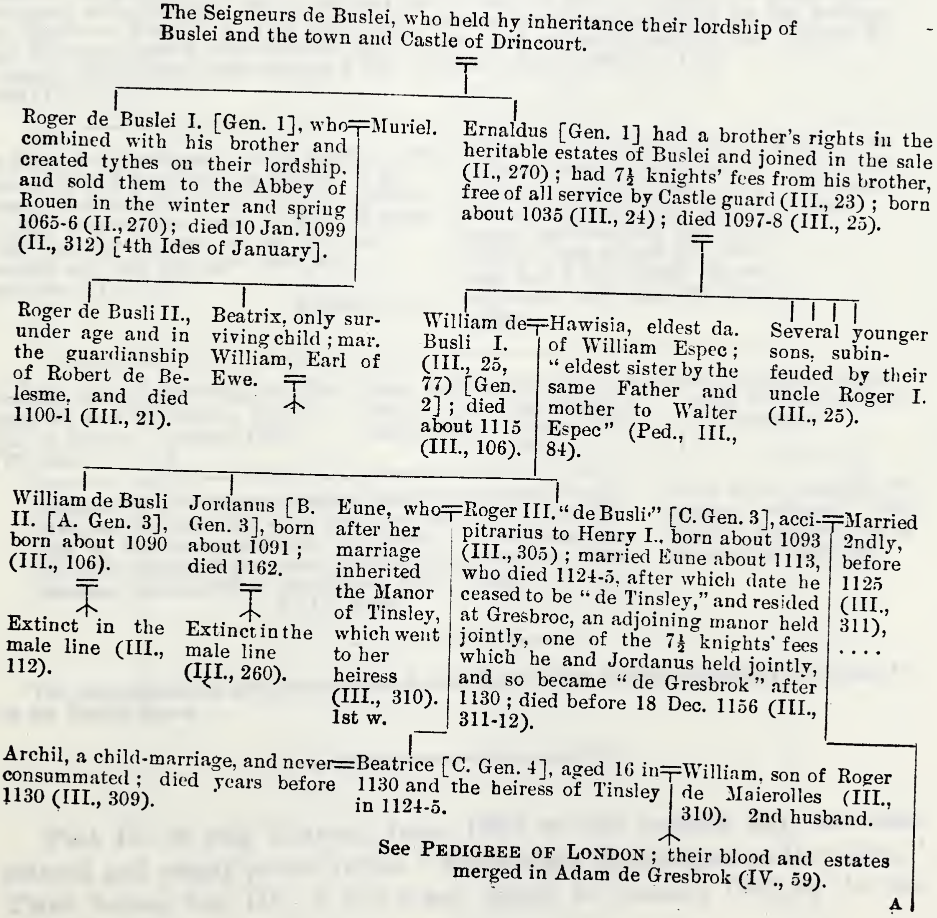
Hugo de Tothill, died s.p. 1st husband. =(2) Johanna, 2nd da. and coheir. (Family C. Gen. 8.) = Johes Eyre de Chesterfield, who died before 1336. 2nd husband.

Johanna, fil. et hæres, married Bertram, son of Sir John de Bolingbroke; she also was dead before 1366, and they left issue surviving.

Full details of the later portion of pedigree will be found in Hunter's "South Yorkshire," vol. ii., p. 31; Harl. MS. 1047; Gascoigne and Withie; Vincent's "Yorkshire"; Flower and Glover, "Vis.," 1563-4, 1584-6; Harl. Soc., vol. xvi.

Partition of the estates between Walter de Tynneslowe's two daughters was made in 1327, and this line of Tinsley was extinct—became extinct in the male line.

PEDIGREE OF FAMILY C FROM 1035, SHEWING THE DIRECT MALE LINE.



The Seigneurs de Buslei, who held hy inheritance their lordship of Buslei and the town and Castle of Drincourt.

Extinct in the male line (III., 260).

Eune, who after her marriage inherited the Manor of Tinsley, which went to her heiress (III., 310). 1st w. = Roger III. "de Busli" [C. Gen. 3], accipitrarius to Henry I., born about 1093 (III., 305); married Eune about 1113, who died 1124-5, after which date he ceased to be "de Tinsley," and resided at Gresbroc, an adjoining manor held jointly, one of the 7½ knights' fees which he and Jordanus held jointly, and so became "de Gresbrok" after 1130; died before 18 Dec. 1156 (III., 311-12). = Married 2ndly, before 1125 (III., 311), ...

Archil, a child-marriage, and never consummated; died years before 1130 (III., 309). = Beatrice [C. Gen. 4], aged 16 in 1130 and the heiress of Tinsley in 1124-5. = William, son of Roger de Maierolles (III., 310). 2nd husband.

See Pedigree of London; their blood and estates merged in Adam de Gresbrok (IV., 59).

Robert, son of Roger III. "de Gresbrok" [C. Gen. 4], born before 1126; (III., 366); subinfeudation of Family C. under Family B. after 1156 and before 1162; left Scawsby after his father's death in 1156, and resided at Gresbroc (III., 368).

If Robert, son of Roger de Gresbrok, had recovered under his charter (IV., 2), these two knights' fees, being his mother's dowry, would have come down to Bartholomew the 2nd son. That was known to be hopeless in May 1202 (Pipe Roll, 3 John).

= . . ., sister of William Painell of Drax and Hooton-Paynell about 1165, against whom he entered a suit to recover 2 knights' fees in 1191 (IV., 2).

Adam de Gresbroc [C. Gen. 5], called from residence there "de Roderham"; born about 1170; called "de Tinsley" after 1195 until his death, about 1230 (IV., 7), and before 1249 (IV., 59).

= Dionysia, eldest da. of William de London I., who gave on their marriage, 1195—1200, ½ a knight's fee and the Manor-house of Tinsley (IV., 6). Her son Henry coheir to her brother William de London II. at the Inq. post mortem 23 August 1249.

Bartholomew de Gresebroke, 2nd son, who acquired lands in Shenston, co. Stafford, 1204—14, and mar. Edith de Grendon (IV., 2), whose male descendants, proved in every generation, are printed in "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Third Series, Vol. III., p. 117. They are now the only direct male representatives (IV., 2-5).

Henricus de Tynneslowe [C. Gen. 6], under age and in the hands of the Queen; suit at Exeter September 1249; held conjointly with Walter le Brett 1 knight's fee in Tinsley of the Honour of Tickhill; in 1300 held lands between Ouse and Derwent to yearly value of £40; returned sole lord of Tinsley 5 March 1316; died between 8 July 1318 and 7 July 1320 (IV., 129).

= Lucia, fil. et coheir of Robert de Hoton Robert by Lucia his wife, da. and coheir of Richard Skelton, who had on her marriage half a knight's fee in Hoton Robert (IV., 127).

William de Tynneslowe [C. Gen. 7], son and heir of D'ns Henry de Tynneslawe. Had had a son Walter who d. s.p.m. Inquis. post mort. 2 Feb. 1322 declares Walter to be his brother and heir and aged 40 or 50 and over (IV., 131).

= . . ., da. of Sir William Waddesley.

Adam, ob. s.p.

Walter de Tynneslowe [Gen. 7], declared brother and heir of William de Tynneslowe in Inq. post mort. 2 Feb. 1322; paid v. marks relevium for Manor of Tinsley; died in 1326 (IV., 131). Had had a son Adam who ob. s.p., so he left only two daus. coheirs.

= Agnes, da. and coheir of Hugo de Molles.

Isabella [Gen. 8], elder da. and coheir of Walter (IV., 131).

= William de Wintworth, jun.; occurs 1313.

Hugo de Tothill, ob. s.p. 1st husband.

= Johanna, 2nd da. and coheir of Walter (IV., 132).

= Johes Eyre of Chesterfield, died before 1336. 2nd husband.

Partition of the estates between these two coheiresses was in 1327, and the male line of de Busli reverted to the descendants of Bartholomew de Gresbrok of Shenston, co. Stafford, whose pedigree, amply proved, was printed in "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Third Series, Vol. III., p. 117, et seq.

They had an only da. and heiress Johanna, who married Bertram, son of Sir John Bolingbroke.

The page references given will serve as a short Hand Guide through Volumes II., III., and IV. of our Fourth Series.

Part II. of this History, from 1204 to the present day, has been printed and amply proved in the "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Third Series, Vol. III., p. 117 et seq., issued in January 1900 for the two years 1898-9.

" MISTLETOE."

Thoresby of Lynn.

A descent has been claimed (e.g., in Burke's " Commoners," vol. i., p. 318) for this family from the Yorkshire family that took its name from Thoresby in Wensleydale. (Cf. Thoresby Society's Publications, vol. ix., pp. 112—125). It is more probable that the Norfolk Thoresbys were, as Blomefield (" Norfolk," vol. viii., p. 421) surmises, a branch of the Lincolnshire family that took its name from North or South Thoresby in that county.

John Thoresby, Mayor of Lynn 1425, Deputy-Mayor 1435. (Hist. MSS. Commission, Rep. 11, Part 3; cf. Fuller's " Worthies," 1840, vol. ii., pp. 470, 472.)

NOTES.

[1] Thomas Thoresby was an executor of the will, dated 24 January, proved (P.C.C., 1, Wattys) 13 February 1470-1, of William Pylton of Lynn, who directs that his lands in Pylton, etc., Northants, and in South Lynn shall be sold to him at a less price than to any other.

The testament of Thomas Thoresby leaves to "my special good lord of Oxenford" a tabernacle of our Lady of gold, worth 100*s.*, and mentions, besides nearer relatives, "Alice Flete, wife to my cousin Flete." His will, appended to his testament, devises lands for celebrations for the souls of himself, his wives and children, his father and mother, and William Pylton and Christian his wife, Gregory Guybon and Alice his wife, and John Fincham and Beatrice his wife. His feoffees were Thomas Thoresby, William Trewe, Richard Aylmere, Thomas Guybon, Francis Moundeford, John Fincham of Outwell, Peter Drayton, clerk, and Simon Fincham, clerk.

[2] Thomas Thoresby was married more than once, and it is not clear that Elizabeth . . . ., his wife at the date of his testament, was the mother of any of his children. In the Burgoyne pedigree in the "Visitations of Cambridgeshire" (Harl. Soc., vol. xli., pp. 24-25), ..., da. of John Burgoyne, is said to have married "Thomas Thorseby of Norfolk"; there is nothing to shew whether Thomas Thoresby of Lynn in meant.

[3] The feoffees of Robert Thoresby were Thomas Guybon, John Fincham of Outwell, Thomas Thoresby, Humphrey Karuyle (Carirle ?), and William Barwell.

[4] John Fincham survived his wife, and died 6 September 1496. His will, dated 10 March 1494-5, proved (P.C.C., 7, Horne) 7 February 1496-7, mentions his sons Henry, Nicholas, Simeon, John the elder, and John the younger (of Outwell), and his daughters Elizabeth, wife of Humphrey Carirle, Margaret, Alice, and Margerie (a nun).

Correspondence.

THE GRAZEBROOK FAMILY.

Dear Sir,

I send answers as concise as I can to all Mr. Carter's strictures, but feel it is a sad waste of time and of your space! I follow his enumeration and references.

An Incompetent Critic. Fourth Series, Vol. IV., p. 92.

No. 1, Vol. II., p. 270. No. 2, Vol. II., p. 312. No. 3, Vol. III., p. 22.

If this gentleman knows Latin he must have seen in the facsimile charter that Roger de Buslei and Ernaldus held their estates jointly by hereditary tenure, and were therefore legally competent to create tithes and sell them; and so they must have had a father, "the old Seigneur," whose Christian name I do not know! and as Hernaldus held his younger brother's portion which was included in the tithes he had to witness their sale among all these grandees. It is quite impossible to imagine that any but a younger brother could hold such a position in hereditary estates, "cujus erat pars decime." There was some interval between the two sales, although they each happen to follow in the Rouen Chartulary. Quidam Vir's sale was a civic affair before Ernulfus as the Prince's representative (prepositus) of the town, and Godardus had followed the high example set by the lord of Buslei, some three miles from Drincourt.

I cannot understand why Mr. Carter did not erase altogether strictures 1 and 2 when he had discovered in No. 3 proofs sufficient to satisfy all the questionings he had contrived, and which were already perfectly futile. An intelligent reading of the charters made such criticism quite impossible. When can Mr. Carter suppose that these two men became brothers? I can tell him. On the day when Ernaldus was born, estimated to have been about 1035 (Vol. III., p. 24). Mr. Carter has eaten his own words of stricture No. 1 and allows in No. 3 that they were groundless, and the facsimile after all was quite correct! Why, then, did he trouble us with Nos. 1 and 2 when the trial in 1219 (No. 3) had settled both? It looks as if Mr. Carter desires to find faults, and not, what we all wish, establish the exact truth.

No. 3 again.

To make it quite clear that Hernaldus and Ernulphus is the same name I considered it desirable to prove it, and promised (Vol. II., p. 270) to do so at the proper time, which did not come until Vol. III., p. 22, when that is clearly and unanswerably shewn. I gave the reference page 270, so Mr. Carter ought to have known the reason and the necessity of shewing this, and should not have troubled us with No. 3, and draw ignorantly a deduction that will not hold water. All students understand that evidences must constantly be postponed till some later stage when the individual name comes in for a full description. Any other course would lead to inextricable confusion; and knowing this, they prudently wait till they learn all, instead of jumping to conclusions in the dark.

No. 14.

This also applies to stricture No. 14, which will not be worth answering when the whole is printed.

No. 4, Vol. III., p. 25. No. 5, Vol. III., p. 77. No. 6, Vol. III., p. 85.

The trial 1219 declares and establishes all about the 7½ knights, and constantly throughout the whole history I have given repeated records of them and their peculiar tenure, paying no servitium, etc.; and such exact details extend until their final dispersal among the heiresses. I think, perhaps, a fresh one here will be interesting: "Testa de Nevill," fo. 23^b, Notts and Derby. "Countess Augi holds as chief lord a long list, 39 feoda held of the Castle of Tykehull," et alia quinque feoda et ½ et ¼ nullum faciunt servitium præter scutagium et relevium cum contigerit. As a rule I ignore the "Testa de Nevill" because I cannot fix exact dates to my satisfaction. This was after 1222.

And now, No. 6 again, we shall see a little of Mr. Carter's methods and principles, which, to say the least of it, are astonishing! At Vol. III., p. 77, I write that William de Busli I. "had married Hawisia the eldest sister and by the same father and mother of Walter Espec," and gave this reference: Dugdale's "Monast.," ed. 1655, fo. 728, l. 36^a. This simple statement Mr. Carter meets with a brusque negative! I grant that mine is a direct statement, and must be directly answered—he denies it altogether!

Now can it be believed that he means to say it was NOT so without ever having looked up the reference given? Had he done so he would have found the exact wording of the Rievaulx Chartulary thus, after naming the three sisters of Walter Espec, viz., Hawisia, Albreda, and Adelina, "PRIMAM DUXIT IN UXOREM WILLIELMUS BVSCYE." Now I consider this is an unpardonable offence. A critic may not flaunt false or haphazard statements because he is too lazy to ascertain the truth. Also I feel strongly that such behaviour shews a great want of respect to the readers of "Miscellanea." We all feel that a "critic," whether he be self-elected or not, must exercise proper precautions and ascertain that his premises are correct before he ventures to arraign himself as a judge and deny any other man's statements! and we shall presently see by the introductory letter that this gentleman has arrogated to himself a ludicrous position of dignity. "Ex uno disce omnes." We now see what is the value of Mr. Carter's most careful studies.

No. 8.

I have now the more pleasant task of thanking Mr. Carter for the three following corrections, which he has kindly pointed out. Writing Idonea instead of Cecilia at Vol. III., p. 254, is one of those mysterious slips which will sometimes happen. It is correctly put Vol. III., p. 108, also in the skeleton pedigrees, Vol. III., pp. 112, 261.

No. 10, Vol. III., p. 308.

I am acquainted with three Vincents who were genealogical experts, two of them eminently so. I remember clearly now, I had fast hold of a fact, when one of those airy fancies that do sometimes obtrude themselves flitted across the mental horizon like a comet, and suggested that I ought to have distinguished by name which Vincent I meant. I turned to the "Book of Dignities," and found "Aug." in the index. In the List of Heralds, p. 331, it is correctly given Augustine,

No. 15, Vol. III., p. 370.

Dodsworth should have been written. I hope my readers will kindly alter in ink these three corrections. I need not say how much I regret them.

No. 9, Vol. III., p. 306.

So far as I can satisfy myself that Glover and Flower are correct, I gladly accept their evidence, and (excepting the name of John as brother of Jordanus, instead of Roger de Busli) it is established by my researches. Mr. Carter does not seem to understand in the least the processes of ancient law, although clearly stated, Vol. III., pp. 309, 310. I decline to go over again what only wants an intelligent reading.

No. 11, Vol. III., p. 312.

Stricture (a) is answered, Vol. III., pp. 155, 156. Jordan (Family B) and Roger III. (Family C) jointly paid relevium and held jointly in Pipe Roll 1155-6.

(b) Vol. III., p. 156. Roger was dead before 18 December 1156, and Jordan alone in possession.

(c) Skeleton pedigrees, Family B, Vol. III., p. 260 ; Family C not yet printed.

Nos. 12, 13, 14

Need only be treated in the same way—read intelligently. I cannot be expected to go over and over again everything that Mr. Carter cannot understand ; that would take a very long time, and he does not seem able to grasp the necessity of correct dates.

And now for the introductory letter. The smug complacence with which he arrogates to himself the whole duties of judge, advocates, and jury is really very funny. I have most carefully, etc. (see No. 6 for an instance), and will save readers of the "Miscellanea" all the trouble of hearing evidence, examining proofs, etc., and will dictate the verdict for them.

I hope your Subscribers will honour me by reading for themselves and coming to their own conclusions. I know my history is very long, but I had to prove every statement to the perfect satisfaction of any qualified genealogist ; and I do not think after my exposé that we shall hear much more of Mr. Carter.

At first I did not intend to take any notice whatever of such trash, but genealogical friends urge that it will be more polite to refute his strictures and in the same volume in which currency was given to them. I hope, therefore, he will consider this very long communication as complimentary.

I am, Dear Sir, yours faithfully,

GEO. GRAZEBROOK.

Reviews.

A History of the Woodgates of Stonewall Park and of Summerhill in Kent, and their Connections. By the Rev. GORDON WOODGATE, M.A., and GILES MUSGRAVE GORDON WOODGATE. Printed for Private Circulation by Balding and Mansell, Wisbech. 1910.

THIS is a portly volume of upwards of 500 pp., well illustrated by portraits of the Woodgate family, beginning with that of William Woodgate of Summerhill of 1765, a plate of which forms the frontispiece of the history. A portrait of Mrs. William Woodgate of Swaylands, by Sir Thomas Lawrence, P.R.A., and also that of her husband and a plate of the house, add to the picturesqueness of the volume, as well as other portraits and views of the various mansions, including Pembury Hall, with its drawing room and old oak staircase, and Spring Grove at Pembury, the seat of Henry Woodgate, Esq., and views of the old moated mansion of Hawkwell Place (now long since demolished), Tonbridge Castle, and Riverhill. The seven pedigrees folded in at various parts, are well executed, and Chapter I., giving the early ancestors of the family in 1281 up to 1617, some of whom served under Jack Cade in 1450, has some good information respecting the leading members. Hasted giving information of the several Woodgates of Sheldwich and Throwley, and they were succeeded two hundred years later by the Wolgates of the same places. Chapter II. enumerates the family from 1590 to 1718, to William of Stonewall, High Sheriff of Kent in 1699, whose son John married the "fair Rose of Kent," the beautiful heiress of a neighbouring squire, in 1693; and in Chapter IV. is narrated how Francis, the fifth son of John Woodgate, began his academic career at Tonbridge School in 1727, gaining the Smythe Exhibition, proceeding afterwards to Trinity College, Oxford, where he matriculated in 1726, graduated B.A. 1729, and in 1734 became M.A. and Vicar of Mountfield and Rector of Whatlington in Sussex. Chapters VI. tc XIX. are mostly concerned with family letters and wills. Some of the branches married with the Kentish families of the Streatfeilds, bringing a long worthy line of Kentish gentlemen into another good family. There were no fewer than ten intermarriages between Woodgates and Streatfeilds. The Rev. Thomas Streatfeild of Charts Edge, Westerham, who was descended from the Streatfeilds of Chiddingstone, and who married the heiress of Alexander Champion in 1800, had a family by her of eight children; he married secondly the relict of Henry Woodgate of Spring Grove, by whom he had five children. He was Chaplain to the Duke of Kent, and laboured most assiduously in bringing out a revised history of Kent, only one Part being published under the editorship of Dr. Henry Holman Drake, with the title of *The History of the Hundred of Blackheath.

The Work is chiefly remarkable for the long and unbroken series of family letters, ranging from 1730—1850, which shed a flood of light on the social and domestic life of the period, and are full of contemporary gossip relating to the different families and persons then in West Kent and the Hastings neighbourhood. There are full chapters on the Actons, the Ashburnhams of Broomham, Sussex (Baronets), the Humphrys of Seal, the Rideouts of Westmeston, the Allnutts of South Park, Penshurst, the Nouailles of Greatness, Sevenoaks (an old refugee family, with much interesting information about their adventures and escape from France), the Wests of Postern Park, Tonbridge, and the Briscos of Coghurst, Sussex, until recently represented by the late Sir Musgrave Brisco, Bart. These chapters may all be regarded as family histories in brief, the Woodgate connection linking up the whole.

The entire Work is most painstaking in its details, and the joint Editors deserve the gratitude of the whole family for bringing their history down almost to modern days. An Index is supplied giving all the names of persons mentioned, which will be found very useful. There are pedigrees of the following families: Streatfeild, Cembridge, Birsty, Durrant of Framfield, Seyliard, Crompe, Children, Thompson of Seal, Nicoll of Mountfield, Ashburnham, Humphry, Hooker of Tonbridge Castle, Allnutt, Nouaille, Delamare, Harvey of Cowden, and Hardinge (the Rev. Stephen Woodgate having married in 1809 the first Lord Hardinge's sister).

The Utah Genealogical and Historical Magazine. Vol. I., No. 3, July 1910. Published by the Genealogical Society of Utah, 60 East South Temple Street, Salt Lake River, Utah, U.S.A.

THIS Part has for frontispiece a Portrait of John Jaques, first librarian of the Utah Genealogical Society, and Mr. J. H. Evans gives a short account of his life. He states that young Jaques was born in Market Bosworth, England, 7 January 1827, and won a reputation for diligence, and at 18 joined the Latter-Day Saints, leaving Stratford-on-Avon and going to Liverpool, and emigrating to Utah, where he assisted in several newspapers and magazines, and, after marrying twice, died in June 1900 in Salt Lake City.

This Part has a "Chapter for the Novice" in genealogy, which gives some useful directions, and also an Introduction to the Study of English Surnames. The descendants of Richard Richards is continued from the previous Part, likewise the genealogy of the West family from 1676 to 1808. The Part concludes with an account of the Biennial Meeting of the Society, with the names of the Members. Reminiscences of Salt Lake district are not much esteemed in England.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XVIII., No. 3, for July 1910. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

* This able Work was published by Messrs. Mitchell Hughes and Clarke, and was dedicated to Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and made a handsome folio volume of 372 pp. with 30 pp. of Illustrations, and it contains 61 pedigrees of noble personages and of Norman families, as well as 158 autographs from Queen Elizabeth to Queen Victoria. By the lamented death of Dr. Drake and his patrons this Work is now being offered at £1 : 1*s*. only, originally issued at £5 : 5*s*.

Council of Virginia in 1658—1662 mostly refer to Planters of tobacco and Petitions of Merchants, etc.; and there is a warrant for a grant to the daughter of the Dowager Lady De la Warr of £200 a year in consideration of her mother's loss of a pension of £500 granted to her for her late husband's services in Virginia. "Gleanings in England," by Messrs. Withington and Waters, give several wills of gentlemen resident in Virginia. The genealogy of the Brent family is still continued, and that of the Robinson family of Middlesex and the Brooke family, and the English descent of John Pleasants (1645—1698) of Virginia; and reviews of books conclude the Part very satisfactorily.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Vol. XLI., No. 3, for July 1910.
New York: 226 West 58th Street.

THIS Part has for frontispiece an excellent portrait of John Stewart Kennedy, and Mr. George A. Morrison, A.M., gives an excellent account of him from the time when he was only 13 and became a clerk in a shipping office in Glasgow. The London firm of William Bird and Co. offered him the position of their representative in the United States and Canada. In 1856 he began a partnership with Mr. Morris K. Jessup for sale of railroad iron, and the firm eventually developed into a banking business, and from that time he was concerned in all the large financial and railway enterprises of the day. He died on 31st October 1909.

The Cromwell and Lewis families are still carried on up to June 1817, and the "Digest of Essex Wills," by Mr. W. Gilbert. "Clues from English Archives" gives the will of Richard Jones, evidently the Master of the "Mayflower," in 1638. In an account of the Livingstone family there are fourteen members who served in the Army and Navy during the Independence War of 1775—1783, with interesting details. The Thacher-Tratcher genealogy is continued by Mr. J. R. Totten from 1588 up to 1648, and has three plates of the exterior and interior of St. Barnabas Church in Queen Camel, England, the Rev. Peter Thacher being vicar there in 1574—1624. The account of the Dutcher family is continued to 1782, and the Proceedings of the Society conclude a very interesting Part.

A Saunter through Kent with Pen and Pencil. By CHARLES IGGLESDEN. Vol. IX. 1910.
Ashford: Kentish Express Office.

WE are as pleased with the Chapters on Sissinghurst, Goodneston-next-Wingham, Chartham, Loose, Coxheath, Bridge, and Patrixbourne, as we are with the illustrations by Mr. Igglesden. In Sissinghurst the introductory plate gives four etchings all neatly drawn, besides three engravings included with the type. In Goodneston there is a similar plate, and with the account of Loose there is the grouped plate giving four views, besides a pretty engraving of Salt's Place. Coxheath has but one engraving giving a view of a camp held there in 1778, and Chartham has an introductory plate giving three views neatly grouped. Bridge is similarly illustrated with five views as a front plate, one giving a sketch of the old bridge, and Patrixbourne is illustrated with two views of the church and an old picturesque dwelling, besides shewing five old relics of the place. The literature of each place is well described, that referring to Loose particularizing how vegetation of all sorts is nurtured, fruit trees as well as flowers being clustered everywhere, and with a fine stream of water running through the little village with a mill at Springs Pond, said to have been built by the Huguenots. At Chartham a number of tumuli containing human remains were found, supposed to be those of the ancient Britons and Danes, a decisive combat having been fought with Cæsar, the skeletons of the Normans and Britons being in groups. The small volume is full of information, and we must congratulate the author upon the archæological points he draws his readers' attention to. The price of only 2*s.* 6*d.* ought soon to exhaust the edition.

A Pedigree of the Family of Lewen of Whickham in the County Palatine of Durham.*

Cf. Pedigree of Lewen in "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Fourth Series, Vol. IV., p. 62.

George Lewen [son of Edward Lewen, M.P., of Hetton and Fawside, co. Durham, and Newcastle-upon-Tyne, and baptized at St. Nicholas', Newcastle, 30 November 1585] of Whickham, co. Pal. Durham; died at Cramlington, Northumberland, 26 February 1664-5; buried at Whickham (the mourners stayed the night at George Lewen's house in Newcastle and paid funeral dues at St. Nicholas and All Saints', Newcastle). Will dated 17 May 1662; proved P.C. Durham 1665 (T. 126). = Margaret, da. of . . . . ; residuary legatee and sole executrix of her husband's will.

. . . . = Loraine.

Richard Lewen of Whickham, baptized there 7 August 1625; buried at Whickham 1 May 1661. Administration granted P.C. Durham to his father 6 July 1661.

Henry Lewen of Whickham, co. Durham, baptized there 3 Feb. 1620-1; purchased property in Over Whitwell and Catterick, co. York, from Thomas Tenant and Susanna his wife [15 Trinity 21 Charles II., Feet of Fines, Yorkshire], and settled it upon his 2nd son Robert, making Richard Mascall of Durham, merchant, his trustee; he was also concerned with George Beadnell in a colliery at Brinkburne, of which Sir James Clavering, Bart., Robert Shaftoe, and others were owners. [Chancery Records, Beadnell v. Lewen, Whittington, 169/1673, P.R.O.] He was bur. at Whickham 6 Feb. 1671-2. Will dated 31 Jan. 1671-2, witnessed by Timothy Ibbetson, William Loraine, Richard Mathew, and Elizabeth Myres; proved id. an. by his wife Rebecca, the sole executrix. 1st husband. = Rebecca, marriage licence at Durham to her second husband Henry Liddell, dated 28 February 1673-4; she was buried 20 March 1676-7 at Whickham. Will dated 9 March 1676-7 (in which she recites an indenture dated 2 March 1673-4 between herself on the first part, Ambrose Myres, John Jobling, and Eliz. Myres on second part, and Henry Liddell her now husband on third part, whereby she retained her first husband's estate in her own hands); proved P.C. Durham 1677 (T. 33). Inventory p.m. taken 16 April 1677. = Henry Liddell of Farnacres, co. Pal. Durham, great-nephew of Sir Thomas Liddell, first Bart., of Ravensworth Castle; appears in the "Durham Freeholders' Book," 1681, as owning Farnacres and an estate at Wolsingham, and is stated therein to be "in gaole." He conveyed the whole of his estate at Whickham to his three sons in equal shares, and in 1715 was living on an allowance from them of £18 yearly, having nothing left for his subsistence. = Mary, eldest da. of William Tunstall of Scargill and Wycliffe, co. York, by his wife Mary, da. of Sir Edward Radcliffe, Bart., of Dilston, and sister of Francis, first Earl of Derwentwater. 1st wife.

* Henry Liddell may possibly be identified with the person of that name who in his will, dated 21 December 1728, proved P.C. Durham 1730, describes himself as "of the City of Durham, and now of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, gent." He left £10 to his goddaughter Henrietta Douglas, daughter of Mary Douglas of Durham, widow, and bequeathed the residue to his "kinsman Nicholas Barron of Newcastle, gent." See also Estcourt and Payne's "English Catholic Nonjurors of 1715."

† Either William or Thomas Liddell, probably the former, was progenitor of Cuthbert Liddell, mentioned as "my cousin" in the will of Marmaduke Tunstall of Wycliffe, dated 20 October 1755, proved P.C. York 15 January 1761. The above portion of the Liddell and Loraine pedigrees corrects a serious error in Surtees' "Durham," vol. ii., p. 245.

The Aylmer Family of England and Ireland.*

NOTES REFERRED TO IN THE PEDIGREE.

1 Chief Justice Sir Gerald Aylmer, ancestor of Lord Aylmer, was appointed Justice of Common Pleas 23 August 1532, removed 25 June 1534 to the Exchequer, and on 12 August 1535 constituted Chief Justice of the Common Pleas. The King was about to promote him to the King's Bench when the Earl of Shrewsbury opposed his preferment, representing him as an insignificant man and unfit for the post. Hereupon King Henry VIII. reproved his minister, Lord Cromwell, for recommending so improper a person. Lord Cromwell, in his justification, desired his Majesty to converse with Aylmer and asking him, amongst other things, the true reason of the decay of Ireland. Sir Gerald answered that it was because the estated men, used to reside on and defend their lands and countenance their tenants, did now generally dwell in England and left Ireland a prey to the natives. The King was very pleased and caused the Absentee Bill to be passed, and Lord Shrewsbury thereby lost his Irish estates. Sir Gerald Aylmer acquired enormous estates, which one by one passed away through the attainders of his descendants. Dollardstown, his chief seat, continued for six generations with his male heirs, and was forfeited by James Aylmer in 1663.

2 The actions of Matthew, 1st Lord Aylmer, will be found in the "Lives of British Admirals." He was a very handsome man, and his picture, with his son-in-law Norris, hangs in the painted gallery, Greenwich. He was elected in nine successive Parliaments M.P. for Dover. He bought large estates in several English counties; those in Kent were sold by the Hon. and Rev. John Aylmer. His son-in-law Sir John Norris was very rich; he purchased Hampstead Park, Kent, and an account of the property is interesting. His eldest son, John Norris, M.P., was a great man about Court and remarkably handsome. He took up with the celebrated Courtezan Kitty Fisher, who, as the nursery ballad informs us, found Lucy Locket's pocket. He married her, and she became an excellent wife. She died without children, and John Norris went abroad; he returned with a French wife and a number of children. He and his eldest son cut off the entail and sold the property, now the seat of Viscount Cranbrook. Many years after it was discovered that he was not married to the Frenchwoman till his return to England, and after all the children were born. I found the registry. The cutting of the entail was therefore illegal, and the property should have gone to the Aylmers of Courtown, or, failing them, to our branch.

From the marriage of Catherine Aylmer (1st Lord Aylmer's sister) with Michael Warren sprang the famous Admiral Sir Peter Warren. Peter (2nd son) was taken, when twelve years of age, to England by his brother Oliver in 1715 and placed under the care of his uncle Lord Aylmer, who brought him up a Protestant, and placed him in a man-of-war. In 1722 he was made Lieutenant, and in 1727 Captain. He performed his duties so ably that in a short time he was made Admiral of the Red, and died in Dublin in 1752, having married the sister of Oliver Delaney of New York, and leaving three daughters.

The elder brother, Oliver Warren of Warrenstown, also served in the Navy.

His son, the Right Hon. Nathaniel Warren, had a daughter Eleanore, who married Robert Crean of Dublin. They emigrated to New York in 1838, and her daughter Henrietta Agnes Crean married James Gordon Bennett, and was mother of James Gordon Bennett, proprietor of the "New York Herald," and of his sister, who married Isaac Bell, junior, of New York City. Henrietta Agnes Crean had two sisters, viz., Helena married to Victor, Bishop of New York, and Georgina married to Vickenburg of New York.

Sir Peter Warren's sister married a gentleman of the name of Johnson, and her son William Johnson went with his uncle to New York, became a Colonel, and was created a Baronet in 1755. His son and heir, Sir John Johnson, was of Mount Johnson, Montreal, Canada, and many members of the family now reside there (vide Burke's "Peerage and Baronetage," under Johnson). The present Sir William Johnson is the great-great-grandson of Miss Aylmer and Michael Warren.

The "Life of John Aylmer, Bishop of London" (temp. Eliz.), was published in 1701 by John Strype, M.A. He dedicated it to Admiral Lord Aylmer. The dedication epistle is as follows:—

"Sir,

"That you may still live and be the instrument of much more good to the King and Kingdom may I presume to be your Monitor. Remember from whose hands all your successes and honors flow. Acknowledge him and let him have all the glory.

"The crest and Motto belonging to the other Branch of your family may be your remembrances, which is three flourishing slips of the plant Allelujah (as herbalists call the Tripolium Acetosum) and a scroll compassing the same with the word Allelujah, which signifies 'Praise the Lord.' Let that, Sir (which is their motto), be your practice.

"To conclude, If you shall please at your leisure moments to read over these historical collections concerning this Prelate, your namesake (as History is the Mistress and Instructor of Life), whatsoever you find praiseworthy in him follow. Follow whatsoever you observe in him springing from the noble principles of religion, conscience and true magnanimity. And let them ever live and flourish in the House of the Aylmers.

"With which wish and prayer I end this address, being,

"Sir, etc., etc."

Extract from "The Times" of 8 January 1906, shewing that John Aylmer, Rear-Admiral, was one of the six canopy bearers at the funeral of Lord Nelson :—

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 8, 1806.

FUNERAL OF LORD NELSON.

This morning, at half past seven o'clock, the Heralds, and the several Naval Officers who assist at the Procession by water from Greenwich Hospital, will assemble at the Admiralty, and proceed in form to Greenwich by land. The following are the names of most of the Admirals and Captains, who are to assist :—

Chief Mourner—Admiral Sir Peter Parker, Bart.
Train Bearer to the Chief Mourner—The Honourable Captain Blackwood.
Supporters to the Chief Mourner—Admirals Lords Hood and Radstock.
Six Assistant Mourners—Vice-Admirals Caldwell, Hamilton, Nugent, Bligh, Sir Roger Curtis, and Sir C. M. Pole, Barts.
Four Supporters of the Pall—Vice-Admirals Whitshead, Savage, Taylor, and Rear-Admiral E. Harvey.
Six Bearers of the Canopy—Rear-Admirals Aylmer,* Domett, T. Wells, Drury, Sir Isaac Coffin, and Sir W. H. Douglas, Barts.
Bearer of the Standard—Capt. ———.
Bearer of the Banner of the Bath—Capt. Rotheram.
Bearer of the Great Banner—Capt. Moorsom.
Bearer of the Guidon—Capt. Durham.
Bearer of the Emblems—Capt. T. M. Hardy.

The body of Lord Nelson will be brought from Whitehall Stairs to the Admiralty on a bier. At the Admiralty it will be placed in the Captain's Room, the whole of which has been covered with superfine black cloth, and will be lighted up by a profusion of wax lights, placed in sconces on the sides.

Inscription on monument in Filleigh Church, Southmolton, North Devon, to Lucy Aylmer, daughter of Lord Aylmer :—

To the memory of LUCY FORTESCUE, daughter of MATTHEW, LORD AYLMER, of the Kingdom of Ireland, and widow of HUGH FORTESCUE of Filleigh in the county of Devon, Esq^{re}. She retired for the latter part of her life to the jointure House at Ebrington in Gloucestershire, where she passed her time in the continuous exercise of all the social virtues which can enoble a private life : Hospitality, Charity, unbounded benevolence, and died as she had lived with calm resignation and humble but confident hopes in the mercy of God through Jesus Christ her Redeemer on the 17th day of Feby. 1767, and in the 80th year of her age.

To his most dear and most honoured parent MATTHEW, LORD FORTESCUE, raised this Stone.

CONCLUSION.

A Pedigree shewing that Francis Hervey, son of Anthony Hervey of Swarland, was Rector of St. Breage in Cornwall.

Compiled by CHRISTOPHER HARVEY, Fleet-Surgeon Royal Navy.

- Thomas Hervey, died about 1467 = Jane Drury of Ickworth.
  - Elizabeth, a widow 11 Hen. VII., 1497. = John Crofts of West Stowe, co. Beds (Lord A. Hervey).
    - A son (?).
      - A son (?). Probably Edmond Croft* comes in here.
  - William Hervey, born 1465; died 1538; (or died 1528, Lord Hervey). = Jane Cocket.
    - John Hervey,* born 1487; died 1556. = Elizabeth Pope.
      - William Hervey, mar. E. Poley. =
        - John Hervey,* died 1630; married F. Bocking.
      - Bridget, mar. J. Wroth. =
        - A. Wroth,* died 1614 (Lord Hervey).
      - Anne,* died 1586 (?); married R. Lisley,* died 1554.
      - Francis Hervey,* married Widow Smith of Cressing; died 1601 (Lord Hervey).
    - Nicholas Hervey, died 1583. = 1st wife E. Fitzwilliam. 2nd wife B. Wiltshire.
      - George Hervey, died 1605. =
        - Margaret, married Wm. Mildmay. The brother, Walter Mildmay, founded Emanuel College, Cambridge, to which Francis Hervey of St. Breage went.
        - Gawen Hervey, born 1575; named Francis, son of Anthony, in his pedigree dated 1605. (Harl. MS. 1541, 39^b.)
      - Thomas Hervey of Helmstock, co. Lincoln; died 1543. =
        - Lucy, da. and coh., of Hartland, Devon. = Thomas Cotton, Sheriff 1547.
          - A
      - Anne, born 1529; died 1605; married George Carew (born 1498, died 1583). (Thomasin Godolphin married a cousin of this George Carew, also called George Carew. He was of Anthony in Cornwall. Nicolas' "Visit to Cornwall" in Bodleian.)

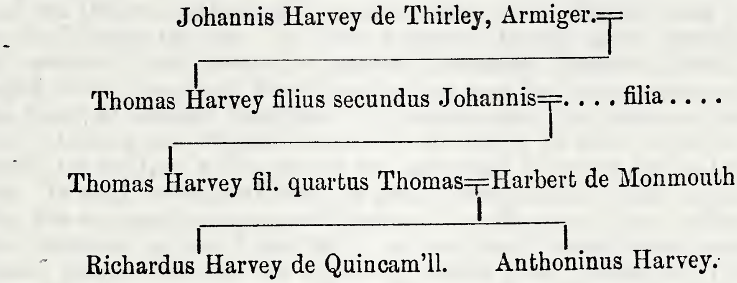
PEDIGREE OF HARVEY OF MÂEN IN CORNWALL.

Since the publication of the above pedigree in the "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica" for September 1901, I have discovered that two Anthony Harveys, both deriving from John Harvey, senior, of Thurley, were contemporaneous in the sixteenth century, and these two are completely muddled in the above pedigree. It becomes necessary, therefore, to differentiate them. Of these Anthonys one was of Columb John in Devon, the other of Swarland in Northumberland.

1. Anthony Harvey of Columb John in Devon.

The Harleian MS. in the British Museum, 1052, p. 143, has the following:—



Johannis Harvey de Thirley, Armiger.
Thomas Harvey filius secundus Johannis . . . . filia . . . .
Thomas Harvey fil. quartus Thomas Harbert de Monmouth.
Richardus Harvey de Quincam'll.
Anthoninus Harvey.

Davy's "Pedigrees of Suffolk Families" (Add. MS. 19,135, fos. 171 and 180, B.M.) states that Thomas Harvey, Archdeacon of Monmouth, fourth son of Thomas Harvey and Jane Drury, had three sons: 1 Henry, 2 Richard of Quincamell, 3 Anthony, who married . . . ., da. of . . . . Wellesden of Devon, and their daughter Margaret married Sir Amias Paulet. The earliest mention of this Anthony is to be found in Gairdner's "Letters and Papers, Foreign and Domestic," for the year 1515, where the name appears in conjunction with Thomas Harvey, Heydon, Holland, Carew, and Paulet on the "Lists of the King's Accounts of the Revels at Tourney" in Flanders, and described as the "Wages of War." In 1516 Sir John Speke was Sheriff of Devon, and in 1519 his son John was granted "Livery of Lands," etc. In 1525 Anthony Harvey of London and Eleanor his wife were granted a pardon for having married without the King's licence, and they were licensed to enjoy the issues of the possessions of the said Eleanor's former husband John Speke of Devon, Somerset, Dorset, and Cornwall. In this same year Thomas Speke was "granted Livery of Lands," etc., for all possessions of the said John in England, Wales, Calais, etc., and in all the possessions whereof Isabella Speke, widow, or Eleanor, wife of Anthony Harvey, were seized for life, belonging to the inheritance of the said Thomas Speke. In 1528 a Sir George Speke was employed in Lord Courtenay's Household. Thus it is clear that Anthony Harvey of Columb John married Eleanor Speke, whose maiden name, therefore, was Eleanor Willesden of Devon, by whom he had two daughters Elizabeth and Margaret, of whom the former married Anthony Cockshed of Chulmleigh in Devon, and died leaving one child, a son Anthony Cockshed. The latter, Margaret, thus became the only daughter and heir of Anthony Harvey, and she married Sir Amias Paulet.

From the same source I find that in 1538 Anthony Harvey, S . . . . (i.e. Surveyor) was appointed Keeper of Chulmleigh Park, and Bailiff of Tappisham and Keeper of the King's Park of Mere. In 1544 Anthony, described as the "King's servant," was granted lease of the chief messuage of Chulmleigh and lands within the circuit of the late park of Chulmleigh, in which year he was also granted the lease of the house or chief mansion of the manor of Columpton, Devon, with the demesne, etc.

Other references to Anthony are to be seen in the "Letters and Papers." In 1525, in the account of the personal expenses of Henry, Marquis of Exeter, is the cost of cream coloured cloth for the use of Anthony Harvey, and in 1528 Anthony gave a bay mare to the Marquis. In 1535 the Marquis licensed to alienate certain manors in Devon to Anthony Harvey, and next year Anthony was licensed to feoffee the Marquis of certain lands in Devon. In 1538 Anthony is described as Surveyor to the lands of the Marquis of Exeter, and when in 1541 the Marquis was attainted, Anthony was appointed as overseer to the land now in the possession of the King. In this year Anthony was granted lands in Devon, and at a meeting of the Privy Council at Dover he was appointed as the Lord Admiral's Deputy.

Still following the "Letters and Papers" I find in 1544 that Anthony Harvey of Devon was among the List of Officers to be employed in the Army against France, and his name is on the "Roll of Commissions" granted in that year. He was detailed to the Staff of Sir Rich. Riche, Treasurer of Augmentations, and was one of the Officers authorized "to take charge of provisions" and "to sign all bills, etc.," during the war. In 1545 Anthony Harvey, again described as "the King's servant," was granted the lease of Chulmleigh Manor in Devon, which had belonged to the Marquis of Exeter, and in that year his name appears on the "List of the Court of General Surveyors." After this date his name no longer occurs in the "Letters and Papers," but is to be found in the "Acts of the Privy Council" for 1547, in which year he was appointed to receive the rent of Wardour Castle. In 1551 he was authorized to grant a lease, and in 1553 he, with Sir Peter Carew, was concerned in the apprehension of one Brown of Dover, which is the last public reference to him I can find. At that time it would seem he was living at Colesunt, South Down, as the following extract from "Stemmata Chicheleana" indicates: "Robert Haydon of Bowood, co. Devon, married Jone, daughter of Sir Amyas Poulett, Kt., Governor of Jersey, who died 1588, by Margaret, daughter of Anthony Harvey of Colesunt, South Down."

By an examination of the "Inquisitiones post mortem" (at the Public Record Office) I find that Anthony Harvey died 23 May 1564, and was buried in Exeter Cathedral. It states that he died possessed of the manor of Wyndford Ryver, co. Somerset, which he had of the gift of Gertrude, Marchioness of Exeter, in 5 Philip and Mary, and that his daughter Margaret was of the age of 28 and married Amyas Paulet, Esq., and she was his heir. Thus this Anthony Harvey left no son, so that Francis Harvey of St. Breage in Cornwall could not have been his son. This Anthony Harvey's tomb in Exeter Cathedral is a very beautiful structure. It presents a shield shewing the arms of Niernuyt impaled by Harvey.

2. ANTHONY HERVEY OF SWARLAND IN NORTHUMBERLAND.

Like Anthony Harvey of Columb John in Devon this Anthony also descended from John Hervey of Thurley. The following pedigree is abstracted from Lord Arthur Hervey's Paper on the "Family of Hervey" in the "Proceedings of the Suffolk Institute of Archæology," vol. ii., No. 7:—

John Hervey, Senior, of Thurley ═ Joan, da. of Sir John Niernuyt.

Thomas Hervey ═ Jane Drury of Ickworth.

William Hervey of Ickworth ═ Jane Cocket.

Anthony Hervey, 5th son = Lucy Lisley.

This Anthony Hervey is described as fifth son in many pedigrees, and in Davy's Pedigrees he is called "Sir Anthony Hervey, Kt., a Pensioner to H. or & to E^b"; further, they nearly all give him a son Francis, while many name his wife Lucy Lisley.

The earliest mention of his name is to be found in Gairdner's "State Letters and Papers" in 1531, when he was appointed to receive the receipts from the Feast of Annunciation of the Convent of Babwell in Suffolk, which had been suppressed in 1527. In 1541 this convent was granted by the King to Anthony Hervey, which he, in conjunction with his wife Lucy Lisley, sold in 1543. In 1542, the year in which he married Lucy Lisley, he obtained a lease of Braithwaite Manor in Yorkshire. Now Lucy Lisley was the widow of Lancelot Heselrigg of Swarland, Felton, in Northumberland, as will presently be seen, and it was to Swarland Anthony Hervey and his wife went to live.

Lucy Lisley was a granddaughter (not daughter as stated in some pedigrees) to Sir Humphrey Lisley. She was affianced to Lancelot Heselrigg in her infancy and married him in due course. This Lancelot Heselrigg died before 1540, leaving an infant son of the same name. This latter it would seem adopted the Hervey shield, with argent instead of gules for difference, viz., "Argent, a chevron between three slipped trefoils vert," as shewn in the "Elizabethan Roll of Northern Heraldry within the Bishoprick of Durham" (Surtees Society), and is the only one of the Heselriggs who used it.

The following note from Gairdner's "State Papers" in 1540 in the "Books of the Court of Augmentations," Enrolment of Grants by the Crown, etc., of 31 Henry VIII. (1540) sufficiently attest that Lucy Lisley (or Heselrigg) was a widow in that year: "Nuneton, Warw. Agnes Oulton p. £40, Nov., to Lucy Heselrigg and others." So that she was free to marry her second husband, Anthony Hervey, in 1542. As Anthony Hervey married Lucy Heselrigg (or Lisley) he would no doubt (says J. C. Hodgson, Author of the "History of Northumberland") hold some part of Swarland as dower from her husband, an interest which at her death would cease. This was the actual fact, for the Probate Registry at Durham informed me that "Anthony Hervey owned property at Swarland" before he migrated "to Norfolk or Suffolk and Essex." Anthony's name is next found in Gairdner's "Papers," vol. xx., p. 197, as follows:—

"Lisle to Shrewsbury." "Bearer, Anthony Harvye, late one of the men at arms in the King's town of Boulloign, desires to serve in the north under your Lordship, and to sue for the room of Thomas Basforde, who among others was lately slain in Scotland. Begs favour for him. London, March 1545."

Anthony Hervey's position during the war with France as a Man-at-Arms is the same as that he held at Edward the VIth's funeral, and in both the war and the funeral his brother Edmond was present as a Gentleman Pensioner.

Anthony Harvey of Columb John in Devon during this war was appointed "to the charge of provisions" and was authorized "to sign bills." So clearly Anthony Harvey of Columb John and Anthony Hervey of Swarland were two different men, and not one and the same as hitherto supposed.

In 1553 Anthony Hervey of Swarland (Arch. Soc. Antiq., Lond.) was one of the "Menne at Arms" at Edward the VIth's funeral and is placed third among the following: Edmond Harvye and Thomas Harvye, Gentlemen Pensioners; Anthony Harvye, one of the Menne at Arms; John Harvye, Yeoman, and many other relatives. In 1554 Anthony's name appears in the Swarland deeds. In Elizabeth's reign he became a Gentleman Pensioner to the Queen (Davy's "Pedigrees"). In Hervey's (Clarencieux) Visit to Suffolk in 1561 Anthonie, son of William Hervey and Jane Cocket, is quoted, and is the earliest dated pedigree giving his name. The following quotation from Davy's "Pedigrees in Suffolk" sufficiently attests the identity of Anthony as the husband of Lucy Lisley and father of Francis Hervey. It is in manuscript: "Anthony Harvey, son of William Harvey and Jane Cocket, married Lucy Lisley, daughter of Sir Humphrey Lisley, Kt. They had a son Francis," and several other pedigrees to the like effect.

In 1554 Anthony Hervey's name appears in the Felton Deeds (Hodgson's "History of Northumberland"), which in 1578-9 was replaced by that of his nephew Francis Hervey of Cressing Temple in Essex, presumably because Anthony was dead. Lucy the wife would appear by the following note to have next moved to Cambridge, where her son Francis was entered at Corpus Christi College in 1581 at the age of 19. In the "List of the Names, Counties, Times of Admission, Degrees, etc., of all that are known to have been members of Corpus Christi College" (Gough, Camb. 80, Bodleian), dated 1749, I find, "Harvey, Francis (county not stated), admitted 1581. Degree A.M. 1589; afterwards to Emanuel College." The names of the counties given before 1590 never included Cambridgeshire, from which omission it is obvious to infer that a blank under the heading of "County" opposite the name of the men on the Lists always meant the Home County, and thus I conclude that at that time Francis Hervey and his mother were residing in Cambridgeshire. I have, however, failed to find where Anthony Hervey or his wife died or were buried, or where their son Francis was born.

These facts establish beyond doubt that two Anthony Herveys were contemporaneous in the sixteenth century, and that the Anthony Harvey of Columb John in Devon had no son, while Anthony Hervey of Swarland in Northumberland had a son named Francis, who was educated at Cambridge and became Rector of St. Breage in Cornwall and the ancestor of the Harveys of Maên in that county, as the family tradition has recorded and preserved.

Pedigree of the Smythies Family.

In March 1869, Part XI., p. 96 of the "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," a reproduction was published of the Exemplification of Arms and Grant of Crest to George Smithes of the Court of Wike in the Countie of Somerset, gent., dated 1602, and in a footnote it was stated that the original exemplification was then in possession of Francis Smythies, Esq., of Colchester. This document is still in possession of the family, and an effort has been made by Major Raymond Smythies, the present representative of the eldest branch, with the assistance of the late Dr. George Marshall, York Herald, to draw up a complete pedigree of the Smythies family from the time of the above-mentioned grant, and earlier, to the present day.

Unfortunately, before the completion of the pedigree, Dr. Marshall died, and one link in the chain of ancestry at the end of the sixteenth century still remains to be found. The link required is one connecting Rev. William Smythies, M.A., Vicar of Walter-Belchamp, Essex, in 1623, with his elder contemporary George Smythes* the grantee above mentioned, Alderman and Sheriff of London. Dr. Marshall was engaged in making researches with a view to establishing this link when his illness and lamented death put an end, for the time being, to the investigation of the matter.

* In the grant the name is spelt Smithes, but the grantee in his will signs his name Smythes, and this is the spelling evidently usually used at the time, though the name is often found spelt in different ways in the same document. From the time of William Smythies of Gosfields he and his descendants, so far as is known, have themselves always spelt the family name Smythies, though in print and in early documents it is frequently misspelt.

In a letter written in 1904 he says, "No doubt we shall get the missing link sooner or later," and in another letter written about the same time, he writes, "I should think William the brother of the Alderman is our man." This William was a younger brother of the grantee, and is referred to in his father's will, dated 1584 (8, Windsor), as then under age. Since, however, George the elder brother was at this date 21, it is probable that William was not much under age, but even if we allow for a large difference in the age of the brothers there would still be ample time for the younger one to marry and become the father of William Smythies who was appointed Vicar of Belchamp in 1623. Unfortunately the will of William, brother of the Alderman, cannot be found, and that of William, Vicar of Belchamp, makes no mention of his parents, who were probably dead at the time it was made (1652). It may be, however, that the father of the Vicar of Belchamp was not William brother of the Alderman. He may have been the son of John, another and elder brother, or of Thomas, John, or George of the Ubley branch of the family, or of one of the sons of George of Wrington. In the absence of documentary proof the matter for the present must remain uncertain, but it has been thought desirable not to delay any longer placing on record the pedigree of the Smythies family, which has been satisfactorily established from the present day to William Smythies who was Vicar of Belchamp in 1623, and in addition to give that earlier portion which is known, but which at present requires a connecting link to combine it with the rest.

The following circumstances suggest the direction in which a clue may eventually be found to the connecting link :—

1. Elizabeth, daughter of John Smythes of Wrington, married Robert Goodwyn and was a contemporary of William Smythies of Witnesham, who as executor to his will selected his "dear friend Mr. Robert Goodwin."
2. William Smythies of Witnesham, judging from his appointments to St. Mary Matfelon, St. Giles's, Cripplegate, and St. Michael's, Cornhill, evidently had interest in the City of London.
3. William Smythies, Rector of Mile End, Colchester (son of William Smythies of Witnesham), followed two rectors (William and Thomas) of the name of Eyre, and before them Thomas Salwate (or Salwey) was the rector. Appointments to livings being much influenced by family connections these names are significant, for Hester Smythes, daughter of George the Alderman, married Christopher Eyre, and George Smythes himself, in his will (proved 1615), refers to his "cosen Arthur Salwey."
4. The widow of Thomas Smythies of Lavenham (younger son of William Smythies, Rector of Mile End) owned a farm called Wallass's or Wollis's, and this name is the same as the maiden name of the wife of George Smythes the Alderman, which is found spelt Woolhouse, Wollis, etc. It is possible, therefore, that the farm may have been the property of Mrs. George Smythes (afterwards Lady Savage), and have descended from her to Thomas Smythies of Lavenham.
5. William Smythes of Fleet Street, in a will dated 20 November 1657, and proved in London 16 December following (521, Ruthen), made bequests to his son William Smythes, to his son-in-law Robert Tilney, and to his grandchildren John, Sarah, Mary, and Elizabeth Tilney, as well as to his wife Elizabeth. The place of this William in the pedigree is still uncertain, but since his son William was alive in 1657 he can hardly have been the father of William Smythies of Gosfields, unless there has been some error made in the records. That William of Gosfields and the testator were nearly related is, however, strongly suggested by the fact that Isaac Smythies, son of the former, was appointed Vicar of Dagenham on the death of Tilney, 2 October 1663. (Newcourt's Repertorium, p. 203.)

LISTER or LYSTER FAMILY.

I am preparing for publication a History of this Yorkshire family, in which I hope to clothe the dry bones of genealogy as much as possible with anecdotes of interest, family traditions, etc. There will also be in it reproductions of a number of portraits.

The branches of the family of which I shall treat are those located at Gisburne, Westby, Burwell, Manningham, etc., in England, and at Rocksavage, Grange, Lysterfield, etc., co. Roscommon, Ireland.

I should like to get into communication with any genealogists who have made a special study of any branch of this family, or with others who may be interested.

I wish to hear of the whereabouts of any portraits or family relics of interest.

Can anyone inform me if the supposed connection between the Lysters of Rowton Castle, Shropshire, and the Yorkshire family has ever been established, and if the former are now extinct?

Holy Trinity,
Sloane Street, S.W.

(Rev.) H. L. Lyster-Denny.

Reviews.

Caribbeana: Being Miscellaneous Papers relating to the History, Genealogy, Topography, and Antiquities of the British West Indies. Edited by VERE LANGFORD OLIVER, M.R.C.S. Vol. I. London: Mitchell Hughes and Clarke, 140 Wardour Street, W. 1910. Price 30*s.* net.

THIS is a handsome volume in superroyal octavo, being a work originally issued in quarterly parts, edited by Mr. Oliver from the vast collection of genealogical matter which he had collected together during the last twenty years, preceded as it was by the issue of his "History of the Island of Antigua," in three folio volumes, illustrated with maps, portraits, views, and coats of arms, a sterling work of the highest interest and value, and published in 1894. The present Work makes a volume of 450 pp., finely illustrated by a frontispiece in colours of the arms of the Leeward Islands, granted in 1909, and six portraits, seven bookplates, and nine views of churches, tombs, and landscapes; and the whole volume is well printed, and abounds with pedigrees and parish registers, and the literary merit of the whole reflects great credit to the Editor, who has made the volume as interesting as one could wish. It is bound in a royal red cloth cover, and only a limited number has been printed of it.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XVIII., No. 4. October 1910. Virginia Historical Society. Richmond, U.S.A.

THE Randolph Manuscript commences this Part, giving Seventeenth Century Records, chiefly Proclamations during 1682—1684. This article is followed by the Virginia Legislative Papers, and Miscellaneous Colonial and State Documents from 1710 to 1775. The Petitions sent to Virginia in 1662—1665 are given next, chiefly referring to prisoners and orders from the King to the Council, and the Revolutionary Army Orders; and the Virginia Gleanings in England are still continued, dating from 1580 to 1617. The genealogy of the families of Brent, Robinson, Pleasants, and Brooke is still continued, and the Part finishes with a General Index to the volume.

Schweizer Archives für Heraldik: Archives Héraldiques Suisses. No. XXIV. 1910. Zürich: Schulthess and Co.

THIS Swiss Heraldic Magazine is issued quarterly, and to French and Swiss readers in England it would prove very interesting, some of the papers being in German and French, and each fairly illustrated with arms, seals, etc., and two portraits. In this Part of 100 pp. there are 143 engravings, besides four plates of arms, one handsome plate of Baden 1557, and another of 1620, and one of the Church of Lausanne of 1662—1684, as well as sixteen family arms in colours. The whole as a large octavo forms a very interesting Part for its readers and subscribers, and is enclosed in a good paper cover.

The Utah Genealogical and Historical Magazine. Vol. I., No. 4, October 1910. Utah Genealogical Society, 60 East South Temple Street, Salt Lake River, U.S.A.

THIS Part is illustrated by a steel-plate engraving of the portrait of Mr. George Reynolds, and has a good account of him as a Director of the Utah Society by Mr. Adam Bennion, A.B., who closes it by saying: "He found that which God had for him to do, and did it well." A fine encomium for any one to deserve. There is a full genealogy of the Richards family, also of the West families, numbering twenty-four, with 191 children in all, and the descendants of John Williams of Norwich, Connecticut, who left Wales in 1680. Mr. Osborne J. P. Widtsoe has a continuation of his "Introduction to the Study of English Surnames," drawing attention to the making of names by the occupations of many, such as Constable, Marshall (a horse groom), Porter, Chamberlain, Napier (who bought the napkins), Messenger, etc. The street officials, too, being the Crier, Bellman, and Wayt, for policeman or watchman, carrying a trumpet. The Church also founded the names of Parsons, Vicars, Priest, Deacon, Chancellor, Clerk, Sexton, etc.; besides Abbot, Prior, Canon, Monk, Nun, etc.; thus the Church has multiplied the number of surnames generally. The article is interesting. "Extracts from Scottish Registers" give a number of names interesting to Scotch archæologists. The Part concludes with Title and Index to Volume I.

Annals of Two Extinct Families. By Colonel JOHN ALEXANDER TEMPLE. Illustrated by Portraits, etc. London: F. V. White and Co., 17 Buckingham Street, Strand. 1910.

THIS is a well arranged volume of 164 pp. well illustrated by twelve family portraits, two illuminated coats of arms, views of mansions, and two folding pedigrees in facsimile of Henrich Lüders of Hamburg and William Light of Dorsetshire. The book is very interesting, giving as it does a complete narrative of two families now passed away. The Work is well printed, and the portraits are excellently produced as separate plates. Altogether it is well worthy of many subscribers apart from the family interest which relations would feel in its publication.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Vol. XLI., No. 4. October 1910. New York: 226 West 58th Street.

THIS Part is unusually thick, making upwards of 160 pp., including the Title and Index of Names and Subjects for Vol. XLI., and has a frontispiece, the arms in colours of the "King Heraldry," and two other plates, one giving the arms from the Heralds' College in 1611, and Plate III. shewing the ticket for admission to a General Meeting of persons with the surname of King, to celebrate the anniversary in memory of the happy restoration of King Charles II. on the 29th May 1703. It is handsomely executed, being surrounded by eighteen coats of arms besides the Royal Arms in the centre. There is an excellent Paper on the "Origin of the Families of King in Old and New England entitled to bear Arms," written by George Austin Morrison, A.M., LL.B., and taking the King of Eltham in Kent as Daniel King of Walbrook, London, Citizen and Skinner in 1660.

The genealogy of the Barnes family of Easthampton by Richard Wynkoop is next given, and an account of the Pryer family with arms in colours, contributed by Charles Pryer, is interesting, shewing the family to be of Norman-French origin, and holding lands in England from the reign of William the Conqueror. A short account of the New Jersey Hoppers is given, besides the Thacher-Thatcher genealogy, of which a long account is shewn, and a plate also of the Exterior of St. James's Church at Milton Clevedon, Somerset, where the Rev. Peter Thatcher was vicar in 1616—1623, besides a plate of a mural tablet in memory of his son in 1622. He was also the Rector of St. Edmund's, Salisbury, in 1623—1641, of which the church is illustrated by an engraving, and by a plate shewing the tombs of the Rev. Peter Thatcher and that of Francis Dove, who married his widow in 1641; he was his "verie dear friend," and was a merchant of Salisbury and twice Mayor of the City. Mr. J. Henry Lea contributes "Clues from English Archives" from 1660, and a "Digest of Essex Wills" is likewise given by William Gilbert, and an account of the Willoughbys of Connecticut by the Rev. A. W. H. Eaton, D.C.L., follows. The whole Part is full of interest, and closes the volume excellently with the usual genealogical Notices of Books.

The Buckeridges of Basildon and their Estates.

(See also "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Fourth Series, Vol. IV., pp. 50—55.)

The preceding Pedigree is the completion of the Basildon branch of the Buckeridge Family, and the following notes are intended to shew how the property, greater part of which was acquired by the family in 1522, was diverted from its rightful owners, and also to rectify an error made in a Pedigree given in a former number wherein it was stated this branch to be extinct.

Extract from the will of John Buckeridge of Basildon, dated 6 January 1590 :—

"Item whereas by my deed indented bearing date the 10th day of June in the 30th year of the reign of our Sovereign Lady Elizabeth the Queen's Majesty that now is, where in the said deed it is covenanted and granted by me the said John Buckeridge unto Thomas Pleydall of Shrivenham in the said county, gent., in consideration of a marriage to be had and solemnized between my son John Buckeridge, now of . . . ., late deceased, and Katherine Pleydall, one of the daughters of the said Thomas Pleydall, that after the decease of me the said John Buckeridge and Annis my wife, all my lands, tenements, and hereditaments in Basildon and Ashampstead aforesaid in the said county or in any other place elsewhere within this realm of England, should be to the use of John Buckeridge my son aforesaid and to the heirs male of the body of the said John Buckeridge my son lawfully begotten, and for default of such heirs male unto the use of the right heirs of me the said John Buckeridge for ever. Wherefore I the said John Buckeridge for default of all those heirs expressed on the body of my said son John Buckeridge lawfully begotten as hereafter it might or should happen. Item I give, grant, will and bequeath all those my foresaid lands, tenements, and hereditaments in Basildon and Ashampstead aforesaid in the said county or in any other place elsewhere within this realm of England unto my son-in-law Thomas Buckeridge and Margaret his wife my daughter and to the heirs male on their two bodies lawfully begotten."

This Thomas Buckeridge, who was of Bowdon, Pangbourne (his will was proved in the year 1607), married his cousin Margaret at Basildon 17 January 1585-6. They had several sons and daughters, from one of which, John, is descended the Pangbourne branch, long settled at Bowdon.

A further extract from John Buckeridge's will is as follows :—

"For default of heirs male on the bodies of the said Thomas Buckeridge and Margaret his wife lawfully begotten the remainder over of all those my foresaid lands, etc., in Basildon and Ashampstead, etc., unto my brother Richard Buckeridge and his heirs male on his body lawfully begotten."

Richard Buckeridge is supposed to have been of Ipsden in Oxfordshire, whose will was proved in the year 1617.

Any expectations the Pangbourne family may have entertained were doomed by the following :—

"Item whereas by my deed of gift bearing date the 20th day of June in the . . year of the reign of Our Sovereign Lady Elizabeth the Queen's Majesty that now is I the said John Buckeridge did give and grant unto my said son John Buckeridge, late deceased, all my goods, chattels, and cattles, except certain as in the said deed it doth appear, now my said son John Buckeridge did by his last will and testament leave all those foresaid goods, chattels, and cattles before by me given unto his son Thomas Buckeridge upon condition that if the said Thomas Buckeridge his son did depart this mortal life without heirs of his body lawfully begotten that then all those said goods, chattels, and cattles should revert and come to me again and them to enjoy as in my first estate, now notwithstanding my said son John Buckeridge his last will and testament that if the said Thomas Buckeridge, son to my son John Buckeridge, do live until 21 years of age or until the day of his marriage Item then I do give grant and release the reversion of all those said goods, chattels, and cattles unto the said Thomas Buckeridge, son to my said son John Buckeridge, and to his heirs, executors, administrators, and assignes for ever, by this my last will and testament."

The grandson, Thomas, was baptized at Basildon 4 May 1589, his father being buried there on the 10th September of the same year. He was aged 2 years and 10 days at the time of the inquisition on his grandfather. He married at Chieveley, Berks, Elizabeth, daughter of John Pocock of Bradley Court in this village, by whom he had a large family. His will, which is dated the 25th December 1652, was proved at Westminster 28 June 1653 by his widow. By this will he entailed his estates on his five sons and their male issue, in order of age, namely, Thomas, Richard, John, William, and Isaac, with this clause : " Provided also further and my will is that if in case my said son Thomas die leaving behind him no son living at the time of his decease that then the next Reversioner by virtue of these present shall pay unto the daughters of my said son Thomas within the space of twenty years to be accounted from the time of his entry one thousand pounds of lawful English money." He had bought in 1650 an estate named Combe in Brightwalton for £1845 from his brother-in-law Richard Howse (the husband of his wife's sister Grace Pocock). This he settled on his third son Richard, Rector of Kingsclere, and bequeathed unto his fourth son William all the estate and term of years he had to run in a farm called Rainsford in the parish of Thatcham. His eldest son Thomas, who married the daughter and heir of Robert Clarke, gent., of Basildon, left issue two sons, Thomas and John, and three daughters. He died in the year 1687, leaving no will. His eldest son Thomas succeeded him, and by Mary Head his wife had an only son Thomas, who died in his father's lifetime, aged 20. The other son, John, married Frances Percival of Henley-on-Thames, and by her had an only son John. She married, as her second husband, Fulke Salisbury, by whom she had a daughter Mary, married to Charles Blandy of Bread Street. This Charles Blandy was a brother of John Blandy of Purley in Chaddleworth and an uncle to the notorious and unfortunate Mary Blandy.

Thomas Buckeridge, whose will is dated 29 May 1713, notwithstanding the will of his grandfather, passed over his nephew John Buckeridge, the rightful heir, and with the exception of an annuity left in trust for him, to his " loving friends James Stroud of Bradfield, Esq., and Henry Wilder of Nunhide in the parish of Sulham, gent.," left everything to his cousin's son Thomas Buckeridge of Speen. The latter had married Thomas Buckeridge's niece and sister of Jethro Tull, the writer on agriculture. This occasioned a Chancery Suit, and John Buckeridge the nephew was non-suited at the Berkshire Assizes in 1714 by what purported to be an old deed produced by Thomas Buckeridge the legatee. It was a marriage settlement said to have been made by Thomas Buckeridge the grandfather on the marriage of his eldest son with Elizabeth Clarke, and the Judge said, after making this deed he had no power to entail the property as he had done by will on his five sons and their male issue.

Thomas Buckeridge, now the possessor of the property, did not live long to enjoy his possessions, for he died in August of the same year leaving no issue, his two surviving brothers John and William also dying without issue in 1724 and 1727. Charles Blandy, who had married Mary Salisbury, the half-sister of John Buckeridge, who had died September 1718 s.p., now claimed the property on behalf of his wife. Another suit ensued, and in the year 1727, in the depositions of witnesses on behalf of Thomas Buckeridge of Church Oakley, Mrs. Dorothy Allibone (formerly the wife of her cousin Thomas Buckeridge of Speen) testifies to her late husband having forged the marriage settlement produced by which John Buckeridge was non-suited, and "sayeth that on the Saturday before the Assizes Thomas Knapp, an Attorney, was at Basildon, when she said she heard her cousin John Buckeridge the Plaintiff would have the estate, then ye said Mr. Knapp answered he held not for that there was a snake in ye grass which Defendant did not know of." She further particularizes how the deed was forged. The right heir was now Thomas Buckeridge of Church Oakley, son of the Rev. Richard Buckeridge, Rector of Kingsclere, by Martha, daughter of William Wythens of Grove, Wantage.

"The Demurrer of Thomas Buckeridge, gent., and Answer to Bill of Complaint of Charles Blandy, Citizen and Merchant Taylor of London, and Mary his wife, Complainants, 1727."

"And this Defendant saith that he this Defendant is the grandson to the said testator Thomas Buckeridge who made his will in one thousand six hundred and fifty-two, which said Thomas Buckeridge had issue Thomas Buckeridge his eldest son, Richard his second son, who was this Defendant's father, John Buckeridge his third son, William Buckeridge his fourth son, and Isaac Buckeridge his fifth son; which said John Buckeridge the third son had issue three sons, Thomas, John, and William, who are all dead as this Defendant believes without issue. That the said William Buckeridge had issue one son William Buckeridge, now living, who hath issue divers sons and daughters as this Defendant believes and hath heard. And that the said Isaac is also dead without issue. And this Defendant further saith that the said Thomas Buckeridge the eldest son of this Defendant's grandfather had issue two sons only, to wit, Thomas Buckeridge who dyed in the year 1713 without issue surviving him, and John Buckeridge who departed this life long since, leaving issue one son John Buckeridge, the Complainant Mary's brother, by the mother only, who is also dead as Defendant believes without issue. That this Defendant is both the eldest son and heir male of Richard Buckeridge who was the second son of the said testator Thomas Buckeridge."

Thomas Buckeridge of Church Oakley recovered the estates and died possessed of them and was buried at Basildon 12 October 1743, unmarried. His only brother William, Rector of Stoke Charity, had died without issue in the year 1715. The only male heir was at the time of the above Demurrer William Buckeridge of Little Hungerford in the parish of Hampstead Norris, and although he left issue two sons at his death in 1736, William and Isaac, who are both named in his will, his cousin ignores them and settles the properties on his sister's son George Noyes, and so they continued in the Noyes family. How they were eventually disposed of it would be interesting to learn.

"By Indenture between Thomas Buckeridge of Church Oakley in the county of Southampton, gentleman, of the one part, and George Noyes the younger of Andover in the county of Southampton, gent., nephew of the said Thomas Buckeridge, and eldest son of George Noyes of Andover aforesaid and Sarah his wife, deceased, one of the sisters of the said Thomas Buckeridge, of the other part, in consideration of the natural love and affection which he bore to George Noyes the younger, his nephew, and for his further advancement he settled premises at Combe, etc., and by Indenture, dated 27 April 1736, he had the uses of a recovery intended to be suffered inter alia of lands at Basildon; said Thomas mentioned his nephew George Noyes, and Thomas Buckeridge by his will ratified the aforesaid settlements by him made of his lands at Basildon on his dutiful and faithful nephew George Noyes of Andover in the county of Southampton, gentleman."

The following memorandum is written on the back of a letter which is addressed to Mr. I. Buckeridge, Thatcham, Berks, bearing date 29 February 1792, and is supposed to have been made by Isaac Buckeridge, as the writing corresponds with that of his (first) will made 5 July 1791. (The notes are incorrect in several points.)

BASILDON ESTATE.

"Thomas Buckeridge enjoyed the estate, who had five brothers; it is supposed the above-named Thomas Buckeridge attempted or cut off the entailment and gave the estate to one Noice of Andover, who was married to Thomas Buckeridge's sister."

"That time a Thomas Buckeridge of Basildon, supposed uncle of the above-named Thomas, commenced a suit at law against the Buckeridges of Speenhamland, and he recovered the estate by a trial at Reading Assizes. My grandfather William Buckeridge was at the trial, and the above-named Thomas Buckeridge of Basildon said to him, 'William, now the estate is in its right line, and the estate is thine as soon as the breath is out of my body,' but he cut off the entailment or attempted so to do and gave it to one Noice of Andover who had married his sister."

"The Basildon Buckeridge had five brothers; my grandfather was a son of one of them, it may be about the fourth. My grandfather was married at Old Basing in Hampshire, as my father says he went there to prove the marriage or birth of him, not certain which, and says grandfather was born at Aldermaston, and that Buckeridge was uncle or first-cousin to him. Basildon Buckeridge died about fifty years (ago); my father was at the burial and he said he was the right heir to Basildon estate."

Gundred, dau. of William the Conqueror.*

For the information and delectation of the descendants of this royal personage, of whom there are many thousands to-day, here, in the sister Isle, and throughout the Empire, I opine that they will welcome an account of the original place of sepulture and the present gîte of their illustrious and Royal Eponym, likewise a description of the beautiful marble tombstone erected to her memory, miraculously recovered, and now safeguarded for all time. (Gough's "Sepulchral Monuments," where on p. 1 appears a plate of the head-piece of Gundred's monument.) Photographs of the interior of the chapel, tomb, cysts, etc., are shewn on the following page.

Gundred was the fifth daughter of William the Conqueror (by his wife Maude, whom he married in 1053 and was buried at Caen, 1083, in the Nunnery of the Holy Trinity she had founded), and was married to William, Earl of Warren in Normandy, and first Earl of Surrey in England. (It was her mother who wrought the Bayeux Tapestry which depicts figures pointing to a flaming star, which is thought to be a representation of Halley's Comet.)

A long way down the line, I am one of her issue through the marriage of her daughter Gundred, who (as the widow of Roger de Bellamont, 2nd Earl of Warwick) was married to Sir William de Lambert (deriving from Lambert, Count of Mons and Louvain, born circa 940 A.D., ancestor of the illustrious Lambertini Family of Bologna, whose descendant, Prosper Laurence Lambertini, was elected Pope 17 August 1740 as Benedict XIV.). Sir William de Lambert was ancestor of the Lamberts of Calton in the Craven, Yorkshire, of which line Margaret, daughter of John Lambert, was married to John Hewetson of York (born circa 1498), progenitor of the "Hewetsons of Ireland." Likewise I have descent from the illustrious "Rollo" (baptized 912, died 931), the great Duke of Normandy, whose fifth descendant was William the Conqueror, the concatenation being through the famous families of "Clifford," and "Drew" of Devon, of which latter Catherine Drew was married circa 1756 to the Rev. John Hewetson of Suirville, County Kilkenny.

[*] Communicated by JOHN HEWETSON, Esq.

Therefore, being interested in such eponymical historical associations, I naturally admire and revere whatever perpetuates the memories of the illustrious dead, particularly those relating to Gundred and her Earl, and so in the spring of 1903 I visited the town of Lewes and the adjoining parish of Southover in the county of Sussex, and Reigate, county of Surrey, to regard in the first place, with reverential awe, the recumbent, elaborately carved, foliated marble monument of the Countess, covering both the ashes of herself and the Earl; and in the second place to inspect and muse upon a former castle-home of the Earl.

Gundred's father was buried in St. Stephen's Abbey, Caen, in 1087, and as a most remarkable and extraordinary scene was enacted at his sepulture, I here give the account, first referring to a very singular custom which obtained in Rollo's time, and for which the islanders of Jersey have much concern. In case of encroachment and invasion of property, or in any other operation and violence requiring a prompt remedy, the aggrieved party need do no more than call upon the name of the Duke, in the presence of a third party, and falling on one knee, though at never so great a distance, thrice repeating aloud "Ha-Ro" (à l'aide mon Prince!), and immediately the aggressor was, at his peril, to forbear attempting anything further. This is the famous "Clameur de Haro," subsisting in practice even when Rollo was no more, praised and commented upon by all who have written on the Norman laws. A notable example of its virtue and power was seen about one hundred and seventy years after, at the funeral of William the Conqueror (her father), when in confidence thereof a private man and a subject durst oppose the burying of his body. It seems that in order to build the great Abbey of St. Stephen at Caen, where he intended to lie after his decease, the Conqueror had caused several houses to be pulled down for enlarging the area, and among them one whose owner had received no satisfaction for his loss. The son of that person, Ascelin Fitz-Arthur, observing the grave to be dug on that very spot of ground which had been the site of his father's house, came boldly into the assembly and forbad them, in the name of Rollo, to bury the dead there.

Paulus Æmylius, who relates the story, says that he addressed the company in these words: "He who oppressed kings by his arms has been my oppressor, and has kept me under a continual fear of death. Since I have outlived him who has injured me, I mean not to quit him now he is dead; the ground where you are going to lay this man is mine, and I affirm that none may in justice bury their dead in ground which belongs to another. If after he is gone, force and violence are still used to detain my right from me, I appeal to Rollo, the founder and father of our nation, who though dead lives in his laws. I take refuge in those laws, owning no authority above them." This brief speech spoken in the presence of the deceased King's own son, Prince Henry, afterwards our King Henry I., wrought its effect. The Ha-Ro was respected, the man received immediately sixty shillings for the grave, and afterwards had compensation made him for his wrongs, and all opposition ceasing, the body of the dead King was suffered to be laid in the grave. It is in the writer's personal knowledge that not many years ago this "Clameur de Haro" was enacted in the public square at St. Heliers.

William the Conqueror granted to William de Warren the ancient parish town of Conningsborough, on the banks of the River Don, five miles from Doncaster, together with its old castle (immortalized by Sir Walter Scott in "Ivanhoe"), which belonged to King Harold, with all its privileges and jurisdiction. William de Warren derived also from Herfastus, brother to Gunnora, wife of Richard, Duke of Normandy, and thus allied in blood to the King, under whom he had a chief command at the Battle of Hastings. He was, therefore, one of the most illustrious personages who accompanied the Duke of Normandy in his conquest of England.

William de Warren had also granted to him the town of Lewes, the castle of which he rebuilt and made it his chief residence. This splendid structure, situated upon an eminence, covered an area of 790 feet in length and 396 feet in width, and had lofty walls. In 1078 the Earl and his wife Gundred founded a Cluniac Priory at Southover, adjoining Lewes, in which both were buried. Gundred died 27 May

1085 and the Earl 20 June 1088. In the course of the centuries which followed both tombstones disappeared from the Priory grounds, but in 1774 William Burrell, Esq., an antiquary, discovered Gundred's in Isfield Church (seven miles from Lewes), over the remains of Edward Shirley, Esq. (died 1550), whose father John was Clerk of the Kitchen to King Henry VII., and had it removed on the 2nd Oct. 1775 to St. John's Church, Southover, the nearest place to its original site, and placed inside and at the south-west corner of the church, where, until 1847, it was to be seen on the floor within a pew, with the following inscription over it :—

Within this pew stands the Tombstone of GUNDRADA, daughter of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, & wife of WILLIAM the first
EARL OF WARREN, which having been deposited over her remains in the Chapter-house of Lewes Priory, and lately discovered in Isfield Church, was removed to this place, at the expense of WILLIAM BURRELL, Esq^{re}
A.D. 1775.

Two years later another antiquary interested himself in perpetuating the memory of the Earl, as set forth in the following paragraph.

To his other possessions he added (not by way of grant however) Reigate and its Castle in the county of Surrey, and Castle Acre, Norfolk, where the Countess died. In the year 1777 Richard Barnes of Reigate, Attorney-at-Law, who occupied the site of the castle there, by his singular attention to what existed of this venerable monument of antiquity, preserved the few traces that remained of its pristine grandeur and importance; and the repairs being completed out of his own purse he put a Latin inscription over the gateway of the castle. This the writer found in 1901 to shew but few signs of obliteration, and is as follows :—

Ne
WILLI COMITIS WARREN
Veteris hujusce lôci icolae
Fidique libertatum nostrarum vindicis
Memoria
Cum ipso Castello
intercideret
Propriis R. B. impensis
H. P. E.
Anno MDCCLXXVII.

This appears on the front of the wall. To read the translation one passes through the gateway, and on the back of the same wall and the same distance from the arch there is—

WILLIAM, EARL WARREN, who in old days dwelt here,
and was a loyal Champion of our Liberties from perishing like his own Castle

at his own expense erected this Gateway
1777.

[Capital letters are employed throughout in both inscriptions.]

So far I have dealt only with Gundred's tombstone (that of the Earl having never been found); now I have to speak of the mortal remains of both.

In the year 1845, during excavations through the Priory grounds for the South Coast Railway, the leaden chests containing the remains of the Earl and his Countess were discovered, and deposited temporarily beneath Gundred's tombstone in the south-west corner of St. John's Church, Southover, as above mentioned, where they remained until 1847. In this year a beautiful Norman Chapel was erected by public subscription, adjoining the present vestry and chancel.

Previous to re-interring the remains in the Norman chapel both cysts were opened to ascertain if there were any contents, which was found to be the case. New cysts were made and used, and the ancient ones preserved and placed in two recessed arches in the southern wall; they are both in a splendid state of preservation, except that of the Earl, it having lost much of its leaden casing. Across the upper part of the one in the right arch is the name GVNDRADA in relievo, whilst upon that in the left arch appears WILL [sic] only, the remainder of the name having disappeared with the lead. In the recess of the northern wall, in which is the doorway from the church, was placed the inscribed tablet put up in 1775 over Gundred's monument, leaving out the words "within this pew stands," to accord with its present position.

Gundred's tombstone is of black marble, five feet five inches long, two feet broad at head and twenty-two inches at foot; it is finely sculptured with foliage and birds round its edge and lies east and west in the centre of the chapel.

The inscription is in Leonine verse, and contains a turn of sentiment unusual in monastic epitaphs. The first line apprises her illustrious descent, the second alludes to her merit in first introducing into England the Cluniac Order, and reform and perfecting of the Benedictine. Then follows a beautiful allusion to the character of the two sisters Martha and Mary in the Gospel, with the happy application and the contrast between them. The poet, concealing the blameable part of Martha's attachment to the world, ingeniously represents her worldly-mindedness as directed to and governed by the best views, those of providing for the necessaries of life and relieving the distressed. Enough remains of the third line to shew that the comparison gains here, that the first word is the name of Martha, and that her example was followed by Gundred, in charitable distributions, whilst in her devotion she copied the example of the other sister, who sat at Jesus' feet attentive to His doctrine.

The inscription on her tomb (each letter being an ornamental capital), as follows, runs round the borders of the marble and down the middle:—

Stirps, Gundreda, ducum, decus evi, nobile germen,
Intulit ecclesiis Anglorum balsama morum:
Mar[tis or tha] . . . .
. . . . vit miseris, fuit ex pietate Maria.
Pars obiit Martha, superest pars magna Marie.
O pie Pancrati, testis pietatis & equi,
Te facit heredem, tu clemens suscipe matrem.
Sexta Kalendarum Junii lux obvia carnis
Ifregit alabastu . . . .

[The lower end of the stone is somewhat broken.]

The chaste and elegantly-decorated floor of the chapel displays the shield of the Earl—Chequy or and azure.

In the church, near the door of the chapel, a Visitors' Book is kept, in which contributions are recorded for the upkeep of both monument and chapel. Upon glancing through the book one may observe the following entries :—

1902, March 7.	C. W. and E. J. Purves, Pointfield House, Kelso, Scotland.
„ April 7.	G. A. Waller (De Warren), Prior Park, Ireland. [Mr.]
„ May 10.	Selina Waller (de Warrenne), Prior Park, Ireland. [Mrs.]
„ Aug. 21.	M. S. Hanchel, Charleston, S. Car., U.S.A.
1903, April 22.	Amelia Gurney, 69 Ennismore Gardens, London, descendant of Earl de Warren and Gundred his wife, through marriage of their daughter Editha with Gerard de Gournay ; and
1903, April 29.	John Hewetson, Bayswater, London, descendant of Gundred's daughter, wife of Sir William de Lambert.

In concluding this notice I may add that in the "Church Times" of 29 Jan. 1909 can be seen a long and interesting account by "Viator" of the descendants of William the Conqueror.

Pedigree of Herries of Maidenpaup in Galloway.*

Note.—The "Herries Peerage Case Minutes of Evidence," frequently cited as an authority in this pedigree, were printed by order of the House of Lords during the hearing (1848—1858) of the successful claim of Mr. Constable-Maxwell to the dignity of Lord Herries of Terregles. The charters relating to Maidenpaup, of which copies are printed in these minutes, were stated in evidence to be the property of its then owner Mr. Coston.

Arms.—The seal (illustrated in Sir W. Fraser's "Book of Carlaverock," i. 586, ii. 528) of Archibald Herries of Maidenpaup, appended to a document of 1561, shews a mullet between three hérissons or hedgehogs.

I. Roger Herries is named as youngest of the three brothers of Andrew, "sone and apperande ar to Harbert (1st) Lord Heris" in this Andrew's contract of marriage dated 25 November 1495 (Fraser's "Douglas Book," iii. 149). He must have been then considerably under the age of 21, for Andrew (born about 1477) was not at that time of "lauchfull nor parfite age" (Fraser's "Book of Carlaverock," ii. 451). The Lords of Council ordered, 26 June 1517, provision to be made from Lord Herries's lands for Elizabeth "dochter of umquhile Andro (2nd) lord heris," on her complaint that her "Eme (uncle) Roger heris . . . . tutor" to her "brodir ye (3rd) lord heris," then of "tender age," had refused to allow "ane pennyworth" for her support ("Herries Peerage Case Minutes," p. 112, No. 67). Vedast Neilson personally gave sasine, 6 August 1518, in accordance with a charter of his, of the lands of Roundfell in his lordship of Maidenpaup to Roger, brother-german of the late Lord Herries, Bartholomew and Florentius Herries being among the witnesses; and a Crown Charter of 5 June 1520 grants to "Rogero herys fratri germano quondam . . . . Andree domini herys" and his heirs the lands of Maidenpaup in the stewartry of Kirkcudbright, resigned by the same Vedast Neilson (ibid., pp. 113, 114, Nos. 69, 70). The Lords of Council ordered, 23 July 1529, "Roger hereis of Madinpap" to cease from molesting "William (3rd) lord heris" and his mother, on their complaint that he and his accomplices were daily spoiling and oppressing their tenants on the lands of Terregles, putting and holding them in pits (prisons) and fetters, reiving their goods and laying their ground waste (ibid., p. 113, No. 68). Roger Herries probably died about Martinmas 1536. He was succeeded by—

II. Archibald Herries. A "Responde Book" has an entry of 1 December 1536 concerning money due to the Crown for the sasine given to Archibald "Hereis" of the nine merk lands of "Madinpape . . . . existentium in manibus regis termini Sancti Martini ultimo preteriti sasina non recuperata" (Exch. Rolls of Scot., xvi. 617). William, 3rd Lord Herries, had, 28 April 1543 (Reg. Mag. Sig. under date), a Crown Charter of Reidcastle in the stewartry of Kirkcudbright for himself, Katherine Kennedy his wife, and the heirs male of their marriage, which failing (as happened), for his nearest heirs male. On 14 March 1561-2 Archibald "Heres de Madinpaupe," as "legittimus et propinquior heres . . . . quondam Willelmi domini heres filii patrui sui," had sasine of Reidcastle, "Dauid Heres in Conneving" being among the witnesses. The Crown precept (recited at length in the instrument of sasine, "Herries Peerage Case Minutes," p. 116, No. 72) twice states that William (3rd) Lord Herries was son of the uncle (i.e., Andrew, 2nd Lord) of Archibald Herries, who is wrongly called by Sir W. Fraser ("Book of Carlaverock," i. 586) brother of this 3rd Lord. Archibald "Hereis de Madinpaup ac heres masculus quondam Willielmi domini Hereis," granted Reidcastle, by Charter dated 22 March 1561-2 (recited in the Crown Charter of confirmation of 17 August 1562—see "Herries Peerage Case Minutes," p. 39, No. 21), to Sir John Maxwell of Terregles and his wife Agnes Herries for a sum of money paid him in his "magna et cognita necessitate." A Crown Charter of 1 May 1567 confirms a Charter (dated 28 April 1567, recited in the confirmation, ibid., p. 117, No. 73) of Archibald Herries selling the six pound land of Maidenpaup to his "filio et heredi apparenti georgio heris et Jonete gordoun ejus conjugi," and the heirs of their marriage, for a price paid him in his "magna urgente et cognita necessitate," and directing David "Hereis in madinpaup" and his (David's) son Thomas to give them sasine.

* Communicated by David C. Herries, Esq., 53 Warwick Square, London, S.W., who would be glad of any corrections or additions to this pedigree.

Archibald Herries had issue :—

1. George, of whom later (No. III.).
2. John. On 22 January 1591-2 George "Hereis of Madinpap," "Johnne Hereis, brother of the said George," and "Iohnne Hereis his son," found surety that they would not harm "Mathew Hereis in Larglanglie." (P.C. Reg. iv., 569.)
3. Roger. On 22 June 1593 "Walter Hereis of Knokinchynnoch" became surety that "Mathew Hereis in Lochrutongait" would not harm "George Hereis in Madinpap, Johnne and Archibald Hereissis his sons, Johnne and Roger Hereissis, his brothers," and others. (Ibid., v., 594.)

Archibald Herries had perhaps other issue. The testament (dated 30 January 1604), inventory, etc., of Robert Herries, merchant, burgess of Edinburgh, who died 1 February 1604, given up by his relict Margaret Dickson, David Dickson, "Comptar Wardane" in his Majesties "Cunyie house" (Mint), and others, were confirmed at Edinburgh, 3 July 1604. Among his debtors named in the inventory were . . . . Herries of Mabie, Robert Herries in Crochmoir, Roger Herries, burgess of Dumfries, and his natural son Alexander, and John Herries, "minister at Newbotill." The testator left legacies to the following of his own name : to his servant Robert, son to John Herries his younger brother ; to the said John, his youngest brother ; to . . . ., daughter to Roger Herries, his brother ; to . . . ., daughter to the said Roger (who as his brother and burgess of Dumfries was served his heir special "in dimidia parte tenementi in burgo de Edinburgh," 25 February 1604 ; see Edin. Retours, No. 124) ; to Jonet Herries, his sister, for a help to her and her bairns ; to Margaret Herries, his eldest sister ; to Margaret Herries, his sister natural, to help her and her bairns ; and to his spouse Margaret, who died 23 January 1607, as appears from the confirmation at Edinburgh, 7 May 1607, of her will (dated 28 December 1606), inventory, etc., given up by her brother-german David Dickson. Most of her legatees were children of her sister Marion, wife of Umquhile James "Bartane," the only one of her husband's name being John Herries, described as Minister of Newbattle.

Were the John and Roger mentioned as his brothers in the will of this Robert Herries identical with the two younger sons of Archibald Herries mentioned above ? John is a common name, but the combination of John and Roger (a less common one, but borne by the founder of the Maidenpaup family) suggests an affirmative answer to this question. If they were, then Robert, the Edinburgh burgess, and his sisters named in his will were also Archibald's children.*

* Robert Herries, described as son of John Herries, minister in Newbattle (which John is named in the inventory of Robert Herries, the Edinburgh burgess, and in the will of his widow Margaret), was apprenticed to James Lamb, tailor in Edinburgh, 15 January 1600. (Edin. Reg. of Apprentices, Scottish Record Soc.) Was he identical with the Robert described in the will of Robert the burgess in 1604 as his servant and as son of his youngest brother John ? If so, then this brother John was the minister of Newbattle and therefore probably not the John, younger son of Archibald Herries of Maidenpaup, who is not described as a minister in the Privy Council Registers in 1592 and 1593. John and Robert, however, are both very common names, and Robert Herries, the burgess, does not call his brother John a minister in his will. (For John Herries, minister of Ormiston 1576, and of Newbattle 1583, see Scott's "Fasti," i., pt. i., 293, 300, where, however, his parentage is not given.)

III. George Herries of Maidenpaup and Terraughtie and his wife Janet Gordon bought Maidenpaup in 1567 from his father Archibald as above related. He signed, 29 September 1604, as "george herisz off tarrawchtie," a charter granting the six pound land of Maidenpaup to "Joanni hereis meo filio et heredi apparenti et Elizabethe Makclellane ejus conjugi" in conjunct fee and to the heirs male of the said John whatsoever "cognomen et arma de hereis gerentibus," in completion of a marriage contract (the marriage being solemnized immediately afterwards) between himself on behalf of his son John on the one part and William "M^c^clellane de balmangane . . . . pro elizabetha m^c^clellane ejus filia" on the other part, executed in 1589 and registered "in libris commissariatus de Kirkcudbright." ("Herries Peerage Case Minutes," p. 119, No. 74.) On 14 December 1615 he, in fulfilment of a contract of the same date between himself as "patrem ac administratorem" of his son George (John is probably meant) on the one part, taking upon himself the onus for his said son, and William "Hereis apparentem de Madinpape," his grandson on the other part, granted the nine merk land of Maidenpaup to the said William "Hereis meo nepoti et heredibus suis masculis cognomen et Arma de Hereis gerentibus," John "Hereis in Brakothe," and Archibald "Hereis in Bogrie," were witnesses to this charter (Ibid., p. 120, No. 75), which was granted without the royal assent for a crown charter of 26 December 1615 grants to Charles Maxwell "de Tarrachtie" the six pound (six pounds and nine merks were the same value) lands of Maidenpaup "que fuerunt Georgii Herreis de Tarrauchtie de rege tente per servitium warde et regi devenerunt ratione recognitionis ob alienationem absque regis consensu factam." (Reg. Mag. Sig. under date.) Another crown charter of 17 February 1624 grants the nine merk land of Maidenpaup resigned by George "Hereis de Terauchtie" to William Maxwell of Kirkhouse. (Ibid.) Notwithstanding these last two charters the Herries family still possessed Maidenpaup in 1629.

Terraughtie (in the parish of Troqueer and Stewartry of Kirkcudbright) so often mentioned had once belonged to an earlier George Herries of Mabie (of his family the writer hopes to give a pedigree in a future number) but had been seized with Mabie and other lands of his by the Crown and sold to the Earl of Bothwell, 20 October 1506 (ibid.), for a sum of money making up the amount of certain fines that had been imposed upon him. Most of these lands were eventually regained by the Mabie family, but Terraughtie was sold by Lord Bothwell in 1539 (ibid. under date of 25 July) to William, 3rd Lord Herries, and it was probably as a tenant under the Lords Herries that George Herries of Maidenpaup occupied it. He was most likely the "George Herreis of Terrawchtie," who was "spaired being too young," when the rest of the hostages of John, Master of Maxwell, were hanged in 1548 by the English when he deserted them for the Scottish side to gain his wife Agnes suo jure Lady Herries. (See the "Historical Memoirs," purporting to be an abridgement by one "J. P." of Memoirs composed about 1656 by John, 7th Lord Herries, later 3rd Earl of Nithsdale, printed by the Abbotsford Club in 1836, pp. 22-23; for this story of the hostages see also the "Scots Peerage," ed. Sir J. B. Paul, iv., 409-10.) The charters mentioned above shew that George Herries of Maidenpaup was certainly living in 1615 and apparently in 1624, so he would have been no doubt very youthful in 1548. He was awarded compensation in 1597 for the burning of "Tarauchtrie" by the "Goodman of Netherbye" and others. ("Border Papers," ii., 308.)

He had issue, as far as has been discovered :—

1. John, of whom presently (No. IV.).
2. Archibald. On 17 April 1597 "George Herreis of Madinpap . . . ., Johnne Herreis his eldest son . . . ., and Archibald Herreis also his son," found surety that they would not harm "David Herreis of Watterheid." (P.C. Reg. v., 678-9.) John "Abircrombie servitor to Patrik, Earl of Orknay," complained to the Privy Council, 19 November 1612, that on the previous 29 October as he was going along the street of Dumfries to his "ludgeing house" after supper between 8 and 9 at even, Archibald, "son of George Hereis of Terrauchtie," whom he "nathir knew nor yit had ever offendit," waylaid him and quietly pulling out his sword let him pass, and then "behind his bak feirslie set upoun him," wounded him and would have murdered him "but for the providence of God and his own better defence." Archibald Herries was denounced rebel for not appearing to answer the charge. In January 1613, however, he was supplicating the Council to be "putt to liberty," and on 21 January 1613 he found surety that he would keep "our Souerane Lordis peace," and appear before the Council on six days warning to answer to anything "layed to his charge." (P.C. Reg. ix., 491, 537-8, 544.)

IV. John Herries of Maidenpaup. All that is known of him and his wife Elizabeth, daughter of William Maclellan of Balmangan (for whose pedigree, though she is not herself mentioned, see the "Scots Peerage," ed. Sir J. B. Paul, title Maclellan, Lord Kirkcudbright, v. 270), has been already related in the accounts of his father George and his uncles John and Roger. He died before 15 May 1629. His son—

V. William Herries had a charter of Maidenpaup in 1615 from his grandfather George Herries as related above. On 15 May 1629 "Willielmus Herreis filius legittimus quondam Joannis Herreis de Madinpape" sold to James Neilson, merchant burgess of Dumfries, and his heirs, the six pound land of Maidenpaup "in parochia de Suthick et infra senesculatum de Kirkcudbryt" to be held of the granter and his heirs whose immediate superiors were the King and his successors ("Herries Peerage Case Minutes," p. 122, No. 76.)

Whether William Herries left issue has not been discovered. He married Agnes Johnstone, who was denounced rebel by the Privy Council, 22 Nov. 1627, on the report of the Presbytery of Dumfries that she had been excommunicated on failure to answer to a charge of Papistry. The Council, 22 January 1628, ordered the Sheriff of Dumfriesshire to convocate the lieges in arms and apprehend "Agnes Johnstoun, spous to William Hereis of Madinpalp," and others for failing to answer to the same charge. These people, however, "Agnes Johnstoun, spous of William Hereis of Madinpaup," amongst them, were still at large in the following March, and were being "furneist with all things necessar and comfortable unto thame to thair encouragement to continew in thair Popish opiniouns and errours." The Council ordered, 28 December 1628, various acts against Papists to be put in force against them. (P.C. Reg., 2nd Ser., ii., 128, 202, 263-4, 535.)

ERRATUM.

Fuller Pedigree ("Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Fourth Series, Vol. III., p. 282). George Fuller (who married Catherine Austin) is shewn as son of William Fuller (by his wife Elinor Hodder). He should have been set down as brother of this William.

A Tentative Pedigree of the Huguenot Refugee Family of Menet.

[1] She was amongst the victims who were driven mad by persecution. In the late M. Charles Sagnier's "La Tour de Constance et ses prisonnières" (Sandoz et Fischbacher, 1880), we find, under date of 1737, "Menet Isabeau, de Beauchastel en Vivarais, mariée le 19 Avril 1734, à François de Fiales. Surprise à l'assemblée tenue le 29 Mars 1735, à la grange de Freyssier, dite la Grange des Blaches, près Saint-André de Bruzac en Vivarais. Conduite dans les prisons du Pont-Saint-Esprit, elle fut condamnée le 1er Mars 1737, par jugement de M. de Bernage. Agée de 26 ans en 1741. Rendue folle à son père le 3 Mars 1750. Menet Jeanne, sa sœur, s'échappa et se réfugia en Suisse."

[2] A marriage which should have had its place in the tabular pedigree is reserved for a footnote, because it is not known for certain to which of the two François Menets the lady should be given, though the probabilities are in favour of the nephew. A François Menet is found in 1776 as the husband of Jeanne Marguerite Auriol, sister of Mrs. William De Vismes, and da. of Elisée Auriol, formerly of Lyons, but then settled in London in the parish of St. Peter le Poer, who, though he left her a legacy of £7000, records in his will (P.C.C., 45, Hay) her having married Francis Menet "without my consent and even against my prohibitions often repeated." It is believed that descendants of this marriage are now to be found in Canada. François Menet, the younger, "born at (?) Blanchons," was naturalized by Act of Parliament (No. 14, 12 George III.) in 1771. Wishing also to acquire the rights of a Swiss Citizen he was admitted, on 23 Nov. 1771, Burgess of Yverdun, where perhaps he died.

A

Jean François Henri Menet, = Marthe Marie, da. of Isaac Vernet and Blanche Marie Therése Ricardi, his wife; m. at Geneva 18 Sept. 1793; there living 1802.
b. at Royas. Carried on with his brother François at Turin the business of their great-uncles Torras, and founded the house known as François Menet & Co. Adm'on 14 Jan. 1802.

François[2] Menet. Removed his business to London 1764. In 1792 was of 14 New Broad Street Buildings. A Director of the French Hospital; elected 12 April 1780. = Charlotte Robertine, da. of Philippe Achard of Geneva, and Françoise Jaqueline his wife, da. of André Rigaud; m. at the Temple Neuf 8 May 1768.

Etienne Menet. Whose descendants are in North Italy.

Jean Menet. Ex quo the French branch still extant at Royas.

Five daughters.

John Francis Menet, b. 1772; d. 1 Sep. 1835 and bur. at Hackney. Of London, broker, and of Frognal, Hampstead. = Louisa, da. of James Cazenove by Marianne, da. of Benjamin François Houssemayne Du Boulay; b. 29 Jan. 1785; m. 29 July 1805; d. 28 March 1871.

Antoinette Marie, d. s.p. 1854. = Jaques Pictet, Colonel in the Imperial Guard; b. 1777 (nephew to Marc Louis Pictet, who, with two of his sons, served in the English Army).

Emma,[3] b. 13 April 1821; m. 1845; d. in her 82nd year 29 July 1902. = Thomas Charrington, b. 19 Sep. 1819; d. 1 Oct. 1894. Of Chislehurst.

Rev. John Menet, M.A. (Exeter Coll., Oxford), b. 1823; d. s.p. 18 Jan. 1896, aged 72. Vicar of Hockerill, Bishop's Stortford, 1852—96. = Georgina, only da. of Rev. Frederick Vandermeulen, R. of Thorley, Herts; J.P. for Essex and Herts; m. 29 July 1863.

[4] Of the Vernet marriage there were three sons and two daughters, viz., (1) Jeanne Marie Hélène, b. 7 March 1831, d. 10 Nov. 1875, who organized and was head of the "Chaptal" Hospital in Paris during the Siege of 1870-1; (2) Henri Edouard Vernet, b. 5 Nov. 1832, partner in the firm of Morris, Prevost and Co., of 25 Old Broad Street, somewhile Swiss Consul in London, who had nine children by his marriage with Agnes, dau. of Dr. Willis of Sheen, Surrey; (3) Edmond Vernet, b. 5 July 1834, a Banker at Lyons, and of Carra, Geneva, who had four children of his marriage in 1861 with Mathilde, only dau. of M. Adrien Thorin, a Lyons Banker; (4) Paul Albert Vernet, b. 23 July 1838, of Marsaz, Geneva, who married into the Turrettini family and had four children; and (5) Adelaïde, b. 27 Dec. 1839, who became the second wife of Albert de Mandrot of Chateau d'Echichen, Canton de Vaud.

[5] The Rev. F. W. Rhodes and his first wife were cousins, their daughter also marrying a cousin. There were, besides two who died in infancy, seven sons of the second marriage, of whom the 4th was the Right Hon. Cecil Rhodes, the founder of Rhodesia, and two daughters. They were (1) Herbert, b. 13 Sept. 1845, d. in Nyasaland 21 Oct. 1879; (2) Louisa, b. 1847; (3) Edith C., b. 1848; (4) Francis William, b. 1850, who d. at Groote Schuur 1905; (5) Basil, b. and d. 1851; (6) Ernest, b. 1852; (7) Cecil John, b. 5 July 1853, d. 26 March 1902, and bur. in the Matoppo Mountains, Rhodesia; (8) Frederick John, b. and d. 1854; (9) Elmhirst, b. 1858; (10) Arthur, b. 1859; and (11) Bernard, b. 1861. There is a massive monument of granite in Old St. Pancras Churchyard, which was erected by Cecil Rhodes in 1890 "to replace two decayed family tombs," and to the memory of no less than thirty-three of his race, whose names are inscribed thereon.

Genealogy of Urso D'Abitot, High Sheriff of Worcestershire, and Hugh de Montgomery, Earl of Shrewsbury and Arundel,

For many centuries, and by many chroniclers and historians, during the greater portion of this period, of whom we may mention Collins, Kelham, Ellis, Nash, and by other writers who have followed in their wake, the descent and genealogy of Urso D'Abitot, the High Sheriff of Worcestershire and Constable of the Castle of Worcester, and of his brother Robert Despenser, the Steward, both by appointment of William the Conqueror, it has been erroneously stated that they were brothers to Hugh, Earl of Montgomery, afterwards Earl of Arundel, and in consequence of this erroneous statement I avail myself of the hospitality of your columns to set the matter at rest, once and for ever, by giving you the following particulars in proof of the true historic record.

In 1788 Robert Kelham of Lincoln's Inn, and author of the "Norman Dictionary," brought out one, if not the most exhaustive and authoritative work on the Domesday Book (illustrated), containing an account of that ancient record, with an Alphabetical Table of the Tenants in capite in the several counties contained in that Survey, and under the head of Gloucestershire, he refers to Urso de Abetot as follows:—

"He was the brother to Hugh de Montgomery, Earl of Arundel; he is sometimes called Urso Vicecomes, and Urso de Worcester, in regard he was hereditary Sheriff of Worcestershire and Constable of the Castle of Worcester. He was one of William's great Counsellors. Emmeline, his only child, was wife to Walter de Beauchamp, a great Baron."

Again, the same authority refers to Robert Despenser as follows:—

"He was Steward to William the Conqueror, and one of his Barons, and had great possessions in the Counties of Lincoln, Leicester, and Gloucester. He was brother to the Earl of Montgomery, and to Urso de Abetot, hereditary Sheriff of the County of Worcester, and progenitor to the noble family of Spencer, now Duke of Marlborough."*

This statement of Robert Kelham in his "Domesday Book, Illustrated," that Urso D'Abitot was brother to Hugh de Montgomery, Earl of Arundel, is incorrect, and the authority that he gives from Collins' "Peerage" is also incorrect, and as we are not informed by Collins from whence he obtained this statement, we must conclude that he had no authority for it, and that it must have been a freak of his imagination, and therefore an historic error.

The genealogy of Hugh de Montgomery there can be no doubt about, for he was connected by marriage with Richard I., Duke of Normandy, and his son, Roger de Montgomery, accompanied William the Conqueror in his invasion of England, and commanded the centre of his army at the Battle of Hastings, and was afterwards rewarded with the Earldoms of Shrewsbury, and Sussex, and Arundel.

* Collins gives no authority or proof that Robert Despenser was the progenitor of the noble family of Spencer or the Dukes of Marlborough. There is no justification for this statement, and a negative is easily proved, as Robert le Despenser was never married, and left no legitimate issue.

In support of this statement of fact we give for our authority as follows. In Ducarel's "Anglo-Norman Antiquities" it is stated :—

"This Roger de Montgomery was son of Hugh de Montgomery and Josceline his wife, daughter of Turolph, Lord of Pont Audemer, by Wiva, sister to Gunnora, wife of Richard I., Duke of Normandy.

"Soon after the reduction of England, William the Conqueror conferred the Earldoms of Arundel, Chichester, and Shrewsbury on this Roger, who was at that time styled Oximensium Vicecomes, and had commanded the centre of William's Army at the Battle of Hastings.

"At the dedication of this Monastery of Troarn, he endowed it with the Manor of Horkesly alias Horsly in Gloucestershire, where a Prior and Monks, dependent on this Abbey, soon after settled."

In Banks's "Dormant and Extinct Baronage of England" it is stated :—

"Roger de Montgomery, a Norman Nobleman of eminent distinction, came into England with William the Conqueror, Anno 1066, and by him afterwards was rewarded with the Earldoms of Shrewsbury and Sussex, otherwise Arundel.

"Hugh and Robert de Montgomery, his sons, successively succeeded; but the latter rebelling against Henry I. forfeited thereby all his estates in England, as under the head of Arundel has already been set forth."

Again, in Banks's "Baronage," the title of the Earldom of Arundel is clearly set forth :—

"The Earldom of Arundel is the sole title now known to be enjoyed by tenure; the same having been solemnly adjudged in Parliament to rise from the possession of the Castle of Arundel only.

"The first that had this title was Roger de Montgomery, nearly allied with the Conqueror, before whose arrival in England he was Commander for him against Geoffrey, Earl of Anjou.

"He was also one of the Council which proposed the invasion of England.

"He led the centre of the Norman Army in the famous Battle of Hastings, where King Harold was slain, and his Crown obtained by the Duke of Normandy.

"After the Duke's Coronation as King of England, Roger de Montgomery accompanied him again into Normandy, and at his return to England was advanced to the Earldom of Arundel.

"He was a great scourge to the Welsh, and often victorious over them. He gave his name to the town of Montgomery, which, with the Castle, he won and fortified.

"He was slain by the Welsh temp. William II.

"He was twice married: (1) Mabilia, daughter and heir of William de Talvace (grandson of Ivo de Belesme); (2) Alice, daughter of Everard de Prisace, a Norman.

"By Mabilia he had issue Robert, Earl of Belesme in Normandy; Hugh; Roger; Arnulph, progenitor of the Brydges, Dukes of Chandos; and Philip, the ancestor of Montalexander in Ireland. Also four daughters: Emma, Abbess of Almayne; Maud, wife of Earl of Morton; Mabel, wife to Hugh de Novo Castello; and Sybil, wife to Robert Fitz-Hamon, Earl of Corboil, Normandy.

"Upon the death of the last Earl of Arundel it fell to the Crown, who revived it in William, son of William de Albini, who came in with the Conqueror."

In Collins' "Peerage," vol. ii., p. 120, there is an interesting reference to Roger de Montgomery, of which the following is an extract :—

"Gemiticensis, Ordericus Vitalis, and other writers of the Norman history, give an account that Roger de Montgomery, the first Earl of Arundel and Shrewsbury, was the son of Hugh, Earl of Montgomery in Normandy and of Josceline his wife, daughter of Turnulf of Pont-au-de-mer (brother to Purchetil, father to Anchetill de Harcourt) by Wiva, sister to Gunnora, wife of Richard I., Duke of Normandy, great-grandfather to King William the Conqueror.

"The first mention of the said Roger is that he was Oximensium Vicecomes, and after that, when Geoffery Mertel, Earl of Anjou, a person of haughty spirit and prosperous in his military attempts on his neighbours, had got the Castle of Alencon belonging to William, Duke of Normandy, it so irritated the Duke that he forthwith laid siege to the Castle of Daufront in Anjou. Whereupon the said Geoffery, marching with no small power to relieve it, the Duke sent this Roger de Montgomery and William Fitz-Osborne (both gallant young men) to discover his strength; who meeting with the Earl and representing to him the courage and resolution of their Duke, he furiously threatened that within a day or two he would manifest to the world that the valour of an Anjovin should far surpass that of a Norman; arrogantly vaunting what coloured horse he would ride on and what arms he would put on. But they with as much disdain magnified Duke William; told him the like of his horse and arms; and so returning, encouraged their party to fight.

"This Roger was also of that Council which formed the invasion of this realm, and on October 14, 1066, led the centre of the army in that famous Battle of Hastings in Sussex, wherein the Crown accrued to the Conqueror, and in memory whereof he built a town and Abbey, which retains the name of Battle Abbey.

"After the Coronation of Duke William, on December 25 that year, he went with him in Lent following into Normandy, being designed Governor there, when the King should be absent; but that Prince, hearing of some disturbances like to be in England from the Danes and discontented spirits there, had such an opinion of his abilities, that he brought him back on his return, in December the same year, and first advanced him to the Earldoms of Arundel and Chichester (a title, as well as that of Sussex, given in old charters to the Earls of Arundel) and soon after to that of Shrewsbury; also giving to him a grant of the honor of Eye in Suffolk.

"His possessions, as appears by Domesday Book, were three Lordships in Wilts, four in Surrey, nine in Hampshire, eight in Middlesex, eleven in Cambridgeshire, one in Hertfordshire, one in Gloucestershire, two in Worcestershire, eleven in Warwickshire, thirty in Staffordshire, seventy-seven in Sussex, besides the City of Chichester and Castle of Arundel; and in Shropshire very near all the County, besides Shrewsbury. He had likewise large possessions in Wales; for after the Normans became victorious, they thought the whole realm of England too little a recompence for so great and hazardous an adventure; and desiring King William to grant them what they could obtain from the Welsh, he readily assented thereto, as it would enlarge his dominions."

WHO WAS URSO D'ABITOT?

He was a most distinguished Norman, the able and uncompromising prancing Pro-Consul of William the Conqueror, the great man who lived and served under four Kings, in the reigns of Edward the Confessor, the last of the Saxon Kings, as well as the first three Norman Kings, William I., William II., and Henry I., and I will now give a biographic Record of this famous Norman, and of his ancestors, gleaned partly by the investigations of my visit to Normandy, and partly from the Records of the ancient historians.

Urso D'Abitot was one of the sons of Almericus D'Abitot, Lord of the town and land at St. Jean D'Abetot in Normandy, Canton of Calbosc, in the arrondissement of Havre, situate in a remote and mountainous country, three and a half miles west of the ancient town of Lillebonne, famous for the meeting of William, Duke of Normandy, with his nobles and vassals, prior to his invasion of England in 1066. His brother was Robert, commonly called Le Despenser, for the office he held as Steward to William the Conqueror.

The Lordship of St. Jean D'Abetot belonged to the family of Tancarville, as appears from the Charter for the foundation of the Abbey and College of St. Georges de Boscherville, near Rouen, through the benefactions of Ralph Tancarville in the year 1050.

This Ralph de Tancarville was a grandson of Tancred, one of the companions of Rollo in the invasion and conquest of Normandy circa 912, and was chosen as the guardian of William, Duke of Normandy, during his minority, and afterwards, on attaining his majority, he was appointed hereditary Chamberlain to the Duke, and this faithful guardianship and chamberlainship goes far to demonstrate the close friendship of William the Conqueror with Urso D'Abitot, the nephew of the Chamberlain, Ralph de Tancarville, and of his subsequent promotion to the high post of High Sheriff of Worcestershire, and of his creation in 1071 as Viscount of Worcester, Governor of the City of Worcester, and Constable of the Castle of Worcester.

This Ralph de Tancarville was the elder brother of Almericus de Abetot, and their father was Gerold and their mother was Helindis, and Gerold's father was Ralph, one of the twelve sons of Tancred of Hauteville, which he received from Rollo for his valour in the invasion of Normandy.

Urso D'Abitot appears in the Roll of Battle Abbey, and though not mentioned by Wace and the other chroniclers in the eleventh and twelfth centuries, he may fairly be admitted as belonging to the companions of William the Conqueror, and as proof of this may be cited M. E. de Magny in his "Nobiliare de Normandie," that in the Church of Dives, near Caen, has engraved on its walls the list in alphabetical order, and after the names of the Nobles and relatives of William, Duke of Normandy, upwards of 450 Normans and Frenchmen, and the first name mentioned is Ours D'Abitot (Ours being the synonym of Urso, which means Bear).

The name of D'Abetot continued in Normandy for two centuries, and is mentioned in various Norman Charters, quoted by D'Ainsy in his "Recherchons sur le Domesday," till the reign of Philip Augustus, King of France, 1180—1223, when the name appears for the last time in the list of Norman gentry, as recorded by Ordericus Vitalis in his "Historiæ Normanorum Scriptores Antiqui."

It would be trespassing too much on your hospitality were I to attempt to give a record of the career of this remarkable Norman chief, Urso D'Abitot, from the day when he fought on that fateful day, Saturday, 13 October 1066, at Senlac (Hastings), side by side with William, Duke of Normandy, down to the year 1118, when he was laid peacefully to rest within the Cathedral walls of Worcester, although his boundless ambition and ceaseless activity in Worcestershire, and the adjacent counties, supply an ample and a thrilling story, replete with intense interest of stirring events,

"On the bead roll of Time, Worthy to be filed."

There are many fine passages in the famous history, "The Norman Conquest," in which Professor Freeman gives an excellent coup d'œil of this wonderful man, and that are worthy of being here transcribed.

"There is no shire (Worcestershire) of whose condition during the Conqueror's reign we are able to put together a more vivid picture from the combined evidence of the Survey and of other Records.

"We find that the two shires of Worcestershire and Gloucestershire were put under the care of a single Sheriff, Urse of Abetot, who stands conspicuous amongst the most oppressive of his class, and whose hand seems to have fallen heavily on clerk and laymen alike.

"Urso of Abetot was only the chief of a whole band of Norman spoilers, who seem to have fallen with special eagerness on the lands of the Church in this particular shire. But the Sheriff was the greatest and most daring offender of all. He built his Castle in the very jaws of the Monks of Worcester, so that the fosse of the fortress encroached on the monastic burying-ground. Church and Castle must thus have stood side by side overlooking the Severn. Complaint was made to the Archbishop, who came to the spot, examined the ground, and rebuked the King's Officer (Urso) to his face. . . .

"In the days of King Henry (1109—1135) the Lion of Justice, the son of Urso, drew on himself heavy punishment at the hands of the King, in whose days no man dare to hurt another.

"A servant of the King was slain by Roger's order, and the lands of St. Mary, along with his other possessions, passed away from the son of the first spoiler.

"Urso appears as a spoiler of all the three great Worcestershire Churches, besides his famous dispute with Eldred. He also appears in the records of Worcester, as guilty in partnership with his brother Robert, of a systematic spoliation of the land of that Church.

"The third great Worcestershire Monastery, that of Pershore, also suffered heavily at the hands of Urso."

In 1073 Urso Abitot was associated with the Priory of Little Malvern, which is referred to by Tanner in his "Notitia" as follows :—

"Here in the great wild forest was an hermitage, or some kind of religious house for seculars, before the Norman Conquest, with some endowment by the gift of Edward the Confessor."

There were two important personages in Worcestershire to whom Malvern Priory was indebted. The first was the good Saint Wulstan, the last Saxon Bishop of Worcester, a man of singularly upright life and deep-toned piety, the friend and adviser of the last Saxon and of the first Norman King.

The second personage was Urso D'Abito, the hereditary Sheriff of the County, and the King's representative in Worcestershire. This nobleman, though charged with crime against religion generally, yet towards the sacred enclosure of Malvern had a kindly intention, becoming a benefactor, and in concert with St. Wulstan interesting William the Conqueror on its behalf.

Aldwin had procured letters patent from Pope Gregory VII. and William the Conqueror, and Urso, whose property was considerable in the county, became a great benefactor to the Priory.

Afterwards a certain Abbot of Westminster, with the consent of Urso, placed there an Abbot and Monks, bestowing on them the Manors of Newland, Wortefeld, and Poiwyk (Powick).

There is no doubt that Urso was much esteemed by the Conqueror, by reason of his great abilities and eminent services, which he particularly manifested in 1074, in the rebellion of Roger, Earl of Hereford, and Ralph, Earl of Norfolk, against William the Conqueror, as we find that Urso D'Abitot supported Wulstan, Bishop of Worcester, Ethelwy, Abbot of Evesham, and Walter de Lacy, with their vassals, who marched against the rebellious Earl of Hereford to prevent his fording the Severn and joining his forces to those of Ralph, Earl of East Anglia (Norfolk).

In 1082 and 1083 Urso was present at the Great Councils held in London, under the presidency of William the Conqueror, and in Domesday, 1086, he appears as a tenant-in-chief in the counties of Worcester, Gloucester, Hereford, and Warwick, being also styled Urso de Wircester, from his office of Sheriff of Worcestershire, and he figures largely as a despoiler of the Church, especially of the Monks of Worcester.

The first notice after the death of William the Conqueror, in 1087, we have of Urso is when he was present in the King's Court at Salisbury on 2nd November 1088, for in spite of the curse of Aldred, the Archbishop of York, he flourished and enjoyed Court favour, for we find him first among the courtiers of William Rufus to meet Bishop William of Durham, and to enter the Royal presence at the trial of the Bishop for complicity in the rebellion in March 1088 against the King, and in favour of his brother Robert, Duke of Normandy.

In closing this general reference to the personal history of Urso D'Abitot it should be stated that he married a lady named Adeliza (whose ancestry is unknown), by whom he had a son Roger and a daughter Emmeline, who was married to Walter de Beauchamp. The son Roger was banished by King Henry I. for having in a fit of ungovernable rage commanded one of the King's officers to be slain, and all his vast possessions of which he was disinherited were granted to his brother-in-law Walter de Beauchamp, into whose family the hereditary Shrievalty also passed.

The exact date of Urso D'Abitot's death is not positively known, but it is believed to have occurred in the year 1118, and the place of his burial, according to Leland and Willis-Browne, is given as Worcester Cathedral; and as this fact is not generally known, having been studiously omitted by all ancient and modern historians who refer to him, it may be of interest to give chapter and verse for this interesting announcement.

In the book, entitled "The laborious journey and search of Johan Leyland for English Antiquities presented to Henry VIII., in the 37th year of his reign," is the following record :—

"Urso de Abetot vicecomes Wigorn ; sepultus fuit ad pedes Johannis regis, & inde translatus in borealem partem presbyterii, juxta sepulchrum Eovesham Prioris Wigorn."

"Urso D'Abitot, Viscount of Worcester, was buried at the foot of King John, and afterwards removed to the north portion of the Presbytery, near to the Sepulchre of Evesham, Prior of Worcester."

In the book entitled "History of Mitred Parliamentary Abbeys," by Mr. Willis-Browne, is the following :—

"In the middle of the Presbytery lies King John, and on the south side in a Chapel is a very fair monument of Prince Arthur, Henry VII.'s eldest son (which, together with King John's tomb, being represented in copper plates in Sandford's 'Genealogical History,' I shall presently refer), and in the said Chapel lies Griffith, son of Rhesus ; and near King John's tomb was buried Urso de Abitot, Sheriff of Worcester, before the removal of his monument into the North Aisle, near the sepulchre of the Prior of Evesham."

A Quantock Family. The Stawells of Colhelstone and their descendants, the Barons Stawell of Somerton, and the Stawells of Devonshire and the County Cork. Compiled and Edited by Colonel George Dodsworth Stawell, late Director of Military Education in India. Taunton: Barnicott and Pearce, The Wessex Press. 1910.

This is a handsomely-got-up Volume of 600 pp., printed on a stout antique paper, and comprising 14 folding sheet pedigrees bound in at the end, and each neatly affixed in the book by an extra guard so as to preserve the pedigrees from being torn in unfolding. The Work commences with an Introduction giving the origin of the Stawell Family from the time of the Norman Conquest and their first settlement in Somersetshire, where the parent family were located for more than 600 years; and from a close examination and searches in the Library of the British Museum, those of Bristol, Exeter, Dublin, and Cork, and the Palace at Lambeth, Trinity College, Dublin, the Public Record Offices of London and Dublin, and by examination of wills at Somerset House and elsewhere, sufficient evidence has been accumulated to prove the direct descent of the present Irish family from that of Devon. A pedigree of thirteen generations is proved, and is now registered at the Office of Arms in Dublin Castle.

Chapter I. gives the etymology of the name, with eighteen various spellings, and several modern writers, including Mr. G. E. Cokayne, wrote the name as Stawel, but as a rule it is spelt Stawell, as in Charles II.'s "Patent of Peerage," dated January 1683, when the Barony was created as "Baron Stawell of Somerton." The following Chapters give an earlier history of the family through Sir Adam de Coveston, who was settled by William the Conqueror at Stawell in 1086, and Sir Henry Stawel is given as a knight of Somersetshire in 1261. In 1424 Sir Thomas Stawell was testator to a deed by the Bishop of Sarum for the promotion of Divine service in the Cathedral of Wells, and in Taunton Parish is a monument giving the Arms and Figure of Sir Thomas Stawell of Coplestone, who died in 1439; it is given in the Harleian MS. 1445, in the "Visitations of Somerset, 1573 and 1623."

We have thus enumerated the early history of the Stawells of Cothelstone to let our readers know of the painstaking labours of the Compiler, and in Chapter V. we are introduced to Baron Stawell of Somerton in 1641 ; the Gatehouse at Coplestone is illustrated, likewise a mural monument to Sir John Stawell, who died in 1603, and his successor, who died in 1662, and one erected in Low Ham Church to Ralph, first Lord Stawell ; there is also given that to Abigail, Lady Stawell, erected in Hartley Wespall Church in 1692, and a portrait of John, the second Lord Stawell of Somerset ; the monument to Rev. Thomas Stawell in Luscombe Church is likewise given. Chapters VI. to XI. give the Stawells of Hatherleigh, Devon, those of Coolmain and Kilbrittain, co. Cork, etc., and they are illustrated by plates of South Porch of Bovey Tracy Church and the gravestone of Thomas Stawell there. The portrait of Eustace Stawell of Coolmain and the Gateway to the Castle are given, also Kilbrittain Castle, co. Cork, likewise the miniature portraits of James Ludlow Stawell, 1815, George Stawell of Crobey, 1800, James Stawell of Old Court in 1802, Ensign Jonas Stawell in 1838, Sir William Foster Stawell, LL.D., in 1878, and Colonel Sampson Stawell, 12th Royal Lancers, in 1841, the monument to whom in Rathclaren Church is given at p. 224. Chapter XII. is on the arms and heraldry of the family, illustrated by 23 coats of arms, besides three plates of monuments and Church-plate. The Work concludes with 15 Appendices, illustrated with several views of Cothelstone and Low Ham Church, and a full Index and the 14 folding pedigrees.

The whole Work is compiled in the most painstaking manner, and the family and all its connections owe a great debt of gratitude to Colonel G. D. Stawell for the voluminousness of his materials, and the number of searches necessary for his investigations. The Publishers and Printers have also done their work well, as the whole volume testifies.

The Registers of Derry Cathedral (St. Columb's), Parish of Templemore, Londonderry, 1642—1703. With Preface by the Rev. RICHARD HAYES, B.D., Canon of Derry Cathedral. Issued by the Parish Register Society of Dublin, 1910.

THIS Register was suggested to be printed to the Cathedral authorities by Miss Fairbrother, and an excellent choice has been made in printing such a work, making in all about 450 pp. The original spelling has been adopted, and the Rev. Canon Richard Hayes expresses the thanks of the Cathedral authorities to Mr. Herbert Wood of the Public Record Office, who superintended the deciphering, transcription, and printing of the whole.

We notice that up to 1653 the marriages were solemnized before the Mayors of Londonderry, and sometimes before military men and private gentlemen, and in other cases the banns were published before the Congregation at Londonderry on three several Lord's days. These particulars are noted, and where names are partly illegible or others substituted, and from November 1661 the witnesses at baptisms are termed "gossips" or "goss," up to 1665, when Theophilus Davis, the Registrar, made his last entry, as he died 6th August 1665.

The Work finishes with the List of Members and a very full Index, and it is a sample of careful transcription throughout, and Miss Fairbrother was wise in her selection of such a Register, and the Register Society has done good service in publishing it.

How to Trace a Pedigree. By H. A. CRAFTON. London : Elliot Stock, 62 Paternoster Row. 1910.

THIS is a small 8vo volume of 74 pp., neatly bound in cloth, giving those engaged in tracing pedigrees full instructions as to what works to consult in their production, "without crowding his attention with classes of documents he may need to consult," as the Editor justly says. In Chapter II. he gives Somerset House as the happy hunting ground of all will searchers, and also pays a compliment to Dublin as being the place where all Irish wills can be found ; and in Chapter III. is given the names of most publications and Societies' journals which he can consult, and in London the treasures of the Record Office are at his disposal, while the valuable library of the College of Arms is attainable, but searches must be paid for. The will searcher in Ireland, Scotland, and in England is directed to the most reliable sources in each ; and in Chapter VII. is given the fees to be paid at each public office in London, while the British Museum reading room is always available for searches. Altogether the Work is worthy of the patronage of all genealogists, while its low price of 2*s.* only ought to command a great sale. We heartily recommend it to all our readers.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XIX., No. 1. January 1911.
Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS quarterly Part commences with a continuation of the Randolph Manuscript, beginning with Memoranda from 1685, the Virginia Papers from 1665 follow, and the Revolutionary Army Records from 1778. The Sussex County Wills from 1755 to 1800 may be interesting to many Sussex families in England. These are followed by an account of a very worthy missionary, John Burnyeat, of 1665—1673, and extracts from Sir W. Johnson's papers from 1750 relating to the Indian attacks chiefly. There is an account of the Kendall family from Norfolk, besides the usual genealogical notes of the families of Peyton Randolph, whose will is given of 1774, and the families of Brent, Robinson of Middlesex, Brooke of Smithfield, whose two sons, after studying at Edinburgh, migrated to the United States, and Robert, as a lad of 13, made four voyages to the United States, twice being made prisoner, including his being taken prisoner in the cavalry fight at Westham, and then joined as a private soldier in the "rebel" army, which made him popular, for he was elected twice Governor of Virginia, the first time in 1794, when he was 33 years old. The account of the Chiles family of 1638 is finally given, Colonel Walter Chiles dying in 1653. The Book Reviews next follow, and the Part concludes with the Title of the volume and Proceedings for the year 1910, with the List of Members, etc.

New York : 226 West 58th Street.

THE present Part is illustrated by a steel plate of the portrait of Seth Hastings Grant, with an account of him by Miss Edith Grant. Four more plates give us 17 shields, illustrating an article on the "King" Heraldry by George Austin Morrison, junior, LL.B., which is well worth reading ; and then an article on William Gilbert Davies, LL.D., with a good portrait of him, and an account by Hopper Striker Mott. There is next a long record of the Societies of Whitehaven and Fairhaven, and the Digest of Essex Wills is carried on to April 1595, giving particulars of 22 wills. For genealogy we have a continuation of the Thacher-Thatcher family, by John R. Totten, occupying 32 pp., up to 1695, with an account of "Early Southampton, Long Island," and its inhabitants in 1640, and "Clues from English Archives," and with the Proceedings of the Record Society the Part concludes. Altogether it is an admirable one.

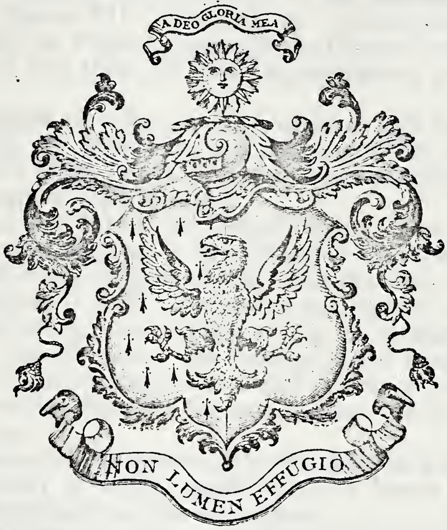
OF ROYAL DESCENTS.



THE earliest recorded eponym of the family of Hewetson, one of considerable antiquity and long of distinction in Ireland, was John Hewetson, who first saw the light at the end of the fifteenth century, in the historic city of the "White Rose"—York.

He had for contemporaries Christopher, Thomas, Robert, William, and Jeronimi Hewetson, and a namesake, John, born circa 1431, probably his grandfather, who had been presented with the freedom of that city in 2 Edward IV.; also Thomas Hwytson, who took his B.A. Degree at Oxford 4 July 1521 and B.C.L. 8 July 1527; Richard Hewsone, Vicar of the parish of Wetwang 1552; John Hewetsone of the parish of Fowltone 1552, churchwarden, both named in the inventories of church plate, vestments, bells, etc., taken in this year; and also William Hewetson, who at the age of twenty-three matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, 21 June 1583.

He lived in York in the reigns of Henry VII., Henry VIII., Mary I., and Queen Elizabeth, having been born in the parish of "All Hallows of the Pavement" there, and died on 20 January 1567 (as set forth in a certificate of his burial, dated All Saints, Pavement, York, 29 January 1909). Administration of his estate was granted by the York Probate Court on the 27th of the month of decease to his relict Margaret Hewetson, the administration bond being signed by herself, John Lambert her brother, and Lancelot Nesfeld her brother-in-law.

He had married Margaret, second daughter and coheir of John Lambert, Esq. (obiit 1569), of Calton and Skipton, county of York, Vice-Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster [a descendant of Lambert, Count of Mons and Louvain; and of Gundred (died 1085) the fifth daughter of the Conqueror, married to William, Earl Warren and Surrey (died 1088), whose daughter Gundred as the widow of Roger de Bellamont was married to Sir William de Lambert], and his wife Agnes, daughter of Thomas Medhop, Esq., of Medhop Hall in Craven, Yorkshire (great-grandfather of Edmond Medhop, Clerk of the Parliament of the Irish House of Commons 24 November 1615); she was also grandniece of Richard Lambert, ancestor of the Earls of Cavan. See pp. 207—210, with Plate of Gundred's Tombstone in Isfield Church, Lewes.

He was born circa 1498. In the Subsidy Roll for York and Ainsty, 9 April, 15 Henry VIII. (1522-3), he was assessed at forty shillings for property in Guthrumgate, parish of the Holy Trinity, and paid "in goods" twelve pence.

From the city records we ascertain that he was admitted a "Freeman of the Citie of Yorke," 30 Henry VIII. (1537-8), as "Johannes Hewson, Merchaunt." In 1539 he was elected the Pageant-Master of the Corpus Christi procession of that year, and Constable of it in 1561 (the first Pageant-Master performing that office in 1526).

Then, in the register of "Names of all suche as hath been admitted into the Worshipfull Companye of Merchants and Mercers of the Citie of York synce 25 Marche 1527," his name occurs as having been admitted in the year 1540, during the Governorship of John Shadlock.

In the register of the "Guild of Corpus Christi, York," we see that "Joh. Hewyttson et Uxor" were admitted to membership of the Guild in 1544. The first appointment of a Master and Keepers of this Guild was made in 1459, though its formation was commenced in 1408. Persons of the highest rank, both ecclesiastic and secular, regardless of sex, were enrolled among its members. The Guild was especially dedicated "to the praise and honour of the most sacred body of Our Lord Jesus Christ," and its members were bound to keep a solemn procession, the sacrament being in a shrine, borne in the same through the City yearly, the Friday after Corpus Christi day.

He is named as one of the Churchwardens of "Alhallos [sic] of the Pavement, Yorke," in the inventory of church goods taken 15 March 1553 (Edw. VI.) in connection with the suppression of the monasteries.

In 1558 he and Christopher Mawle were plaintiffs in a Chancery Bill against (his father-in-law) John Lambert, Esq., and John Lambert his son and heir apparent, concerning lands and a water-mill in Airton, Craven.

Then, in the 3rd year of Elizabeth, 1560-1, he became one of the Camerarii or Chamberlains to the governing body of the City, eight of whom were elected by the Upper House of sixteen, who managed the trade of the City, and were nominated by their predecessors, each, in consideration of the honour of his office, giving the City at the election the sum of twenty nobles (about twenty-five pounds of our money). The Chamberlains collected the rents of the City and paid its expenses, which were of the most varied kind, viz., for Royal entertainments, gifts and hospitalities to Bishops, the King's Chamberlain, and persons of note, messengers to London, to the Heralds, minstrels, ambassadors, and so on. Also for a delicate bread called demain, for persons of superior rank, peacocks, pheasants, salmon, pikes. Upon them also devolved the duty of swearing in or "abling" anyone who wished to exercise any trade or business. They were an influential body in York. Their accounts are still preserved in a series of parchment rolls in the muniment room of the Guildhall, built in 1446 on the site of the "Old Common Hall" of the Guild of St. Christopher, founded 1395.

From "Walks through the City of York" we gather that in mediæval times the parish of All Saints, Pavement, was one of the most wealthy and important in the City. One of the earliest instances of direct taxation in England was in 1327 (1 Edw. III); it consisted of one-twentieth part of the computed value of the household goods, stock in trade, and other moveable property of every inhabitant. The total number of households in All Saints, Pavement, and St. Peter the Little was sixty-five, and the total estimate of their goods one hundred and thirty-two pounds. The goods of the richest man in the parish were worth eight pounds. In this year the number of taxed inhabitants in York was about 830, which had only increased to 1300 houses in 1740.

By his wife Margaret he had, with others, an elder son—

A. George Hewetson, born in the City of York and baptized 25 January 1555 in the parish church of All Saints, Pavement, certified by certificate dated 18 October 1910. His wife Christian was born circa 1558 and died in Kildare in 1642, at the time of the great Irish rebellion, aged about eighty-four years, being interred in the nave of the cathedral there, with other members of the family, but where her remains rested only a week, as they were dug up by the rebels, together with the dépouilles of her grandson, Dominick Hewetson, which had received sepulture twenty months before, and placed in a garden outside the churchyard. Their son—

B. Thomas Hewetson, Esq., of the Basken, near Swords, co. Dublin, and of Kildare, was Lieut.-Colonel in the Army of King Charles I. (and one of the "'49 Officers," that is, one of the Irish Protestant Officers of the Loyal Army of Charles I., disbanded (by Oliver Cromwell after the execution of the King) on the 5th June 1649). He was born circa 1583 and died between 1647—1651; the Ulster's funeral entry recording his Arms, having for Crest, A coney sejant sable, collared argent; and for Motto, "Ambo dexter," differing from the general family crest and motto, viz., the sun in splendour with "a Deo gloria mea" encircling it, whilst below the shield is the motto, "Non lumen effugio." He married Eleanor, daughter of . . . ., who administered the estate of her second son Captain Thomas Hewetson 1 July 1653, as "Thomas Hewetson, junior, son of Thomas Hewetson, senior," the administration which had been granted to her eldest son Colonel John 14 February 1652, having been revoked in her favour. They had issue, besides Dorothy, who became the wife of . . . . White, Esq., and named in the will of her brother Colonel John, four sons, viz.,

B I. John Hewetson, Esq. of Kildare, born circa 1613, died 2 Feb. 1658, Colonel in the Army of K. Charles I. and one of the "'49 Officers," owner of both the Abbeys in Kildare, and High Sheriff for that county 1656. His will was dated 29 April 1656 and codicil 8 January 1658, probate being granted 25 February 1658-9. The administration bond was for £2000. He was buried in the nave of Kildare Cathedral. His son Thomas of Grange Castle, county Kildare, Colonel in the Army, born in Kildare in 1654, died September 1705; entered Trinity College, Dublin, in 1671 at 17 years of age; was Justice of the Peace for Kildare and Kilkenny 1677, High Sheriff of co. Kildare 1681, and Sovereign of Naas 1686. Had a grant by patent of 29 October 1684 of the lands granted to his mother, which were erected into the manor of Mount Boyle and Forstallstown.

B II. Thomas Hewetson, Esq., of Basken, co. Dublin, born circa 1615, a Captain in the Army, and slain by the enemy in the Parliament service 6 May 1651. The Ulster's funeral entry recording his arms, impaling those of his wife, states that he was buried on that day and year in St. Michael's, which stood on St. Michael's Hill, the site of which is now occupied by the Synod Hall. [See copy tombstone inscription infra.] On 15 February 1642 he made an affidavit that certain rebels about a month previously had dug up in the nave of Kildare Cathedral the graves of Dominick Hewetson, his brother, who had been buried about twenty months, and of his grandmother who had been buried about a week, and had put their bodies in a garden outside the churchyard. He died intestate, and the administration granted to his brother Colonel John, 14 February 1652, was revoked in favour of his mother 1 July 1653. He married Amy, daughter of . . . . Smith, Esq. (whose arms are recorded in the funeral entry of her husband), by whom he left at his decease, first, either a son or daughter who died the same year as himself in childhood, and the event was recorded in the Ulster's office, viz., the Hewetson arms shewing a crescent on the breast of the eagle, and the announcement that "a Widow Hewetson's child was buried in St. Michan's over the water, Jan^y 16, 1652." Their surviving issue was Richard Hewetson of Dublin, merchant, named in the will of his uncle Colonel John Hewetson 1656, and in the Exchequer Bill filed by his son 20 November 1692. His will was dated 20 July 1705 and proved 29 April 1706 by his wife Frances Hewetson, who just previous to 1700 lodged a claim with the Chichester House Commissioners for lease in James Street, Dublin, which was allowed.

The following is excerpted from a manuscript of "Dyneley's Tour, 1681," which is in the library of Sir Thomas Winnington Ingram, Bart., of which a past President of the Royal Society of Antiquaries of Ireland, John Ribton Garstin, Esq., has photographic reproductions :—

B IV. George Hewetson or Hewson, Esq., born circa 1616, died circa 1650-2. He was Captain in Lord Lambert's Regt. of Foot (garrisoned in Dublin 3 May 1642, the time of the great Rebellion), and was one of the "'49 Officers." He was allowed his debenture for the arrears of his army pay, £331 2*s*., by decree dated 22 March 1666 (Roll ii., mem. 69), of lands in the county of Limerick ; he, however, did not enjoy his estate, having died fourteen years before, intestate. He had married Mary, daughter of . . . . Lalor, Esq. (by whom was one son Francis), who was remarried to John Rigby, Esq., to whom and herself administration of the estate of her first husband was granted in 1653. They were both plaintiffs in a Chancery Bill, Rigby and Wife v. Harman, 29 April 1653, the decree being dated 15 December 1654. Their son—

C. Francis Hewetson or Hewson, Esq., was born in Kildare circa 1641, and settled himself some twenty years later at "Bally-na-glontha" (the Home in the Glen) in the parish of Askeaton, co. Limerick, afterwards Ballyengland, and then "Castle Hewson," its present appellation. The house and remains of the "Keep" of the old Castle, 40 feet by 30 by 42 feet high on the east, and 46 feet high on the west front, and still imposing, stand picturesquely on a steep brow of the glen, of which photos by Thomas J. Westropp, Esq., and south and east elevations on parchment by Mr. John Hewetson the writer, are in the Archives of the Royal Society of Antiquaries of Ireland. He married in 1661 Rachel, daughter of . . . . Tyrrell, by whom he had, besides two daughters, two sons, George and John. (D I., below ; D II., post.)

D I. George Hewson, Esq., born circa 1662, of Bally-na-glontha or Castle Hewson, which he held under a lease for ever from Brook Bridges, Esq., Lincoln's Inn, London. He also possessed the lands of Court Browne and Ballydoole. He made his will on the 4th November 1735, and died the 14th of the same month, having bequeathed to the poor of the parish of Askeaton five pounds and to his brother John his watch. His wife was Katherine (named in her husband's will), daughter of Nicholas Peacocke, Esq., of Barntic, co. Clare, by Jane his wife, daughter of George Rose, Esq., of Mount Pleasant, co. Limerick, and sister of the Right Honourable Henry Rose, M.P., Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench, Ireland (which family was in 1847 represented by Sir Nicholas Peacocke, Bart.). They had, besides a daughter Catherine, who became the wife of Robert Hunt, Esq., of Inchirourke, Askeaton, three sons. (D 1^a, D 1^b, below; D 1^c, page 247.)

D 1^a. Francis Hewson, Esq., of Castle Hewson (born circa 1706), who was murdered in the Glen of Aherlow in the Galtees by Irish rebels when resisting a raid for cattle. He died sine prole. His brother was the eponym of the

D 1^b. John Hewson, Esq., of Ennismore, co. Kerry (born circa 1708), named in his father's will; spoken of in his day and afterwards in that county as the "Rich Foreigner." He married, 23 October 1737, Margaret, then in her 19th year [a descendant of Elizabeth (died 1316, aged 32), daughter of Edward I. and his first wife Eleanor, who died 1290, and her second husband Humphrey de Bohun], (born 1718, died at Ennismore House 28 July 1809, aged 91 years), seventh daughter of Maurice Fitzgerald, Knight of Kerry, by his wife Elizabeth, second daughter of David Crosbie, Esq., and sister of Maurice, first Lord Brandon. Ennismore, containing 1170 acres of land, was one of the residences of the "Old Knights" of Kerry, and Mr. Hewson upon marrying the Knight's seventh daughter, leased the whole estate from his father-in-law, and where his descendants continued to reside for many generations. The appellation of "Rich Foreigner," by which Mr. Hewson was known in Kerry, is thus explained. Down to the closing year of the eighteenth century, and even later, so strong was the clan feeling in this county, and so remote was it from the rest of the most "advanced" parts of the island, that the people there always spoke of the inhabitants of any other county in Munster and the other three provinces as "Foreigners." It was common tradition, and a saying up to the end of the eighteenth century, that the Hewsons of Ennismore were the wealthiest Foreigners in Kerry; their foreign origin being simply their arrival in Kerry from Limerick Co. There is an old tradition in Kerry respecting the first meeting of the Knight's daughter with Mr. Hewson, which we now give. The roads in many parts of Munster were at that time very bad, and both ladies and gentlemen were obliged to save time and trouble by traversing them on horseback instead of using carriages. It was on a journey of this kind from Ennismore or its neighbourhood that Miss Fitzgerald first made her future husband's acquaintance. The horse that she was riding into Limerick county falling lame or casting a shoe, she and her attendant groom were at loss how to proceed, when young Mr. Hewson happened to pass by on a good steed, the loan of which he asked her to accept, and walked by her side to the house of her friend in the county Limerick. The acquaintance led to an attachment and their union in 1737, of which the issue was numerous, three sons and six daughters arriving at maturity (D 2^a, below; D 2^b—D 2^i, page 247):—

D 2^a. Francis Hewson (the Venerable) of Woodford, co. Kerry, born circa 1738; Deputy-Lieutenant; Archdeacon of Aghadoe; entered Trinity College, Dublin, 3 Nov. 1755; Scholar 1758; B.A. as Hewetson or Hewson, spring 1760; died at Woodford July 1789. Will dated same month and proved 4 August 1790. Vicar of Cahir-Corney and Killkelane 6 June 1768; Rector of Kilgobbin 26 December 1771 (a Royal presentation) and Incumbent of Listowel; Sovereign of Dingle. He married, 22 September 1773, Margaret, daughter of Lancelot Sandes, Esq., of Kilcavan, Queen's County. They had issue seven sons and one daughter:—

1. John Francis Hewson, Esq., of Ennismore, J.P., Deputy-Lieutenant co. Kerry; born 19 March 1775; died 17 August 1847. Entered Trinity College, Dublin, 5 March 1792 as "John Francis Hewetson"; Captain in the Tarbet Fencibles. He married his second-cousin Elizabeth (born 27 November 1772), eldest daughter of John Hewson, Esq., of Castle Hewson and his wife Mary Lysaght (of Mount North), (a great beauty and of remarkable longevity), by whom he had four sons and four daughters; the fourth son (born 25 November 1815, died 4 December 1896) was the late well-known and highly esteemed George Hewson, Esq., of Ennismore, J.P. and Deputy-Lieutenant, whose energy in connection with the relief of the Irish peasantry in the black '47 (the year of the Irish potato famine) is a tradition for all time.

2. George Francis Hewson, Esq., Vice-Admiral R.N., born 26 July 1776; died 5 September 1860. Entered the Navy in 1788 under Sir Hyde Parker; passed his examination before "Nelson," and took part in Hotham's action in 1795. A letter written 15 October 1805 on H.M.S. "Dreadnought" by him to Admiral Nelson is among the manuscripts of the British Museum. He married Grace, the eldest of the six daughters of William Marshall, Esq., of Theddlesthorpe Hall, co. Lincoln. Their fourth son was Captain George Francis Hewson, Esq., born 1819, died 1899, of Ovington Park, co. Southampton, Lord of the Manor of Ovington, whose second wife Emma Elizabeth Hammond, who died May 1858, rebuilt the church of St. Peter there at a cost of £3,500.

3. Robert Hewson, born 1780, died 27 May 1840. Perpetual Curate of Kilcoleman, co. Kerry; Vicar of Killanear; entered Trinity College, Dublin, 18 November 1796: B.A. He married in 1807, Frances Jane, who died in 1854, daughter of Francis Bland, Esq., of Derriquin Castle, Kenmare, and his wife Catherine Mahoney of the "Point," Killarney, whom he married by licence, 17 May 1774, in the parish church of St. Botolph, Old Aldgate, London. One of his numerous grandsons was Major Francis Lionel Hewson (born in 1846), whose wife descended from John Puxley, Esq., J.P., of Dunboy Castle, Cork, who was the "hero" (as Colonel Goring) in Froude's "Two Chiefs of Dunboy."

4. Thomas Hewson, Esq., born 27 September 1783, died 1831, a Surgeon in Dublin. On 7 January 1799 entered Trinity College, Dublin, and took B.A. and M.D. Degrees; he was indentured in 1800 to the eminent surgeon Solomon Richards (whose mother was Anne, the daughter of the Ven. Archdeacon Nicholas Hewetson of Killaloe); was on 27 November 1810 a member of "the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland"; then Member of the Court of Assistants on 7 January 1811, Professor of Surgical Pharmacy 15 June 1819, "President of the College" in the same year, and lastly in 1828 he was appointed one of the body politic and corporate. He was also Surgeon to the Meath Hospital. He was much esteemed as a skilful Surgeon and agreeable companion. He died unmarried in York Street, Dublin. Subsequent distinguished members of the College, Maurice Collis, Charles Johnson, George Anderson Greene, Alexander Carte, and Thomas Grace Geoghegan served their apprenticeship with him.

5. Maurice Hewson, Esq., Commander R.N., born 5 November 1786; entered the Navy 27 May 1796, serving under the Flag of Admiral Peyton. Afterwards when on a passage to Ireland in a merchant vessel he was captured by the French and taken to Calais, whence, however, he was allowed to return home through the generous interference of the Prussian Consul (probably a Westphalian relative), who claimed him as a relation. His intrepid command in boat operations was such as to attract the attention of Rear-Admiral Collingwood, who promised him early recommendation to the Admiralty. On one occasion he received from his Captain, Henry Vansittart, in testimony of his regard, a sword which had been given to himself on his first going to sea. But the great misfortune of his naval career (which interfered with his promotion) was his capture by the French (the second time) and incarceration in the then renowned fortress of Bitche, on the north-east frontier of France, for five years; this was undergone amid all the sufferings that tyranny could suggest and barbarity enforce, but ended by a miraculous flight from the fortress, and a month's travel of 3,000 miles to Trieste, where he was taken up by a boat from the "Amphion" on the look-out for him.

It is said that Commander Hewson was the very first person who established the practicability of a double engine to the purposes of steam navigation, as he was also to navigate a steam vessel on the Atlantic. He married, in 1830, Anna, daughter of John Hunt, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Dublin, and had issue. It is understood that his naval experiences caused the production of the very interesting "Peter Simple," by Captain Marryat. He retired from the service in 1848.

6. Lancelot Hewson, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, died sine prole.

7. Francis David Hewson, Esq., who married, firstly, Rebecca Hart; secondly, Maria Hutchinson, by both of whom he had issue.

8. Margaret Maria Hewson, died unmarried.

D 2^{b}. Maurice Hewson, Esq., of Finuge, Ennismore, who married Sarah, daughter of Samuel Raymond, Esq., of Dromin, co. Kerry, and had issue.

D 2^{c}. John Hewson, Esq., who married Miss Markham of co. Kerry.

D 2^{d}. Margaret Hewson, married to John Day, Esq., High Sheriff of co. Cork 1776, and Mayor of that City 1806. They were first-cousins, and both descended from King Edward I., and had issue.

D 2^{e}. Anne Hewson, wife of the Rev. . . . . Freeman of Cork.

D 2^{f}. Catherine Hewson, born circa 1750, died before 1772. About 1770 she was married (as first wife) to William Hare, Esq., of Cork, M.P. for Cork and Athy 1796—1800. He was created the first Earl of Listowel, co. Kerry, 5 February 1822.

D 2^{g}. Lucinda Hewson, born circa 1750, and married to James Wallis, Esq., of Cork in 1783.

D 2^{h}. Mary Anne Hewson, wife of Alexander Elliott, Esq., of Dohoyle (descended from King Edward III., through Dermot O'Brien, Lord Inchiquin).

D 2^{i}. Dora Hewson, born 1743, died near Listowel, unmarried, on 30 April 1840, in her 97th year. She was descended from the celebrated and long-lived "Countess of Desmond" (Lady Catherine Fitzgerald), who it is believed died in her 140th year.

THE CASTLE HEWSON BRANCH

was continued by the third son of George Hewson of Bally-na-Glontha—

D I^{c}. Robert Hewson, Esq., of Castle Hewson, born circa 1710, died Dec. 1780. Named in his father's will of 4 November 1735, in which year, though the youngest son, he succeeded his father. His wife was Lillian, daughter of Colonel James Lees, by whom he had five sons and two daughters (E I, below; E II—E VII, page 248):—

E. I. John Hewson, Esq., of Castle Hewson, Deputy-Lieutenant for county Limerick, born 15 March 1749; died 8 September 1829. Married, 1 January 1772, Mary (then aged 16), who died in 1835, daughter of William Lysaght, Esq., of Castle Harrison, Charleville, younger brother of John, 1st Lord Lisle, M.P. for Charleville in 1727. By her there was issue seven sons and eight daughters:—

(a.) John Lysaght Hewson, Esq., Captain, who raised his own Company in the original "County Limerick Militia." He was born 21 December 1778 and died 10 April 1832. Entered Trinity College, Dublin, 4 July 1796.

(b.) William Hewson, Esq., born 1781; entered Trinity College, Dublin, 1796, and took his B.A., being afterwards, 15 November 1806, admitted to the Honourable Society of Lincoln's Inn, London. He married Elizabeth Anne (born 1775), eldest daughter of John Brownrigg, Esq., of Edenderry, Queen's Co., J.P., by whom there was issue two sons and two daughters, the eldest being

John Brownrigg Hewson, Esq., J.P. co. Limerick, and Deputy-Lieutenant (born 11 July 1826, died 3 December 1908), a Trinity College, Dublin, graduate July 1846, who married Harriet Mary (born 1836, died 26 January 1894), eldest daughter of the Rev. William Gardiner, Rector of Rochford, co. Essex.

(c.) Robert Hewson (Rev.), born 1783; died unmarried 11 March 1820, immediately after his Ordination.

(d.) George Hewson, Esq., of Castle Hewson, born 22 January 1786; died March 1850. Married, 21 April 1825, Laura, eldest daughter of John Southwell Brown, Esq., of Mount Brown, co. Limerick. She was born 14 April 1796.

(e.) Francis Edward Hewson, Esq., born 20 January 1792; privately baptized 23 January; married, 29 August 1837, Barbara, daughter of Robert Hewson, Esq., of Rathkeale, co. Limerick, by whom, with others, were John Lysaght Hewson, Esq., Colonel, Army Pay Department, born 30 Sept. 1838; and Edward Frances Hewson (Rev.), born 23 May 1841, died 8 January 1906; entered Trinity College, Dublin, 1863, took his B.A. Degree 1869; Rector of Gowran 1884—1906, and Canon in Kilkenny Cathedral 1891—1906.

(f.) James Hewson, Esq., born 23 June 1793; married Harriet Swayne, and resided at "Rathkeale Abbey."

(g.) Henry Nicholas Hewson, born 16 July 1795 and died 15 January 1796.

(h.) Elizabeth Hewson (eldest child), born 27 November 1772 (was exceedingly beautiful and lived to a great age); married, 27 December 1802, to her second-cousin John Hewson, Esq., of Ennismore (born 19 March 1775), leaving issue.

(i.) Catherine. (j.) Lilias, born 1 May 1780. (k.) Mary, born 9 October 1784 and was married to James Hewson, Esq., of Newtown and Hollywood, co. Limerick. (l.) Margaret, born 24 April 1787. (m.) Jane, born 1 June 1788. (n.) Barbara, born 1790.

E II. Robert Hewson (Rev.), born 19 April 1750; entered Trinity College, Dublin, 9 July 1767; died 27 March 1780. As a subscriber to the cost of erecting a very beautiful marble monument in St. Mary's Cathedral, Limerick, in 1836, to the memory of Bishop Jebb (who died 9 December 1833), his name and many others appear on a tablet of great size in the north transept, and near the monument.

E III. James Hewson, Esq., born 8 July 1751; married Alicia, eldest daughter of John Freeman, Esq., of Cahirmee, co. Cork, and had issue.

E IV. George Hewson, Esq., of Enniscouch and Rathkeale, born 31 October 1753; married, firstly, Barbara, fourth daughter of John Purcell, Esq., of Templemary, co. Cork; and secondly, Phœbe (born 24 August 1760), fourth daughter of John Brown, Esq., of Danesford and Mount Brown, co. Limerick.

E V. Henry Hewson (Rev.) of Kilflyn, Tralee, co. Kerry.

E VI. Mary Hewson, born circa 1740 (died 1814); married in 1764 to Robert Hilliard, Esq., of Listrim, co. Kerry, and had issue six sons and six daughters.

E VII. Catherine Hewson, born 1741 (died 30 June 1829, aged 88); married, 27 February 1757, to Standish Peppard, Esq., of Cappagh, co. Limerick, who died in 1776, by whom there were one son and nine daughters:—

Robert Peppard, Esq., of Cappagh House, Deputy-Lieutenant co. Limerick, who married Anne, daughter of John Brown, Esq., of Mount Brown. 1 Charlotte, 2 Margaret, 3 Lilly, 4 Catherine, 5 Cicely, 6 Constance, 7 Anne, 8 Mary, and 9 Eliza.

The St. Mary's (Askeaton) Vestry Books contain scarcely any items worth recording. Of the church plate the chalice is the only noticeable piece, being dated 1662. The next date is that of 1785, when on the 12th April, "In compliance with an Order from the Right Reverend Lord Bishop of Limerick, a return was presented to him of the Vicarages of Askeaton and Tom Deely (Toomdeely) and of the Rectory of Lismakerry, item 5 (there were eight) being as follows: Furniture of ye church, a Bell, small silver chalice with ys inscription, 'Sr Simon Eaton,' a small salver, two pewter plates, a pewter tankard, communion cloth and two napkins, Surplice, Bible and common prayer book, and a Vestry book." [The following is a facsimile of one of the signatures.]

"Robt Hewson"

I find that by will of George Rose, Esq. (see D supra), dated 1774, the then Incumbent of Askeaton benefited by one half of an annuity in fee (on the lands of Kilnadran) of £20 Irish (£18 9*s.* 3*d.* British), the other half going to the Governors of Limerick Infirmary. Also benefactions by the ladies of Castle Hewson are recorded: one, a bequest of £62 5*s.* for the support of the Askeaton parochial school, and the other, or rather others, summed up in the words of the polite thanks of the Vestry for "untiring efforts in the improvements of the church." Later on a memorial east window of three lights with pointed arches to the memory of William Hewson (see supra E. I. b) was erected after a design numbered 2, "excepting" that the cross was to be left out, and the sheep were to appear as in design numbered 1. Then again a younger member of the family replaced the "old" bell mentioned above, cast in 1747, by putting a new one three times larger in the battlement of the west side of the ruined old octagonal tower of an ancient church, the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of Limerick conducting its "consecration and dedication." One peculiar entry may be quoted, viz., the permission of the churchwardens for a stable, 24 feet front by 20 feet deep, to be erected in the churchyard to shelter the Castle Hewson horses during the riders' attendance on Divine Service, but this permission was withdrawn two months afterwards. Lastly, it had been proposed by Captain John Lysaght Hewson, and agreed to by the rest of the parishioners, that application be made by memorial to the Bishop of Limerick for building a steeple to the church of Askeaton. Among other signatures was that of which you here see the facsimile—

John Hewson

Both Robert Hewson and his eldest son Captain John Lysaght Hewson were churchwardens, as also Henry Rose and James Hewson. Besides the memorial east window of the church there are in the nave two mural tablets to members of the Hewson family, whilst beneath the nave rest "les dépouilles" of venerable ancestors, now no longer used, the present "God's Acre" lying bright and hushed upon a gentle rise on the Castle Hewson estate.

WHEATLY v. THOMAS.

A special verdict found that George, Lord Cobham, being seised in fee of the Manor of Cooling, 13 Jan. 1557, made his will and devised it to Anne for life, remainder to William for life, remainder to the first son of William, remainder to George for life, remainder to his first son, etc. And having two daughters Elizabeth and Katharine, limits to Elizabeth for life, remainders to Katherine for life and to the heirs male of his brother Thomas, remainder to the heirs of the body of William, his eldest son; George dies 4 and 5 Philip and Mary; Anne dies, George dies without issue; William hath issue Henry and George; George hath issue William; William hath issue Pembroke; William enters, Henry enters; Henry and George are attainted 1 Jac. In 3 Jac. an Act is made reciting the attainder and confirms it; and then follows a proviso that the Manor of Cooling shall be and remain and be held and enjoyed to Duke Brook and the heirs male of his body, remainder to Charles, remainder to William Brook and the heirs male of his body, remainder to such estates tail as are mentioned in the will of George the devisor. Sir William the son of George, 7 Jac. was restored. Henry dies 13 Jac. Sir William survives and hath daughters Pembroke, Hill, Margaret and Frances. Sir William the father of Henry dies 39 Eliz.

Frances, one of the daughters of Sir William, demises to the Plaintiff.

Part of the argument for the Plaintiff is that "by this Act of 3 Jac. there are five estates tail to be spent before the will of George is to take place, viz.: of Duke, Charles, William, Calisthenes and John."

Nicholas Amherst had three daughters, Elizabeth, Anne and Mary. Stephen Norton, the Defendant, married Elizabeth.

Peter Underwood, the Lessor of the Plaintiff, married the heir at law.

[1] If the Henry Guinand of whom records are found is one and undivisible, it seems that this Swiss worthy, who in 1721 became a Director of the French Hospital, should be credited with no less than four wives. It is clear from their respective administrations and wills that the two ladies who appear in the above pedigree enjoyed that position, but they appear to have had both a predecessor and a successor. For the Threadneedle Street Registers tell of the baptism on 7 Dec. 1713 of an Abraham, son of John Henry Guinand and Mary Magdalen, and our worthy, although, as he says in his will of 1752, he had been "known for a number of years by the name of Henry only," had been christened as John Henry. And again so late as June 13, 1786, we find adm'on of the goods, chattels, and credits of "Henry Guinand, late of Kensington, granted to Claude Treaiard (?) le Gerrardy, lawful attorney of Marguerite Guinand, widow and relict of deceased, for the use and benefit of Marguerite, now residing at Mount Argy [? Montargis] in Burgundy in the kingdom of France." And here, though the dates powerfully suggest Henri fils as this Marguerite's husband, we know that he was not "late of Kensington," but of Bengal, and was, as we are told in his son's will of 1788, there buried at Puttah. The portrait of the elder Henry Guinand is now to be found at the Hospital, to which it was presented in 1896 by Mr. Henry Ambrose Fry and his son, Mr. Edward Alexander Fry, to whom the Compiler is largely indebted for his information.

[2] The Rebotiers were a Huguenot refugee family from Languedoc. Charles Rebotier (1644—1732), who settled in Berlin, appears to have had by his wife, Marguerite de Peredez, no less than ten children, of whom the fifth, Elie (1679—1765), and the tenth, David (1694—1769), the latter being the father of the above Charles, came to England. The family became extinct in the male line with the death of Anthony Richard Rebotier, Second Lieutenant of H.M.S. "Jason," killed in action 29 June, 1798.

Pedigree of Herries of Hartwood (or Harthat) and Greskin, Dumfriesshire, and of Spottes, Kirkcudbrightshire.*

Principal authorities: Testaments in the General Register House, Edinburgh; the various printed volumes of Services of Heirs in Scotland; and Mr. H. B. M'Call's "Some Old Families" (1890), which has a short notice with a sketch pedigree of this family (pp. 278-9) and some account of the Minister of Dryfesdale (p. 30), and of Michael Herries of Spottes (p. 288).

I. William Herries was admitted Guild brother of Edinburgh 7 May 1577 (Edin. Guild Reg.). His testament (dated at his dwelling in Edinburgh 23 Dec. 1597), inventory, etc., as of William Hereis, merchant burgess of Edinburgh, who died 1 January 1597-8, given up by Katherine "Bankis," his relict, for herself and on behalf of Robert Herries his only lawful son, was confirmed at Edinburgh 24 January 1598-9. His parentage has not been discovered. The inventory mentions among his debtors, "David Hereis in Drumfreis," "Katrene Hereis," "George Hereis of Daurachtie" (probably George Herries of Maidenpaup and Terraughtie, anciently spelled Tarrauchtie, Tarachtie, etc.), "Richard Hereis, fiar of Mabie," "John Hereis in Brochlie," and "Robert Hereis of Mabie" (of whose family the writer hopes to give a pedigree in a future number). The testament appoints Robert Herries and Nicoll Edgar, merchant burgesses of Edinburgh, to be overseers to the son Robert, and council givers to the relict Katherine Bankes; the first was perhaps a brother of George Herries of Terraughtie and Maidenpaup above named (for this question and the Maidenpaup pedigree see "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Fourth Series, Vol. IV., p. 220); the second was possibly brother-in-law of Katherine Bankes, for the testament, etc., of Isobel Bankes, who died in October 1602, given up by her husband Nicoll Edgar, was confirmed at Edinburgh 25 March 1603.

Katherine Bankes and a second husband James Weill, merchant (to whom she was married at Edinburgh 28 June 1598, see Edin. Marr. Reg., Scottish Record Soc.), were living in February 1628. (Morison's "Decisions of Court of Session," 6015.) In January 1602 Hew Crawfurde, in an appeal to the Privy Council, stated that the plague had come within his dwelling, the "Quhytehouse" beside Edinburgh, belonging to "Katherene Bankis, relict of William Hereis, and James Weill, now her spouse, in life rent, and to Robert Hereis, her son in fee." Five of his bairns had died and the house had been burnt "be accident in the clengeing thairof." The owners had sued him for its restoration, but he claimed to be "assoilzed simpliciter" from this action, which the Council remitted to the Judge Ordinary. (P.C. Reg., vi., 521.)

The son of William Herries and Katherine Bankes—

II. Robert Herries, M.A., was born about 1582. He graduated at Edinburgh University 22 February 1602 ("Edin. Graduates," Bannatyne Club, 19). A preacher in 1615, he was presented to the Crown living of Dryfesdale in Dumfriesshire 24 December 1616. According to Calderwood (History, Wodrow Soc., vii., 256) "Robert Hæresse" was one of the ministers who signed at Edinburgh, 27 June 1617, a protest against King James's attempts on the liberties of the Kirk. He had a commission with others, 8 December 1635 (renewed 8 December 1636), from the Privy Council to collect money for building a bridge where the road from Annandale towards London crossed the Water of Milk by ford at which lives had been lost. (P.C. Reg., 2nd Ser., vi., 149, 349.) On 8 January 1642 as "Magister Robertus Herreis, minister verbi Dei apud ecclesiam de Drysdaill," he was served heir general of "Willielmi Herreis, mercatoris burgensis de Edinburgh, patris." His tombstone in Dryfesdale old Kirkyard about a mile north of Lockerbie has carved on it two shields, a skull and cross-bones, and an inscription in raised letters. The shields are much worn; one still has in its upper part two charges, possibly hedgehogs; the other bears a saltire with hedgehogs in the flanks and foot like some of the seals of the Maxwells, Lords Herries, illustrated in Sir W. Fraser's "Book of Carlaverock." The inscription (in fair preservation when the present writer copied it in 1904) runs thus: "Hir lys | Mr. | Robert Herris | Minister of | Drysdal | who depe | arted this | present Life the | 10 of May the | Year of god | 1662 his eag | was 80 years | lustra ultra | octo hic præco | orbis pater | hospes egenis | sedulo agens pro (?) | suos omnibus | Almus erat." The date given for his death shews that Dr. Hew Scott was wrong in his memoir of him ("Fasti," i., pt. ii., 647) in supposing that he continued at Dryfesdale after the re-establishment of Episcopacy by an Act of 27 May 1662.

"Janet Mackison, relict of the deceist Mr. Robert Herries, Last minister att Drysdaill" (they were married at South Leith 10 September 1618, according to Scott's "Fasti"), came, 4 November 1670, to the lands and house of Halldykes, and in conformity with a disposition made by her on the same day in favour of "Robert Herries her Lawfull sone" put him in possession of her goods there, her horses, sheep, etc., etc. ("Instrument off possessione in favours of Robert Herries, 1670," penes Edward Herries, C.B., of St. Julians, Sevenoaks). Mr. Robert Herries and Janet Mackison had issue:—

1. William, of whom later (No. III.).
2. Robert, founder of the family of Herries of Halldykes, Dumfriesshire, of which the writer hopes to give a pedigree in a future number.
3. Margaret, wife of William Herries of Coryton, who, with her consent, signed at Dryfesdale in November 1658 a "discharge," in favour of "Mr. Robert hereis and Jeanet Mackison his spouse," for 2000 merks Scots due to him from the said "Mr. Robert hereis in nam off Tocher with Margaret hereis his Doughter." ("Discharge William hereis of Corytoun to Mr. Robert hereis, 1658," penes Edward Herries, C.B., of St. Julians.)

III. William Herries of Hartwood or Harthat, an estate acquired according to Mr. M'Call by his father from Carruthers of Holmains. He is always styled "Magister" or "Mr.," titles then reserved in Scotland for Masters of Arts, and is probably therefore the "Gulielmus Herisius" who graduated at Edinburgh 8 July 1644 ("Edin. Graduates," Bannatyne Club, 62), and the "Mr. William Herreis of Hairhat" [sic], who served on the Dumfriesshire War Committee in 1648. ("Acta Parl. Scot.," vi., 295; or vi., pt. ii., 32, later ed.) The testament dative, inventory, etc., of "Master William Herreis in Hartwood, who died in September 1658, given up by Marion McGill, relict, on behalf of Elizabeth, Jannett, Katherine, Anna, and Issobell Herreiss, bairns lawful . . . . to defunct," was confirmed at Dumfries 3 May 1659.

"Mariota McGill, relicta Magistri Willielmi Herreis de Harthat," was served heir general of "Magistri Francisci McGill, ministri verbi Dei apud ecclesiam de Kirkmichael, patris," 6 May 1664. (For the Rev. Francis McGill see Scott's "Fasti," i., pt. ii., 651.) Mr. William Herries had issue:—

1. Francis, of whom presently (No. IV.)
2. Elizabeth, served heir of provision general with her sisters "Janetta, Catherina, Anna, et Isobella," of "Magistri Willielmi Herries, patris," 16 March 1699. Her own and her sisters' marriages are here given from a MS. pedigree of 1789 (penes Edward Herries, C.B., of St. Julians), with such confirmatory evidence as has been obtained. "Elizabeth was married to John Dalrymple of Waterside, by whom she had . . . . John, ... James, a Captain in the . . Scots Greys Dragoons, Francis, who died in the Darien Expedition, Robert, Writer to the Signet, Marion and Katherine, who died unmarried, Anne, married to James Johnstone of Lockerbie, and Isabella, married to the Rev. Mr. Bayne of King's Grange, minister of Keir," Dumfriesshire, in which parish Waterside is situated. The eldest son John Dalrymple succeeded his father in 1697, and died 20 July 1731, aged 63. His eldest daughter Agnes, coheir of her brother William Dalrymple, was married, 25 January 1722, to the Rev. Alexander Orr (who died 19 June 1767), and died in her 63rd year, 21 May 1760, leaving with other issue a daughter Agnes Orr (born 9 November 1722, married 1 June 1750, died 11 June 1809), wife of the Rev. William Young (who died 29 June 1761), Minister of Hutton and Corrie, Dumfriesshire. Her son Alexander Young of Harburn, near Edinburgh (born 1757, died 3 December 1842), was father of WILLIAM YOUNG-HERRIES, born 3 July 1794, who was served heir of Tailzie and Provision Special in the lands of Spottes to William Porter Muirhead-Herries (who died 14 March 1823) on 10 June 1823 and assumed the name of Herries (see presently in the account of Michael Herries, No. VI.). He died 12 February 1872, leaving issue. (See Herries of Spottes, Burke's "Landed Gentry," 1906; and for detailed pedigrees of the families of Dalrymple, Orr, and Young, see Mr. M'Call's "Some Old Families," 27—34, 145—155, 281—289.)*

3. Janet, "married to Colonel Graham, who went abroad with King James at the revolution and whose only daughter was married to Michael . . . ., son of Sir John Malcolm of Lochore." Herries Graham was served heir to her mother "Janet Herries, Wife of Col. William Grahame of Balwhapell," more correctly Boquhapple, Perthshire, 24 December 1709. (In the Decennial Indices to Services, 1710—19, under Grahame, she is treated as a son, but this is corrected in the supplement to the same part, 1710—19, under Herries.) She was the first wife of the Michael Malcolm above named, and died in February 1733. (Burke's "Peerage," 1911, title Malcolm, Bart.) For Colonel Graham, who fought for King James at Killiecrankie under his cousin Lord Dundee, his pedigree, second marriage, etc., see the "Scots Peerage," ed. Sir J. B. Paul, title Graham, Earl of Menteith, vi., 149—151.
4. Katherine, "first married to . . . . Herries of Mabie, and secondly to . . . . Maxwell of Carse, but had no issue by either." Mr. M'Kerlie ("Lands in Galloway," v., 226-7; iii., 332) says that "Catherine Herries, daughter of William Herries, styled of Harthat," had sasine in life rent of Mabie (no date is given), and that "Katherine Herries, Lady Mabie," had sasine of the mylne of Barcloy 19 Sep. 1687.
5. Anna, "married Archibald Stuart, brother to Stuart of Shambilly, by whom she had a daughter, married to . . . . Malcolm, father of Archibald Malcolm, writer in Dumfries, and other children." No confirmatory evidence in support of these statements has been found. There are still Stewarts of Shambelly in the parish of Newabbey and Stewartry of Kirkcudbright.
6. Isobel "was married to William Graham of Mossknow and was mother of Fergus Graham and grandmother of John Graham, now (i.e. 1789) of Mossknow." An Irving pedigree by Mr. J. R. Lyell,

* Mr. M'Call's list of the issue of the marriage of Elizabeth Herries and John Dalrymple differs from that given above from the MS. pedigree in omitting the sons James and Francis and the daughters Marion and Anne, and in adding a daughter Nicholas, wife of John Fairgrave.

in the "Scottish Antiquary" (viii., 16), states that William Graham, son of the Rev. William Graham by Margaret, daughter and heir of David Irving of Mossknow, Dumfriesshire, younger son of Christopher Irving of Bonshaw, "married in 1682 Isobel Herries, daughter to William Herries, M.A., of Hurthat (she died 20th March 1737). They had issue: (1) David, who appears to have died sine prole; (2) Fergus Graham of Mossknow; (3) Janet; and (4) Ann." The pedigree of Graham of Mossknow in Burke's "Landed Gentry" (1906) is only traced back to the late owner's (General Graham) great-grandfather John, probably the John "now of Mossknow" above named.

IV. Francis Herries of Hartwood, also, according to Mr. M'Call, of the ten pound land of Ecclefechan. At various dates in 1671 Sir Robert "Dalzeell of Glenae," "Francis Herreis," variously styled in these transactions as of "Harquhat," "Garthat," and "Harthwood," and others, on the one part, and John Johnstone of "Elshiesheills," and others, on the other part, had to find surety that they would not harm or injure each other. (P.C. Reg., 3rd Ser., iii., 695, 699, 701.) His son—

V. William Herries was served (1), 16 March 1699, as "filius Francisci Herries de Hartwood," heir of provision general of "Magistri Willielmi Herries filii natu maximi Magistri Roberti Herries ministri verbi Dei apud Drysdale, avi"; (2) 30 August 1708, as "of Harthat," heir special "of his Great-Grandfather Francis McGill, minister of Kirkmichael, who died . . February 1664, ... in 3000 Merks over Crunzeerdtoun, etc., Dumfriesshire"; (3) 16 October 1710, as "son of Francis Herreis of Harthwood," heir general of "his Grandfather William Herreis of Harthwood." The "Scots Magazine" (xiii., 407) has this obituary notice of 22 August 1751: "At Leith in the 68th year of his age, William Herries of Greskin, merchant in that town." This merchant, according to Mr. M'Call, was identical with the William Herries of the above-mentioned services of 1699—1710,* who, he says, sold Ecclefechan to George Carruthers of Holmains 24 Nov. 1710, when "son and heir apparent of Francis," and by a first wife had a son—

1. Michael, of whom later (No. VI.).

And by a second wife, Janet Mason, had a daughter—

2. Jane. She was served heir of provision as "Jane Herries" to "her Father William Herries, merchant in Leith," 15 July 1767, and was married (as his second wife) 29 April 1767 to Alexander Stewart (or Stuart), Minister of St. Cuthbert's, or West Church, Edinburgh, who died in his 45th year, 5 April 1775. (Scott's "Fasti," i., pt. i., 122.) She died at Leith 15 October 1792. ("Scots Magazine," liv., 519.) The testament dative, inventory, etc., of "Mrs. Jane Herries or Stewart, relict of the Rev. Mr. Alexander Stewart, Minister of West Church," was confirmed at Edinburgh 23 May 1793, the executor dative being "Michael Herries of Spotts, esquire, her brother," who was principal legatee under a disposition made by her 4 October and registered in the Commissary Court Books of Edinburgh 19 October 1792. In this deed (which, as well as the Commissary Court Book copy, is in the General Register House, Edinburgh), she mentions Mrs. Beatrix Mason, widow of David Strachan of Whitehouse, and other persons of the name of Strachan, perhaps relations of her mother Janet Mason. She leaves her bed and table linen to Isabella and Margaret Stewart, her husband's daughters (probably by his first wife as she does not call them her own children).

* The MS. pedigree of 1789 mentioned in the account of Elizabeth, eldest dau. of William Herries of Hartwood (No. III.), is mainly concerned with the Halldykes branch of this family and only traces the elder or Hartwood line as far as Francis Herries (No. IV.) and his sisters.

VI. Michael Herries of Greskin and Spottes, a merchant in London and Glasgow, according to Mr. M'Call, who says that he acquired Spottes about 1780, married Anne Blackburn ("Mrs. Anne Herries, spouse of Michael Herries, Esq., of Spottes," died 2 December 1792 "at Spottes Hall in her 60th year," according to the "Scots Magazine," liv., 622), and that in a will dated 11 April 1780, he names as executors his son William Herries of Kingsland Place (who died before him "at Spottes Hall in the parish of Urr," 19 March 1795, ibid., lvii., 206); Sir Robert Herries of London; Robert Herries of Halldykes and St. James's Street, Westminster, and his son Robert; and Charles and William Herries of London, merchants. The last five were of the Halldykes branch of this family (refer to Robert, second son of Robert Herries, Minister of Dryfesdale, No. II.), and the above named Sir Robert Herries eventually became possessed of the estate of Greskin by virtue of deeds of settlement made by Michael Herries, 15 August 1795 and 16 October 1798, both registered in the Books of Session 19 March 1800. Michael Herries died "at Spottes-hall" 31 January 1800. ("Scots Magazine," lxii., 72.) He had settled his estate of Spottes first on William Porter Muirhead, son of Dr. Muirhead, Minister of Urr, apparently no relation, who had sasine of it 20 June 1800 (M'Kerlie's "Lands in Galloway," v., 304; Scott's "Fasti," i., pt. ii., 680), and assumed the name of Herries. He died in 1823, and was succeeded at Spottes by virtue of Michael Herries's settlement by William Young as has been related already (refer to Elizabeth, eldest daughter of William Herries of Hartwood, No. III.).

Genealogical Notes to the Pedigree of the Smythies Family.

(2) Johannes Smythes.

Joh'es Smythes filius & hæres. (See 32, p. 283.)

Georgius Smithes de London. (See 33, pp. 283-4.)

The above pedigree is recorded in Vincent MS. 141,111, which professes to be a copy of the Visitation of Somerset in 1573. Nothing more is known of (1) and (2). The will of Will'us Smythes de Wyke (27) was proved in 1585, and his sons Joh'es and Georgius are mentioned therein (see p. 281).

* In the early (Somersetshire) portion of the pedigree the spelling Smythes has been adopted, except in quotations, this being apparently the form of the name usually preferred by members of the family, but in the documents quoted it will be seen that the spelling varied greatly, the forms Smithes, Smithies, Smythes, Smythies, Smethes, and Smeethes all being used. The last form Smeethes probably indicates most nearly the way in which the name was pronounced.

(3) The will of Robert Smythes of Bristol, dated 30 July 1585, contains the following: "I give and bequeath unto Elizabeth my wife the halfe of all mye household stuffe, my lesser silver salte double guilt . . . . my percell guilt bowle . . . . etc. . . . . and in consideration that she will bring uppe the child Thomas Smithes whom I have taken to bringe uppe at scoole in learninge and maintayne him clenely and well . . . . The relationship of the child Thomas Smithes is not mentioned. The will continues: "I give unto my Aunte Margaret Bolton twentye five shillinges eight pence to be paide yerely out of the personage of Wrington . . . . to my neighbour Thomas Coleman . . . . my black satin doublett uncut (and) my best velvet night cappe to be delivered immediately uppon my decease . . . . unto Joane Whoper my wives daughter my second best gowne faced with velvet and the rest of my goods moveable and unmoveable I doe give and bequeath to Jessey my sonne whome I make myne executor . . . . and I do ordayne and make my good cozens M^{r} George Badram and John Smithes the sonne of George Smithes my brother overseers . . . . givinge them full power . . . . duringe the tyme of my said sonne's beinge in the Queenes maiesties service in Ireland." (12, Windsor.)

That Robert Smythes was the brother of Wiłłus Smythes de Wyke, and consequently son of Johannes Smythes is shewn by the will of William, dated 1584 (8, Windsor); that his wife was a widow named Elizabeth Whoper with a daughter named Joane, and that he had a son Jessey, is shewn by his own will quoted above.

(4) George Smythes of Wrington, his son John, and several of his grandchildren are referred to in Harl. MS. 1141, fo. 31, collated with 1445, fo. 49^{b}, and 1559, fo. 161. [See (7) and (15 to 21), pp. 279-80.] That George Smythes was the brother of William Smythes de Wyke and therefore son of Johannes Smythes, is shewn by the will of William Smythes de Wyke, dated 1584 (8, Windsor). An entry recording the burial of George Smith [sic] at Wrington on 22 July 1590 in the parish registers probably refers to George Smythes. He certainly was alive in 1584, since his brother William made him overseer of his will in that year.

(5) Edward Smythes, William, George, and Robert Smythes are all referred to in the will of Thomas Smythes of Ubleight, dated 1567 (12, Babington), as his brothers. Their relationship to each other and to Johannes Smythes their father is thus established. A bequest in the same will "to my brother Edward's daughter" shews that Edward was married and had a child, but neither the name of the wife nor of the daughter is given.

(6) Jessey Smythes is referred to in the will of his father Robert Smythes (3) quoted above, also in the will of his uncle Thomas Smythes (22) as "my brother Robert's child."

(7) John Smythes of Wrington is shewn by the Harl. MS. 1141, fo. 31, etc. (see 4, above), to have been the son of George Smythes of Wrington; to have married Joane, daughter of . . . . Dorrington, and to have had a son John, æt. 25 in 1623, and six daughters. There is a short pedigree at the Heralds' College embodying similar information, and in addition shewing that John Smythes of Wrington bore the same arms and crest as his cousin George Smythes the Alderman (see 31, p. 282), but with a crescent for second branch. George Smythes the Alderman refers to him in his will, dated 1614, as his cozen John Smythes of Wrington, and Robert Smythes of Bristol (3) also refers to him in his will, dated 1584, as "John Smithes the sonne of George Smithes mye brother."

The will of John Smythes, dated 6 June 1626, is a valuable document. It confirms the information given in Harl. MSS. regarding his children, and supplements it by giving the Christian name of the daughter married to James Bisse as Mary, the Christian name of the daughter married to Nicholas Harvey as Sarah, the Christian name of his son John's wife as Sara, the Christian name of the husband of his daughter Judith as John, and further, by recording the marriage of his daughter Joane (shewn as unmarried in Harl. MSS.) to Richard Chichester. In it the testator wills "to be buried in the church of Wrington neere unto the place where my sonne John Smithes was lately buried," and makes bequests to "the poore of Wrington; Johane my wife; my cosen William Strode; my son-in-law John Cope; Elizabeth Godwyn my daughter, the wife of Robert Godwyn; my daughter Sara Harvie, wife of Nicholas Harvie; my daughters Jane Barnard, wife of Edward Barnard, gent.; Mary Bisse, wife of James Bisse, gent.; Johane Chichester, wife of Richard Chichester, gent.; and Judith Taverner, wife of John Taverner, gent.; Susan Passion my kinswoman; my brother-in-law John Bickombe, gent.; my daughter-in-law Mary Cope; my daughter-in-law Sara Smithes, a widowe; my grandchild Johane Strode, etc.

Proved by Joane Smythes the widow at London on 2 September 1626. (109, Hele.)

The will of Joane Smythes of Wrington, widow of the above, is dated 2 May 1638. In it, after expressing a wish to be buried in the church of Wrington "before my seat," she makes bequests "unto my daughter Elizabeth Godwin, my daughter Mary Cope, my daughter Jane Barnard, my daughter Sarah Diar, my daughter Joane Chichester, my daughter Judith Tavernor; my grandchildren Edward Godwin, Sarah Harvey, Elizabeth Godwin, Anna Godwin, Joane Godwin, and Thomas Godwin; two daughters Katherine and Joane; my daughter Mary Bysse; . . . . my sonn-in-lawe Edward Barnard and my grandson William Strode to be overseers.

Witnessed by Edw. Barnard and George Foorde, and proved 2 July 1639 in P.C.C. by Mary Bisse, daughter and executrix named.

N.B.—John Smythes refers to John Cope as his son-in-law and Mary Cope as his daughter-in-law; Joane Smythes refers to Mary Cope as her daughter. From this it seems likely that Mary Cope was a daughter of Joane Smythes by a previous marriage. A daughter, Sarah Diar, is also mentioned by Joane Smythes, but not by her husband under that name; she is, however, probably identical with Sarah Harvie, who may have become a widow and remarried in the interval between the wills. A daughter Katherine left £10 by Joane Smythes is not mentioned by John Smythes, and her name has not been included in the pedigree. The Parish Registers of Wrington, however, record that "Katherine d. of John Smythes" was baptized there 16 June 1602. A granddaughter Johane Strode is mentioned by John Smythes and a grandson William Strode by Joane Smythes. These may have been children of Katherine Smythes above mentioned, but her marriage is not recorded at Wrington.

(8) Thomas Smythes. The Parish Registers at Wrington record that "Thomas s. of George Smithes" was baptized 26 May 1555, and that on 13 February 1570 "Thomas Smithies" was buried.

(9) Timothy Smythes. The Parish Registers at Wrington record the baptism of "Tymothye s. of George Smythe(s)" on 14 December 1565, and the burial of "Timothy Smythes" 1 October 1566.

(10) George Smythes. The Parish Registers at Wrington record the baptism of "George s. of George Smithes" on 11 November 1569,* and the burial of "George Smythe(s)" on 23 August 1570.

(11) William Smythes. The Parish Registers at Wrington record the baptism of "William s. of George Smithes" on 7 October 1576. Between this date and 1626 there is no record of a William Smythes having been buried at Wrington. He is not referred to in the will of his brother Gideon (1609) or the will of his brother John (1626), and no further information regarding him has yet been obtained. He may have gone to London or the eastern counties, and, marrying at about the age of twenty-three, become the father of William Smythies of Gosfields. Having regard to all the ascertained facts this seems most probable.

* This date is given in the pedigree as 1559 instead of 1569.

(12) Gideon Smythes. The Parish Registers at Wrington record the baptism of "Gedion s. of George Smithe(s)" on 5 June 1579, and the burial of "Gideon Smithies" on 30 September 1609. His will, dated 12 September and proved P.C.C., 17 November 1609 (99, Dorset), shews that his wife's Christian name was Elizabeth, and that he had a son living named George (see 14, below).

(13) Edward Smythes. The Parish Registers at Wrington record that "Edward s. of George Smithes" was baptized 5 June 1583. Between this date and 1626 there is no record of an Edward Smythes being buried at Wrington. He is not referred to in the will of his brother Gideon (1609) or the will of his brother John (1626), and nothing more is known regarding him.

(14) George Smythes is mentioned in the will of his father Gideon Smythes (1609), who died at the age of thirty. Nothing more is known regarding him.

(15) Jane Smythes, one of the six daughters of John Smythes of Wrington, is mentioned in Harl. MS. 1141, fo. 31, etc. (see 4 and 7, above). She was married to Edward Barnard at Wrington on 28 December 1606 (Par. Reg. Wrington), and both she and her husband are mentioned in her father's will (1626).

(16) Elizabeth Smythes, one of the six daughters of John Smythes of Wrington, is mentioned in Harl. MS. 1141, fo. 31, etc. (see 4 and 7, above). The Parish Registers record that "Elizabeth d. of John Smithes" was baptized at Wrington on 22 June 1595. Her father's will shews that at the time of his death (1626) she was married to Robert Godwyn (or Goodwyn), and her mother's will (1638) gives the names of her children Edward, Elizabeth, Anna, Joane, and Thomas. The name of Robert Goodwyn is of interest owing to the fact that William Smythies of Witnesham (PEDIGREE 𝔄, 10) by his will, dated 1714, made his "dear friend M^r^ Robert Goodwin" executor of his will. William Smythies was born in 1635, and it seems likely that the Robert Goodwyn he mentions may have been a son of Robert Goodwyn and Elizabeth Smythes, born in or after 1638.

(17) John Smythes, æt. 25 in 1623, is shewn by Harl. MS. 1141, fo. 31, etc. (see 4 and 7, above) to have been the son of John Smythes of Wrington, and to have married a daughter of . . . . Fowen of Bristol. The Parish Registers of Wrington record that he was buried there on 4 May 1626. His father refers to him in his will, dated 6 June 1626, as "lately buried," and also mentions his widow Sara. It is evident from this will that John Smythes, jun., and Sara Fowen had no children.

In "Alumni Ox.," iv., John Smythes is recorded as having matriculated at Brasenose College, Oxford, 26 May 1609, and become a Student at the Middle Temple 1611.

(18) Mary Smythes, one of the six daughters of John Smythes of Wrington, is referred to as "a da." married to James Bisse in Harl. MS. 1141, fo. 31, etc. (see 4 and 7, above). The Parish Registers record that "Mary d. of John Smithes" was baptized at Wrington 21 October 1599. Her father's will shews that her name was Mary, and that at the time of his death (1626) she was married to James Bisse. She proved her mother's will, dated 1638, on 2 February 1639.

(19) Sarah Smythes, one of the six daughters of John Smythes of Wrington, is referred to as "a da." married to Nicho. Harvey in Harl. MS. 1141, fo. 31, etc. (see 4 and 7, above). The Parish Registers record that "Sarah d. of John Smithes" was baptized at Wrington 12 February 1597-8. Her father's will shews that her name was Sarah, and that at the time of his death (1626) she was married to Nicholas Harvey. Her mother's will (1638) refers to her and to her daughter Sarah.

(20) Judith Smythes, one of the six daughters of John Smythes of Wrington, is mentioned in Harl. MS. 1141, fo. 31 (see 4 and 7, above). The Parish Registers record that "Judith d. of John Smeethes" was baptized at Wrington 24 June 1608, and that she was married to John Tavernor at Wrington on 1 January 1622. (From this it would appear that she was under 14 when married.) Both she and her husband are mentioned in the will of her father (1626).

(21) Joane Smythes, one of the six daughters of John Smythes of Wrington, is mentioned as unmarried in Harl. MS. 1141, fo. 31, etc. (see 4 and 7, above). The Parish Registers record that "Johanna d. of John Smythes" was baptized at Wrington 22 September 1605, and that she was married to Richard Chichester at Wrington on 22 May 1625. Both she and her husband are mentioned in the will of her father (1626).*

(22) Thomas Smythes of Ubleight (Ubley, near Bristol), co. Somerset, in his will dated 10 March 1567, after expressing his wish to be buried in the church of Ubleight, makes the following bequests: ". . . . to William Busshe (and others), each 20*s.*; . . . . to my brother William Smythes' children, my brother George Smythes' children, and my brother Robert's child, £40, equally divided; . . . . to my brother Edward's daughter 40*s.*; . . . . to Thomas my son all my lands, tenements, rents, reversions, and services in Axbridge, Cheddar, and Compton for life, with remainder to my son John and his heirs for ever; . . . . to the said Thomas £200 at 21; . . . . to George my son all my lands and tenements in Boltonsborough for life, with remainder to John my son and his heirs for ever; also £200 to the said George at 21; . . . . to my son John £400 at 21, also my lease of my manor house in Ubleight and of the park there with the lands, etc., provided always that Elizabeth my wife have the profit thereof during her life; . . . . to my said four brothers my lease of the manor of Dreiton to the use of my daughter Susan and to the child my wife goeth withal; . . . . my brother Robert Smythes to have my interest in the parsonage of Wrington; . . . . my tenants of Balchborowe; . . . . Elizabeth my wife, whom I make executrix, to have the residue of my goods; . . . . my said four brothers, John Walche, and Thomas Williams to be overseers."

* The following entries in the Parish Registers at Wrington, in addition to those quoted above, evidently refer to members of the family:—

BAPTISMS.

Jone d. of William Smithes, 20 February 1543.
Edith Smithes, 21 February 1546.
Martha Smithes, 3 November 1564.
Robart s. of Jone (?) Smithes, 30 October 1567.

MARRIAGES.

John Kent and Agnes Smythes, 26 June 1552.
William Sheepparde and Maud Smythes, 9 February 1555.
John Williams and Gwend(ol)ine Smithes, 17 May 1571.
John Allen and Doritye Smithes, 11 November 1583.
John Prigg and Martha Smithes, 11 September 1586.
Robert Egriment and Agnes Smithes, 4 November 1593.

Jone Smythes, 30 June 1553.

There are also some other entries which may refer to the family, in which the name is spelt Smyth, Smithe, etc.

Witnessed by William Busshe, William Hawll (?), William Sallwey, and Ellen Preston, and proved in P.C.C., 1 June 1568, by Justinian Kydd, proctor for Elizabeth Smythes the relict and executrix. (12, Babington.)

(23) Thomas Smythes.

(24) John Smythes.

(25) George Smythes.

(26) Susan Smythes.

Children of Thomas Smythes of Ubleight (22), and mentioned by him in his will quoted above as under 21. Any one of these three sons may have been the father, or grandfather, of William Smythies of Gosfields.

(27) William Smythes of the Court of Wyke in the parish of Yatton, co. Somerset, is mentioned in the Vincent MS. 141,111 (see 1 and 2, above) as the son of Johannes Smythes and grandson of Wiftus Smithes de Wrington. In his will, dated 3 September 1584-5, bequests are made as follow: ". . . . unto Jone my wiffe all those goodes which I haue in Glastenbury which were hers before tyme; . . . . unto my sonne John Smithes of Compton my clocke withe the bell, etc.; . . . . to John Smithes of Austen Sutton* fyve markes of lawfull moneye of Englande; . . . . to William my sonne thre score and eleven poundes of lawfull moneye of Englande; . . . . unto Thomas Earle thelder my best blacke cloke; . . . . unto Jone my saide wiffe my littell blacke mare, one macer silver parcell gilt and one silver cuppe white and ungilted. All the reste of my goodes not given nor bequeathed, moveable and unmoveable, I give and bequeathe unto George Smethes and unto William Smethes my sonnes, whome I make and ordeyne my whole and sole executors . . . . I doe ordayne, make, and appointe my brothers Robert Smithes and George Smethes, my cosen John Busshe of Undcombe and Nicholas Mors my neighbour, overseers; . . . . my will is that yf either of my sonnes, that is to saye George Smethes or William Smethes, happen to departe this naturall life before he come to the full age of one and twentye yeares,† that then his saide porcion so dyeinge do remayne to the longest lyver of the twayne; . . . . my will is that my sonnes John Smethes and Thomas Parmynter‡ shall see and provyde that my wiffe be well used," etc.

Proved by George Smithes and William Smethes, sons, in P.C.C., 26 February 1585-6. (8, Windsor.)

(28) William Smythes was the third son of William Smythes of Wyke Court, and with his elder brother George proved his father's will (see 27, above). The two brothers were joint residuary legatees, and a dispute may have arisen between them as to the division of the property, or William may have died; but however that may be, no mention is made by George in his will, dated 1614, of either of his brothers John or William or of any children of theirs. Either John or William may have been the father of William Smythies of Gosfields.

(29) . . . . Smythes, a daughter of William Smythes of Wyke Court, married to Thomas Parmynter, whom William Smythes refers to in his will as his son (see 27, above).

* Probably the same person as John Smythes of Wrington, whose father George Smythes of Wrington was still alive in 1584.

† See note to (31), below.

‡ Son-in-law.

(30) John Smythes of Compton, son of William Smythes of Wyke Court (see 27 and 28, above). The Parish Registers of Wrington record the baptism of a John Smithes 22 June 1544, who may have been John Smythes of Compton.

(31) George Smythes (so spelt in the signature to his will) was born circa 1563.* He was admitted to Gray's Inn 14 March 1608-9 (Adm. Reg. Gray's Inn). A member of the Goldsmiths' Company, he was Prime Warden in 1610-11, and Alderman of Bridge from 30 April 1611 till his death in 1615. In 1611 he was elected Sheriff of London, and there is a note in the records of the Goldsmiths' Company that a gratuity of £100 was given to him on his election "towards the tryming of his house and other charges in the time of his Shrievalty." His arms (Argent, a chevron azure between three oak-leaves vert, each charged with an acorn or) were exemplified and a crest granted to him (A demi-arm azure and hand proper, holding a branch of oak-leaves with acorns or, set in a wreath of his colours) on 9 March 1602. This document, signed by William Dethick, Garter Principal King of Arms, and William Camden, Clarencieux King of Arms,† is now, and has been for generations, in possession of the Essex family of Smythies, descended from William Smythies of Gosfields (Vicar of Belchamp Walter, co. Essex, in 1623). In March 1869, being then in possession of Francis Smythies, Esq., of Headgate House, Colchester, it was published in "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica" (Series I., Part XI., p. 96); it is now the property of his son. In the grant George Smythes is described as "of ye Court of Wike in the Countie of Somerset, gent., descended of that name in the Countie of Lancaster." From this it would appear that by 1602 he was in full possession of Wike Court, which by his father's will was, with all other property, except certain legacies and annuities, left jointly to George and his brother William, the inference being that William had either died or sold his rights to his brother. As regards his descent in the County of Lancaster, we find this referred to also in the Vincent MS. quoted above, and since there are frequent mentions of the name in early records of the northern counties of Northumberland, York, and Lancaster, there seems no justification for concluding that the descent was merely conjectural.‡

On 12 April 1588 a licence (Mar. Lic. Chester and London) was granted for the marriage of George Smythes, described as "of S^t^ Mathew, Friday Street, Goldsmith," and "Sara Woolhouse, spinster, of S^t^ Magnus, London, da. of Anthony Woolhouse, haberdasher, deceased, gen.," also of St. Magnus, London, and of Chapwell, co. Derby.

* He was recorded on his monument in St. Mary's Steyning as aged 52 when he died, 11 July 1615, but in his father's will, dated 3 September 1584-5, he is spoken of as under age. If he was 52 when he died it is obvious that he must have been 21 before 11 July 1584. It may be that he was not 52, but in his 52nd year at the time of his death, or possibly his father's will was drafted some little time before it was signed and dated.

† A fine portrait of William Camden is preserved in the Hall of the Painter-Stainers' Company.

‡ The following are a few references to the name in the north which seem worth noting:—

In the Roll of Peers, Knights, and Men-at-Arms who were at Agincourt (Hen. V., 1415), Harl. MS. 782, reprinted (1827) by Sir H. Nicholas in his "Story of Agincourt." The Duke of Gloucester with his retynew (Lancas., cxlii.) is mentioned, and among the names, John Smythes.

In "Letters and Papers Foreign and Domestic," Record Office, Henry VIII., vol. iv., Part 2, 1526—1528, p. 1906. Confession of Humphrey Lisle regarding rebellion in Northumberland, 1528. The Book of the Names of the inhabitants of Ryddesdale arranged under surnames, viz., Smythes, six names. The Book of the Names of the inhabitants of Tyndaill, viz., Smythies, six names.

In "A History of the House of Percy," vol. i., pp. 193-4, by Gerald Brenan, the confession of Humphrey Lysle with reference to the rebellion in Northumberland led by his father Sir William Lysle of Felton and William Charleton of Shottlington, is quoted, and the names of the families in rebellion with the numbers of each in arms are given. In Redesdale, according to this account there were two members of the Smythes family amongst the rebels.

In Neve's "Monumenta." Death. John Smythies of York died 8 Jan. 1658, aged 38.

p. 372^{b}) shews that he died in July 1615, and was buried at St. Mary's Steyning on 10 August following; that he had four sons, Arthur (the eldest), William, and two named George, who died young, also a daughter Hester, who married Christopher Eyre, Esq., of Wilts, Citizen and Merchant of London, and a daughter Elizabeth, who married Edward Semster (Anne, Frances, and Goodliffe are not mentioned). His wife is described as Sara, daughter of Anthoné Wollis [sic] of the county of Derby, gent., late Citizen and Haberdasher of London. His son William is recorded as chief mourner at the funeral, and it is stated that he left a will.

George Smythes' will, dated 25 February 1614, is an interesting document of great length. By it he leaves, with certain provisos regarding a life interest to his wife, etc., the manors of Ladysbury and Obden, co. Worcester, to his son Arthur, and the manor of Templeton in Berkshire to his son William. No mention is made of the Wike Court estate, which had presumably been sold. To the Goldsmiths' Company he bequeaths "one guilt Standynge Cupp of the value of thirty and five pounds with my name and armes to be set thereupon" (this is no longer in possession of the Company and was no doubt melted down with other plate during the Civil War), also a legacy of forty-six pounds, and in addition he directs that a banquet shall be given at Goldsmiths' Hall on the day of his funeral. This banquet was duly held, and the following memorandum in the books of the Goldsmiths' Company records the event: "12 Jas. I. 1614.* On Tuesday the 11th July instant the Right Worshipful and worthy member of the City, George Smithes, Alderman, departed this transitory life, and on Thursday the 10th August following he was interred in the chauncel of the parish church of St Marye Steyning, there being present at the funeral the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor of the City, with many of the Aldermen, his brethren, and other worshipful persons, who dined at Goldsmiths' Hall that day. The Wardens gave license to Mrs Smithes to have the use of the Hall, plate, linen, and other necessaries for the funeral dinner. The plate, etc., she is to receive by inventory, and re-deliver in good plight, without prejudice or charge to the Company the next day after the funeral at the latest."

The will further contains bequests of a cup value £20 to the city of Bristol; ten pounds to the poor of Wrington and Yatton "at the discretion of my cosen Mr John Smythes of Wrington;" "gownes worth twenty shillings a piece" to fifty-four "poor Goldsmythes;" "ringes with deathes heades worth forty shillings" to "my Lady Pemberton, my Lady Jennynges, my brother Barnard, my brother Woolhouse, my cosen Arthur Salwey, my cosen John Smythes," and several others; and "ringes worth twenty shillings a piece" to "my cosen Susane Grub, my cosen William Smythes," and others.

Besides his sons Arthur and William he mentions his daughter Hester and her husband Christopher Eyre, his daughter Elizabeth and her husband Edward Semster, and his daughter Anne.

The will was proved by Sarah Smythes, the widow, on 18 July 1615 (67, Rudd).

A concise account of George Smythes and his wife Sara Woolhouse, who married secondly General Sir Arthur Savage, is given in "The London and Middlesex Note Book," by W. P. W. Phillimore, M.A., B.C.L. (published 1892).

(32) Sir Arthur Smythes, the eldest son of Alderman George Smythes (Funeral Cert. of George Smithes, Coll. of Arms), was left by his father the manors of Ladysbury and Obden, co. Worcester, also property in Gloucestershire (will of George Smythes, 67, Rudd). He was knighted 26 February 1623-4, and was still living in 1653 ("London and Middlesex Note Book"). In 1631—33 he was Sheriff of Worcester (Calendar of State Papers, 1631—33, p. 88, etc.).

(33) William Smythes of Cardington, co. Bedford (Pedigree, Coll. of Arms,

* From this it would appear that George Smythes died on 11 July 1614, not 1615. The inscription on his monument and his funeral certificate at the College of Arms, however, give 1615 as the date, and his will was proved on 18 July 1615.

D. 24, 39), son of Alderman George Smythes, was left by his father the manor of Templeton, co. Berks (will of George Smythes, 67, Rudd). He was chief mourner at his father's funeral (Funeral Certificate of George Smithes, College of Arms). Matriculated at St. John's College, Oxford, 19 February 1618, æt. 15 (Alumni Oxoniensis, iv.), and was admitted a student of Gray's Inn 1 August 1619 (Foster's "Gray's Inn Registers"). He proved the will of his mother, Lady Savage (200, Alchin), 3 June 1654. His marriage to Elizabeth, daughter of . . . . Cutts, is recorded in a pedigree at the College of Arms registered by his son William (D. 24, 39).

The above William Smythes may be the same person as William Smythes of Fleet Street, whose will (521, Ruthen), dated 20 November and proved at London 16 December 1657 by Elizabeth Smythes his widow, contains the following :—

"In primis I give and bequeath unto my sonne William Smythes the summe of fiftie pounds. Item I give and bequeath unto my loving sonne in lawe Master Joseph Hobson and unto my loving sone in Lawe Master Robert Tilney the summe of Twenty pounds a peece to buy mourning for themselves and their wives to wear in my remembrance. Item I give and bequeath unto my grandchild Elizabeth Winch the summe of three hundred and fiftie pounds . . . . my grandchild Mary Winch (both under 18) . . . . my beloved grandchild John Tilney to binde him an apprentice the sume of one hundred pounds . . . . my grandchild Sarah Tilney . . . . my grandchild Mary Tilney . . . . my grandchild Elizabeth Tilney . . . . I give unto my sonne William Smythes an Annuity of fifty pounds . . . . Item I give and bequeath to my dearly beloved wife Elizabeth Smythes all the remainder of my estate whatsoever as well real as personall . . . . making my said wife Elizabeth sole executrix." Witnesses: Edward Richards, Fran: Wiseman, etc.

N.B.—No mention is made of any children of the testator's son William, which is strange if William of Cardington and William of Fleet Street are the same, for William of Bedford, son of the former, had at least two children, Mary and William [see below (41) and (42)], born before 1657. There are details, however, in the will which suggest that father and son were not on the best of terms.

(34) Hester Smythes, daughter of Alderman George Smythes, is mentioned by her father in his will, also her husband Christopher Eyre of Wiltshire, Citizen and Merchant of London (George Smythes' will, 67, Rudd, and his Funeral Certificate at the College of Arms).

(35) Elizabeth Smythes, daughter of Alderman George Smythes, is mentioned by her father in his will, also her husband Edward Semster of Herts, Citizen and Goldsmith of London (George Smythes' will, 67, Rudd, and his Funeral Certificate, College of Arms).

(36) Anne Smythes, daughter of Alderman George Smythes, is mentioned in her father's will (67, Rudd). She was aged nine in 1615, was about to be married with the consent of the Court in 1624, and was living as Anne Vernon in 1653 (Phillimore's "London and Middlesex Note Book.")

(37) There were two sons named George of Alderman George Smythes who died young (Funeral Certificate at the College of Arms). There were also two daughters, Frances and Goodliffe, who died in their father's lifetime (Phillimore's "London and Middlesex Note Book").

(38) William Smythes of Bedford, son of William Smythes (33), the son of Alderman George Smythes, registered his pedigree from his grandfather (College of Arms, D. 24, 39). In this pedigree the details are very meagre, but we learn from it that William, son of the Alderman, was "of Cardington, co. Bedford," and that he married "Eliz. da. of Cutts," also that William who registered the pedigree had two sisters Eliz. and Mary (39 and 40), and married Mary, daughter of John Manley of Willshamsted, co. Bedford, and that by her he had the following children: Mary, William, æt. 15 anno 1669, John, Richard, Arthur and Mathew (41, 42, 43, 44, 45, and 46).

(39) Elizabeth Smythes and (40) Mary Smythes, sisters of William Smythes of Bedford (College of Arms, D. 24, 39).

PEDIGREE 𝔄.

THE SMYTHIES OF ESSEX AND SUFFOLK.

(A 1) William Smythies of Gosfields and Walter Belchamp, co. Essex.* The Parish Register of Walter Belchamp, co. Essex, begins in the year 1632 with the baptismal entry of "Wm Smitheis son of William and Ann his wife." A subsequent entry records that this child died and was buried in 1634. In the year 1635 another son was born and named William. The entry is as follows: "1635, Smytheis, William, son of William and Anne his wife. Baptized March 3." The first few entries are followed by a note: "In this year ye Visitors requiring all ye names of children baptized to be written in this (parchment) booke out of ye pap (paper) booke there uppon we goe back to ye yeare 1559," and amongst the entries previous to 1632 is one of the burial of John Smythies, son of William, in 1626. Another entry, recording the baptism of a child named Marie Mathew on 8 October 1643, concludes with the words: "by me William Smythies whoe was inducted July 7th 1623 and left ye Cure this October 8th,† 1643." The period during which William Smythies held the living of Walter Belchamp is thus fixed. The Register of Students at Emmanuel College, Cambridge, records that on 4 June 1617 William Smythies was admitted to that College. The date when he took his degree is not mentioned, but the Subscription Book for 1627—44, fo. 78, St. Paul's Cathedral, contains the following entry (translation): "I, William Smythies, Master of Arts, Vicar of Walter Belchamp, admitted to preach and teach God's Word in the church (of Walter Belchamp) and other churches in the Diocese." Signed Gulielmus Smythies, and dated 6 March 1636.

In the return made in 1650 of the Ministers and Elders in the various "Classes" of Essex there is this entry:—

"Gosfield—Rect. Impropriate, £40; Possessor, Lord Dacre; Vicarage, £40; Incumbent, Will. Smythies, by sequestration from John Crosse. He is an able Preaching and Godly Minister. Patron, Lord Dacre." (Lansdowne MS. 459, fo. 128.)

The exact date when William Smythies went to Gosfield is not known, but

* About 1627 John Raymond, of the Hertfordshire family of that name, bought the Belchamp Hall estate from Sir J. Wentworth, and in 1635 was buried at Belchamp (Berry's "Genealogies," Essex). The families of Smythies and Raymond must therefore have been known to each other at this time, a matter of some interest, having regard to the subsequent intimate connection by marriage between the two families. [See Pedigree A (53, 59, 61, and 66) and Pedigree B (61), also Notes to Pedigree A (61) and Pedigree B (61).]

John Raymond was a member of the County Committee for the selection of "Ministers, and it was probably through him that William Smythies was appointed to Gosfield after his resignation of the living of Belchamp Walter in 1643.

† In the pedigree read "8 October" for "23 October."

probably it was between 1647 and 1650.* He held the living till his death in 1652. His burial at Gosfield is thus recorded in the Parish Registers: "William Smythes, Minister of this Parish, buryed September ye 13th, 1652."

The will of William Smythies of Gosfields in the County of Essex, Clerke, dated 26 March 1652, contains the following: ". . . . First I give to the poore of Walter Belchamp and Gosfields 20*s*. I giue to Anne my loving wife all that my tenement and lands which I bought of Robert Plum, situate in the said Walter Belchamp and County aforesaid with th'apertenances during her naturall life . . . . and the remainder to Isaac Smythies my sone and his heires for ever, provided that if my said wife dept this life before my son Willim come to his age of 24 years that the rents of the said tenement and lands shall be equally divided between my said sons till Williams said age of foure and twenty yeares. Item I giue to my said wife the rents and profitts of the Tenement and lands which I bought of John Ward and William Allston situate in Water Belchamp aforesaid during her naturall life . . . . Item I giue unto my said son Isaac two acres of arrable land in the comon fields called Mary Liall comon to him and to his son William and to their heires for ever. Item the said Tenement and lands with orchards (?), garden with aperten'ces I doe give to my sonne Willim and to his heires for ever all excepting the said two acres."

Signed: William Smythies, Richard Pepys,† and John Scott. Proved at Westminster 26 Sept. 1653 by Anne Smythies, the widow (32, Brent).

(A 2) Isaac Smythies of Dagenham was left property in Walter Belchamp by his father William Smythies (A 1). The Register at Emmanuel College, Cambridge, records the entry of Isaac Smythies 18 May 1839. The date when he took his A.B. degree is not given, but he is noted as A.M. 1646.‡

Newcourt's "Repertorium" gives (p. 203): Dagenham, Vicarii—Isaac Smithies, A.M. 2 Oct. 1663 per mort. Tilney. Isaac Harrison, S.T.P. 13 Oct. 1674 per mort. Smithies. Patroni, Tho. Darcy, Bar.

Ibid. (p. 99). Bromley-parva, Rectory—Isaac Smithies, Cl. 1 Maii 1663 per cess Candler. Joh. Neblet, Cl. 4 Aug. 1664 per cess Smithies. Patroni, Maria, dom Vere, vid. Baroness de Tilbury.

(A 3) John Smythies. The Walter Belchamp Registers record the burial of John Smythies, son of William, in 1626. (See A 1 above.)

(A 4) William Smythies. The Walter Belchamp Registers record the baptism in 1632 of "Smytheis, William, son of William and Ann his wife," and the burial in 1634 of William Smythies, son of William. In the following year, another son having been born, he was also named William in accordance with a common custom of the time. (See A 1 above.)

* John Crosse was sequestered in 1644 and his sequestration confirmed before August 1645. The charges against him are set forth in Coles MS., xxviii., pp. 28, 29, Brit. Museum. But between John Crosse and William Smythies there was for a short time an incumbent named John Norton, about whom very little is known. From the following entry in the Gosfield Register it is, however, clear that he was incumbent of Gosfield in 1646: "Mary Norton, the daughter of Mr John Norton, ye Vicor, and Marye, his wife, was baptized ye 9th day of Jully, 1646." (From "Notes on Gosfield," by Rev. H. L. Elliot, Vicar, Par. Mag., 1889.)

† Re Richard Pepys above mentioned. "Diary of Samuel Pepys," 16 June 1664: "With my cousin Richard Pepys upon the 'Change, about supplying us with bewpers (bunting) from Norwich;" and again, 2 April 1662: "Met Mr Sanchy, Smithes, Gale, and Edlin at the Play." William Smythies, Rector of Mile End, Colchester, grandson of the above testator, was Chaplain to the Earl of Sandwich, a kinsman of the diarist.

Reviews.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XIX., No. 2. April 1911.
Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Part commences with the Minutes of Council and General Court, 1622—24, and the Prefatory Note pays a high compliment to Thomas Jefferson for his preservation of so many of the ancient records of Virginia, as quantities of other old Virginia records were burnt in 1865 in the General Court House at Richmond.

An account is given of the general prosperous condition of the State, which contained between 1500 and 2000 inhabitants settled along James River, and of having been reconciled with the Indians, treating them with general kindness, and schools formed, when in March 1622 the massacre by the Indians occurred, and in a few hours 347 people, including Members of Council, were slain by the followers of Apecancanough. A Christian Indian warned the inhabitants, and various large palisades held their own, as well as some private planters. With returning courage the Virginia Company was assured from England that "the blood shed of the people would be the seed of the Plantation." Then follows a long account of the attacks upon the Indians, until at last the Indian King sent word that enough blood had been shed on both sides, and prisoners were exchanged, and in 1628 the Governor and Council were enabled to say that soon there would be 3000 people in the Colony. The Minutes of the Council occupy about 36 pages, and are to be continued.

The Randolph Manuscript is carried on from the previous Part from 1685—88, and is chiefly occupied with orders from King James II. and the Council to the Governor and other officers, and the continuation of Miscellaneous Colonial Documents commences with that for election of Members of Convention in 1775, and Petitions of Inhabitants. Dr. Thomas Walker next furnishes reports of the early Settlers in the Kentucky State in 1750, mentioning the attacks made by the Indians on the original Settlers, and Colonel Scarborough reports upon his efforts to suppress the Quakers in Maryland, who openly defied all authority of Lord Baltimore in 1663. In an article on Virginia in 1667 there is the news given of the dreadful firing of the City of London in 1666, and also of the attacks made by the Dutch on the shipping on James River; and "Virginia Gleanings in England" are continued, giving the wills of several persons between 1624 and 1711, and in "Historical Notes and Queries" there is given the account of the voyage to Virginia of Sir John Zouch with a bond from the English Government dated at Greenwich in August 1606; there are also given Bible entries of the Tompkins family, Robinson and Rolfe families, and some others, interesting to those persons who might be descendants. In genealogy the accounts are still continued of the Brent family, illustrated by portraits of Colonel Daniel Carroll Brent and Mrs. Eleanor Carroll Brent, and a plate of the old Brent tombs in Stafford County; the genealogy of the Brooke family, from which the Brooke County, West Virginia, was named in honour of Governor Brooke. The Chiles and Poindextor families are next noted, and the pedigrees of the latter are given. The Reviews finish the Part, and the Editor of the Magazine is to be congratulated in being able to publish so much of the early history of Virginia, which is alike interesting to his English readers as well as to the present Virginians.

The Utah Genealogical and Historical Magazine. Vol. II., No. 2. April 1911. The Genealogical Society of Utah, 60 East South Temple Street, Salt Lake City, Utah, U.S.A.

WE have received the above Part, which gives a portrait of Hyram Smith, the Patriarch among the Mormons, and appended is an enthusiast's life of him, giving an account of his violent death by being shot with his brother the Prophet, who when he saw his brother fall pierced with four bullets turned upon the mob assailing the house and fired his revolver upon them, and in another minute he was likewise killed by a species of Lynch law. Of course his countrymen ought to have known him best, for in the words of his narrators he was all that a worthy man could be in his home life, but the writer speaks of him as having direct intercourse with the Almighty, the offence for which he lost his life at the hands of his countrymen we presume.

The Part comes to England at a time of reproach by all Englishmen of the tenets of Mormonism, and so we refrain from any criticism of its general contents, though there is a fair article upon the history of registration of the births and deaths in England as it was ordered in 1538, and a fresh Act passed in Queen Victoria's reign in 1837.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Vol. XLII., No. 2. April 1911.
New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, 226 West 58th Street.

THIS is a substantial Part of upwards of 100 pages, and has a frontispiece in colours of the portrait of John Thompson Hoffman, Governor in 1869—1873 of the State of New York. His parents being of American ancestry, despite his surname, made him welcome, for he received his preliminary instruction at Mount Pleasant Academy, where his father Dr. Hoffman placed him, then he went to Union College and gained honours when he was 18. He studied law in Sing Sing with other leading men, and took an active part in politics before he was a voter, and became a partner with Judge Leonard until the latter was chosen to the Supreme Court in 1859. He afterwards was made Recorder, though he was thought to be "too young" for the place. When afterwards he was made Governor he issued an order to allow a procession to be held in 1871 which brought about a riot, and the Roman Catholics were furious, although by his action he had the praise of all the patriotic people of the country. In after life his health gave way, particularly by the loss of a grandson whom he idolized, and in 1888 he went abroad, and while at Wiesbaden chatting with his wife and granddaughter in the sitting-room of the hotel he rose to perform an act of courtesy to Mrs. Hoffman and fell dead at her feet, aged 60.

The article is well written by Mr. Adrian H. Joline. It is followed by a long list of baptisms and marriages performed by the Rev. Joshua Hartt of Long Island, who received in fees "all the way from £50 to a copper ladle!" There is a list of upwards of 700, which is to be continued. The Thacher-Thatcher genealogy up to 1732 is still carried on from former Parts, and "Clues from English Archives," enumerating the families of Paine of Hereford, 1649-50; Harper of London, 1659-60; Richard Wright, Rector of Everden, co. Northampton, in 1633; and many others. The descendants of Edward Treadwell are given at great length, carrying the family from his son John from 1660 up to 1691-2, and occupying 16 pages. The article is still continued of "A Digest of Essex Wills," giving particulars of twenty-six families associated with persons of importance in the American Colonies. The Part concludes with a long list of Pedigrees registered with the Journal and intended for future publication, and the usual reviews and the list of Officers are given up to date.

Schulthess & Co., Zurich, 1911.

THIS is a periodical issued in Zurich of 128 pages, and is illustrated throughout with various seals, coats of arms, etc., and with a plate in colour shewing a side wall dated 1588, with numerous coats of arms; there is also a plate of 8 coats, each in colours and well printed. The entire Part is well got up, and appeals direct to Swiss readers.

The Hewetsons of Kerry, Limerick, and Suirville, county Kilkenny, Ireland.*

OF ROYAL DESCENTS.

THE SUIRVILLE HEWETSONS (HEWSONS), Kilkenny branch, had for eponym—

D II. John Hewson, Esq., of Briska, co. Limerick (second son of Francis Hewetson or Hewson (see C supra, p. 244), and brother of George Hewson (see D I supra, p. 244), was born circa 1664, and living at Briska previous to and in 1704, possessing the lands of Briskaghmore of 164 acres and Briskaghbegg of 52 acres (which had been granted to George Evans in 1666) by deed dated 3 July 1705, made between George Evans the younger of Carass, co. Limerick, Esq., and John Hewson. In the year 1729, it appears that by deeds of lease and release of 22 and 23 September 1729 Mr. Hewson leased 161 acres and 2 roods of these lands to Thomas Holland of Crossagalla, co. Limerick, Esq., for terms of lives for ever. His brother George, who made his will 4 November 1735, appointed him executor and bequeathed him five pounds for mourning and his watch. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Ephraim Monsell, Esq., of Tervoe House, co. Limerick, ancestor of the Lords Emly. (Tradition says that she had a grant from the King to release a man from the gallows at every assize, and that on one occasion she exercised the prerogative!). Her sister Abigail was married to the Rev. John Parker, Rector of St. John's, Limerick, and had a daughter Abigail who was married to her first-cousin John Hewson, Esq., of Briska. The issue of this marriage was, besides a daughter Elizabeth, six sons (1, 2, 3, 4, 5, below ; 6, post) :—

1. John Hewson, Esq., Captain, of Briska, born 1697.

2. George Hewson, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, named in his uncle's will, born in 1707; entered Trinity College, Dublin, 22 March 1733, aged 18. He died 28 October 1749, aged 42 years, and was buried in the churchyard of "Old" Kilkeedy Church. His wife was Jane, daughter of . . . . ; born 1719; died 26 February 1781, aged 62 years, having, as their joint tombstone announces, "remained in widowhood thirty-one years in her husband's memory."

3. James Hewson, Esq. (said to have written his name Hewetson), of Mount Hewson (or Jockey Hall), Patrick's Well, co. Limerick, Attorney-at-Law, born in 1706 ; married . . . ., but died sine prole. In 1798 he was practising as K.E. (at Ship Street, Dublin) in the King's Bench Exchequer. Tradition hands down "his having been a famous sportsman, and being celebrated for the breed of his hunters, and also, that when they could no longer enjoy their existence he had them shot and buried on his estate."

4. Edward Hewson, Esq., born 1702.

5. Monsell Hewson (Rev.), born at Briska 1704; entered Trinity College, Dublin, 21 May 1724, aged 20 years, B.A. spring 1729, M.A. spring 1735 ; named executor in his father-in-law's will of 1735 ; of the Diocese of Down in 1729. He married Mabel, daughter of Thomas Bolton, Esq., of Colgah, co. Louth (named in her father's will, dated 9 March 1735 and proved 6 May 1736), and had two sons, George Hewson, Esq. (the younger, born circa 1730), of Moorsdale, co. Kilkenny, who married Anne, daughter of . . . . Walton, Esq., of Burnchurch, co. Kilkenny, by licence dated 18 August 1769. The eldest was—

5A. John Hewson (Hewetson in 1764 and onwards) (Rev.), of Suirville in the Barony of Iverk, co. Kilkenny, and of the City of Waterford, born in County Down 1728 ; entered Trinity College, Dublin, as "John Hewson," son of Monsell Hewson, 28 May 1745, aged 17 ; became a Scholar in 1749 ; B.A. as "John Hewson or Hewetson" spring 1750 ; ordained at Cloyne as "John Hewson" 18 May 1752. On account of his proficiency in learning his College fees were remitted. He was appointed a Justice of the Peace for the county of Kilkenny as the "Rev. John Hewetson" 2 November 1764. On 10 Sep. 1772 he was appointed Rector of Aglish Martin, near Suirville, and was also Vicar of Rathkieran. In April 1774 he became Chaplain to the Earl of Carrick. He was of handsome presence, noble mien and bearing, of invincible energy, fearless courage, and endowed with great intellectual powers, and at the age of 68, two years before his decease, his handwriting was firm, neat, and bold, as shewn by the following facsimile :—

John Hewetson Rector

He and the parish priest of Moncoin were on intimate terms, so much so that the latter when passing through his last illness sent for his friend to converse with him upon spiritual matters concerning himself. As regards the Rector's children, he used to call them his "little Bantams," and often when they passed his house on their way to church he gave them rest, together with light edibles and milk.

The old Rector, spoken of as Doctor Hewson, and his six sons are traditions at the present day, and the 200 acres of land he had are still called by the name of "Hewson's Quarter."

The last year of his life was disturbed by a recurrence of the sad events which he experienced in the vigour of his manhood thirty-five years before, by the breaking out of the rebellion of 1798. His life was attempted often and in various ways, abroad, and in his own house situated on a grand reach of the noble flowing Suir. His assassination had been prevented more than once, out of esteem, by a certain priest in his chair of confession dissuading his determined assassins from their bloody purpose. Upon another occasion the deposit in the hall of the parsonage of a rebel concealed in a wooden case, intended to murder the household after retiring to rest, was discovered in time. Again, guarding against possible abuse of acting kindly to some boatmen of the Suir, a case of pikes was prevented being left in an outhouse, destined for use in a surprise attack by the rebels. He is mentioned by the historians "Musgrave" and "Froude," and was known as "Whiteboy Hewetson" on account of his spirited and laudable exertions in supporting the laws of his country and suppressing the Whiteboy insurrection at the daily hazard of his life, which called forth the approval of and public recognition by the Government in 1766, followed in 1767 by an "address of thanks" presented by the Grand Jury of the county of Dublin. At the commencement of this rebellion Mr. Hewetson entertained at his parsonage the celebrated Commander of H.M. troops General Sir Henry Johnson and his Officers. In November 1820 the General was living at Bath, where he afterwards died.

In June 1798, when visiting his second son James at Kilmacthomas Rectory, Waterford county, he deceased at the age of seventy years. It was intended to have buried him there, but his old parishioners of Aglish, Rathkieran, and Suirville repaired in a body to Kilmacthomas (representing that as he had lived so many years in their midst he should be laid to rest among them), and they accordingly conveyed his body by a cross-country route to the river Suir, near the debouchement of the Clodugh stream, then over the river in the "house boat" to the house. Upon arriving at the confines Irish sentiment shewed itself by their passing the body over the "stile in the wall," instead of through the carriage way, saying, that as the Doctor had passed over the stile so many times he should go over it again for the last time.

The interment took place in the elevated churchyard of Rathkieran, and he was laid by the side of his daughter-in-law Barbara and her five children, under the cerulean vault of heaven, in the shadow of the chancel wall to await the dawning of the last Easter morn. He married circa 1756 Catherine (who died after 1798) [a descendant of Rollo the Norman, baptized into the Christian church as Robert in 912, and the second son of his great-great-grandson Drogo or Dru, son of Walter de Ponz; also descent from King John and King Henry I.], eldest daughter of William Drew, Esq. (of Ballinlough, near Rathkieran), by his wife Mary, daughter of Emmanuel Poë, Esq., of Solsborough, co. Tipperary, grandson of John Drew, Esq., of Kilwinny and Meanus, who married Margaret, daughter of the Very Reverend Robert Naylor, Dean of Limerick, brother of Ivan, mother of the first Earl of Cork. There were by this marriage thirteen children, as follows (A, B, below; C—M, post):—

A. John Hewetson (né Hewson), Esq., born circa 1757, Captain 89th Regt. of Foot; described as an uncommonly fine man with dark hair and complexion, the very perfection of an Irish Officer, and most amiable and jolly; entered the Army 20 May 1781; married Anne (whose soubriquet was "beautiful Nancy"), daughter of Paul Schuhcraft, Esq. (of good fortune), by whom there were two sons and two daughters. The eldest son—

John Milliquet Hewetson (né Hewson), Esq., born circa 1793; died 7 June 1869; Major 89th Regiment. He served in the Burmese War and Peninsular. He was residing in Kensington in 1862, and tradition represents him as a "handsome young fellow," and compliments his wealthy wife "Geneviève Beaumont" in having done well to make such a worthy investment. There was no issue of this marriage. He signed his short patronymic. He was instituted a Military Knight of Windsor on the lower foundation, by patent dated 20 August 1866, and installed on the 30th as "Major John Milliquet Hewson," and died 7 June 1869. [The Military Knights of Windsor are connected with the College of St. George and the Order of the Garter, instituted 23 April 1349, and are Officers eminent for military services who have distinguished themselves in war and rendered faithful service to their country, yet in their old age find themselves solely dependent on a very diminutive pension. From the King they receive an annuity and apartments in Windsor Castle. The Order was founded by King Edward III., and confirmed by Henry VIII. and Queen Elizabeth, bachelors and widowers only being eligible. They consist of a Governor and twelve Knights on the upper and five on the lower foundation. The uniform consists of a red swallow-tail coat, dark blue trousers, cocked hat with red and white plume, crimson silk sash, and a leather belt for sword. Rows of medals proclaim their past achievements.]

B. James Hewetson (né Hewson) (Rev.), born at Suirville May 1759, of Rockmount, Killinchy, co. Down, Rector of that place and of Kilmacthomas, co. Waterford; entered Trinity College, Dublin, 9 July 1774, aged 15, having been educated by the Rev. Thomas Hewetson, LL.D., of Freshford, Kilkenny, and took his B.A. Degree in the spring of 1779. The living of Killinchy, with a glebe house on eleven acres of land near the church, to which he was inducted June 1794, was in the alternate patronage of the Earl of Carrick and Viscount Bangor. His curate there in 1806 was the Rev. Henry Hulbert Wolseley, who also was tutor to the family, and eventually married one of the daughters, and from 1810—1840 he held the Vicarage of Saintfield, co. Down. Mr. Hewetson acted as Surrogate for granting marriage licences for the district of Mullaglass, Diocese of Armagh. In 1788 he was presented to the Vicarage of Rossmere, adjoining Kilmacthomas, Waterford, by the then Duke of Devonshire. In 1827 he was living at a sweet little spot called "Ballytrim," near Killyleigh, co. Down, but a few years after he removed to the City of Waterford, where, on 24 April 1835, he made his will (proved 27 November 1840). He bequeathed to his wife Dorothea all that property he was possessed of in right of his intermarriage with his first wife Barbara Noy, daughter of William Stearn Noy of the county of Meath, Esq., situate in the county of Meath, town of Navan, and City of Dublin, for her natural life, and after her death to his son the Rev. James Hewetson, Curate of Drumbanagher, Armagh, in trust for his four daughters (he had nine), Eliza, Mina, Helena, and Charity. He made this bequest in conformity to a deed executed by him and his eldest son William by his first wife Barbara Noy, the said son William being since (1827) dead. At the time of executing said deed all his other children had been otherwise provided for. He also bequeathed to his wife Dorothea all his personal property. He died at Ralph Cottage, Fethard, co. Wexford, and was interred in an enclosure near the gate of the churchyard. He married first, in 1781, Barbara (died 9 January 1789, and interred in Rathkieran churchyard, near Suirville, co. Kilkenny), daughter of William Stearn Noy, Esq., of the county of Meath (named in her husband's will as first wife), by whom he had, besides five children buried at Rathkieran, two sons :—

(a.) John Noy Hewetson, Esq., Captain 4th West India Regiment, who died at Barbados of yellow fever November 1804.

(b.) William Hewetson, Esq., named in his father's will of 1835, and as then deceased. He made a deed of his mother's lands in favour of his father, was owner in 1827 of the "Mayfield Estate," North Naparima, Trinidad, West Indies, and died unmarried.

James Hewetson, Rev. (B), married secondly, 31 July 1790 (by licence of 23 July), Dorothy, daughter of John Lynn, Esq., of Dungulf Castle, co. Wexford, known as "beautiful Dolly Lynn"; named in her husband's will as second wife. She died 7 June 1843 at Waterford and was interred at Fethard, Wexford. In the south-west corner of the churchyard, within an iron railing, is the burial-place of the Hewetson family. The issue of this marriage was five sons and nine daughters (c, d, below; e, f, page 297; g—l, page 298; m—p, page 299) :—

(c.) James Hewetson (Rev.), born in 1804 (twin of Charity, see h, page 298). Entered Trinity College, Dublin, 3 November 1823, aged 19; he took his B.A. in the spring of 1829 and M.A. in 1832; named in his father's will of 1835, he then being Curate of Drumbanagher, Armagh; afterwards he was Rector of Heynestown, county Louth. He married, in 1841, Frances, daughter of Francis Penrose Cherry, Esq., of Waterford, by Anne his wife, daughter of Captain William Glascott, Esq., of Aldertown, but by whom he, dying circa 1880, left no issue. She benefited under the will of Paul Schuhcraft, father of her aunt "Nancy," to the extent of £1000. He is remembered as being a remarkably handsome man, as also was he through the circumstance of his having left his wealth to one not of the family. He was legatee under the will of Paul Schuhcraft, father of the wife of his uncle Major John Milliquet Hewetson, for £1000.

(d.) Henry Hulbert Hewetson, Esq., M.D., of Fethard Castle, Wexford, who died 12 May 1837 and was interred at Fethard. He married, 12 October 1829, Sarah Margaret (who died at Fethard 7 June 1890, aged 88), daughter of Alexander Alcock, Esq., of Elysium, county Waterford, by Eliza his wife, daughter of James Wall, Esq., of Coolnamuck, same county, and had—

1. James Hewetson, born 29 September 1830; died June 1831.

2. Henry Alexander Hewetson, Esq. (2, page 297), of Aughnacloy House, Ballybrack, co. Dublin, and Fethard, co. Wexford, born 20 January 1836, baptized at Fethard. He was Colonel Commanding 6th Brigade (South Irish Division) Royal Artillery, with which he had a continuous connection for thirty-three years. He not only passed every possible service examination, but supernumerary as well. It was due to his technical military knowledge and skill that the difficulty which followed the introduction of large calibre ordnance into the Army was overcome, viz., the insufficient explosive force of the gunpowder until then in use, the bore of the new ordnance requiring a much larger grain in the gunpowder than the old. He corresponded with the makers of the ordnance, who accepted and acted upon his theory, but did nothing whatever in the way of acknowledgment for so valuable a secret—sic mundus. He acted as a Justice of the Peace for the counties of Dublin and Wexford; dying 19 September 1902. His first wife (whom he married at St. Peter's Church, Dublin, 15 June 1859) was Amelia Sarah (died 8 May 1893 and interred in Dean's Grange Cemetery, Dublin), youngest daughter and coheir of Thomas Annesley Whitney, Esq., J.P., of Merton, co. Wexford, by Julia his wife, daughter and coheir of Luke Gavan, Esq., of Killammy, co. Sligo. The issue of this marriage was three sons and four daughters:—

2ª. Henry Thomas Hulbert Hewetson, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, born at Wexford 14 September 1860, baptized 5 October following. He entered Trinity College, Dublin, 23 January 1880, aged 19; took his B.A. 1885, and proceeded M.A. and LL.B. 1888. He was honourman and prizeman in mathematics; first honourman and prizeman in logic, metaphysics, ethics, and in law; Wray prizeman, senior moderator, gold medalist, and member of the Senate, Dublin University. On 3 July 1903 he was appointed His Britannic Majesty's Vice-Consul at Pau in the Consulate of Bordeaux, Department of the Basses Pyrenées, France, receiving his Exequator from the French Foreign Minister, M. Delcassé, dated 12 August 1903, and taking up his duties on 8th of following October. Upon the occasion of the visit to Pau of His Majesty King Edward VII., on Thursday, 18 March 1909, he, together with Lord Dunraven, the Mayor of Pau, and eleven other guests, lunched with His Majesty. He married, in America, 19 May 1892, Alice Beverley (born in New York 8 February 1863), youngest daughter of William Brown Cooper, Esq., of New York and Middletown, Conn., U.S.A. (a direct descendant of the Shaftesbury family in England, and cousin of James Fenimore Cooper the American novelist), by whom he had Henry Alexander Cooper Hewetson, born at Pau 5 February 1896.

2ᶜ. Arthur John James Hewetson, born 2 May 1871, baptized at Fethard 3 September following, and died 6 February 1872.

2ᵈ. Julia Mary Hewetson, born at Merton 17 January 1862, baptized at Bree; married, 7 July 1887, at St. Stephen's, Dublin, to Peter Fitz-Walter Lambert, Esq., of Castle Ellen, Athenry, co. Galway, and had issue.

2ᵉ. Amelia Dora Hewetson, born at Fethard 2 August 1865; residing at Shankill, co. Dublin, 1909.

2ᶠ. Georgiana Elizabeth Hewetson, born at Fethard 9 July 1866; married in 1892 to Robert Hugh Archer, Esq., Commander in the Royal Navy, third son of Clement Robert Archer, formerly in the 4th Dragoon Guards, a descendant of a younger branch of the Archers of Umberslade, Warwickshire. Mr. Archer formed one of the Arctic Expedition of 1875. The issue was Robert Alexander Archer, born 1893, and Clement Hugh Archer, born 1897.

2ᵍ. Dora Alice Sarah Hewetson, born at Fethard 19 August 1873 and baptized there 4 September following. She died at Pau, France, 3 February 1875, where she was interred in the English Protestant Cemetery.

2. Colonel Henry Alexander Hewetson (2, page 295) married secondly, on 15 September 1897, at the Parish Church, Bidston, Cheshire, Mary Janet, widow of Thomas Main Patterson, Esq., of Parkside, Mossley Hill, Liverpool, and daughter of the late James Bennet, Esq., of Burnt Island, Fifeshire, N.B.

3. Elizabeth Hewetson, born 10 November 1832, baptized at Fethard, where she died unmarried 17 February 1887.

4. Dora Lydia Hewetson, born 31 December 1833, died 29 September 1856, having been married to John Handcock Haughton, Esq., of Carlow.

(e.) John Hewetson, Esq., serving his Articles in July 1827 to . . . . Lowry, Esq., Attorney-at-Law. He married first, in 1833, Sarah, dau. of . . . . Kennedy, and secondly, in 1840, Sarah A . . . ., daughter of . . . . Langley. By the former he had James, who went to America with his father, and Sarah Maria Hewetson, married firstly to the Rev. Percival Banks Weldon (ordained 1823), Rector of Fethard, co. Wexford, by whom there was numerous issue, and secondly was married to . . . . Metge, Esq., M.D., of Enniscorthy, Wexford.

(f.) Barry Drew Hewetson, Esq., born at Killinchy, co. Down, 4 October 1793 ; Ensign in the Downshire (Royal South) Militia 8 November 1814 ; died at Charleston, South Carolina, U.S.A., 3 November 1869. His next-of-kin were, after the Confederate War of 1861, awarded £460 compensation for losses sustained by him during the War. He married, in the Diocese of Raphoe, on 1 October 1818, Hannah (born . . . ., died 28 April 1856), daughter of Robert Patterson of Rosgarrow, co. Donegal [and first-cousin to Elizabeth, daughter of William Patterson and his wife Dorcas Spear of Baltimore, U.S.A., the first wife of Jerome Bonaparte, to whom she was married 24 December 1803, and had Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, who married in 1829 Susan May Williams, the issue being (a.) Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, born Nov. 1830, and (b.), twenty-one years after, viz., June 1851, Charles Jerome Bonaparte, who (on 3 September 1902 wrote this interesting circumstance for the writer's information) was practising as an Attorney-at-Law at 216 St. Paul Street, Baltimore], by whom he had three sons and three daughters :—

1. James Hewetson, born 14 February 1822 ; emigrated to Melbourne, Australia, in 1852 ; died 1856, having married at Belfast Elizabeth Gardener, who died in 1868, by whom he had three daughters.

2. Ralph Edward Babington Hewetson, born 28 February 1826 at Rosgarrow, from whence, in 1852, he went to North Carolina, where he practised as a Civil Engineer. In 1849 he was living at Pittakanda, Ceylon. In the Confederate States War (1861-6) he was appointed Captain in the Richland Rifles, First South Carolina Volunteers ; he took part in nearly thirty battles and minor engagements, but never was wounded. In a North Virginian battle he was the hero and central figure of one of the most dramatic incidents of the war. He died unmarried at Charleston, U.S.A., 24 May 1881.

3. Barry Drew Hewetson, Civil Engineer in the British Army, born 14 Dec. 1832, died on his passage from India to England 17 April 1873. He married firstly, at Bombay about the year 1859, Jane Mills (born 1840, died June 1862), by whom he had—

Barry Drew Hewetson (born 8 June 1862, died 12 September 1898), who on 5 November 1890 married Margaret Caroline Morse (born 16 August 1870), but had no issue.

Honora Jane Hewetson, born 29 November 1860, living in 1901, who was married to Thomas Harllee McCall, born January 1855, died 16 October 1899 without leaving issue.

Barry Drew Hewetson (3 supra) married secondly, at St. Thomas' Cathedral,

Bombay, 27 September 1865, Isabella Eliza Atkinson (born 1833, died 21 Nov. 1900), widow of J. H. Atkinson, Esq., and only daughter of William Dale of Ealing, England, by whom he had—

Annie Maude Mary Hewetson (born 22 February 1870), married, 17 Sep. 1890, to Henry Barton-Brice (born 1861), having issue.

4. Anna Dora Hewetson, born 7 November 1819, died 13 November 1874; was married, 30 September 1861, as "first" wife, to Herman Baer, Esq., M.D., born 29 January 1830, died 2 January 1901, but by her had no issue (see 5 seq.).

5. Susan Helen Hewetson, born 2 August 1824, died 29 October 1869; was married, 24 August 1854, to Alexander Cairncross Phin (born 17 February 1810, died 5 June 1895), and had two sons and three daughters. Their second daughter, Adela Budlong Phin (born 4 May 1857, died 8 February 1891), married, as "second" wife, 1 December 1875, to the before-named (4 supra) Doctor Herman Baer, by whom there was issue, besides three daughters and a son, an elder son—

Herman Baer, Esq., M.D., born 7 October 1879, residing at Charleston, South Carolina, U.S.A., in 1909. He married, 17 September 1902, Elizabeth Burgess (born 17 September 1876), daughter of the late William Ervin Sparkman, Esq., of Georgetown, S.C. (died 1891), and his wife Martha Emma Heriot (died 1877), a descendant of the Heriots of Castle Dirleton, Scotland. The issue was Elizabeth Sparkman Baer, born 26 December 1904.

6. Mary Elizabeth Hewetson, born 29 September 1829, died at Charleston 9 January 1904, aged 74. She was wife to John Arthur Kay, who died August 1868.

(g.) Loftus Hewetson, died young (twin of . . . .).

(h.) Charity Hewetson, born in 1804 (twin of Rev. James, see c, page 295), married in 1839, in the Diocese of Armagh, to Edward Lumsden, Esq., of Houseland, Wexford, by whom she had a son, Nicholas Lumsden.

(i.) Elizabeth Hewetson of Belle Vue, near Lismore, co. Waterford, which together with its contents and twenty thousand pounds had been devised to her by Paul Schuhcraft, father of the wife of her uncle Major John Milliquet Hewetson of the 89th Regiment. She died there unmarried, about 1882, and was interred at St. Carthage Cathedral, Lismore.

(j.) Alice Hewetson, born at Kilmacthomas in 1792, died at Down, Canada, 19 August 1864; married in 1810 to the Rev. Henry Hulbert Wolseley, Vicar of Saintfield, co. Down, born at Woodford, Ireland, 1 July 1776, died at Down, Canada, 23 April 1841. Both he and his wife were interred in the old churchyard of Lakefield, Peterborough County, Ontario, Canada, the site being indicated by an inscribed marble stone. A railing was put round this churchyard in 1899 by subscription, the Viscount Wolseley being one of the subscribers. Of this marriage there were two sons: (1) William, born at Rockmount (the Rectory), Killinchy, in March 1811, and died young in Ireland; (2) Henry, who died in Canada v.p.

(k.) Dora Hewetson, wife of Francisco de Jové of Bilbao, Spain, who died in France in 1826, leaving four daughters:—

Anne de Jové, wife of . . . . Marriott, Esq., M.D., of Market Harborough.
Catalina de Jové, wife of Henry Biggs, Esq., M.D., of Fethard, Wexford.
Dora de Jové, wife of Alexander Cheyne, Esq., Barrister-at-Law.

(l.) Juliana Catherine Hewetson, born 6 June 1794, died 27 February 1877. She was married at Youghal, co. Cork, . . February 1820, to Joshua Richard Jacob of the City of Waterford (whose mother was Mary, daughter of Thomas Greer of Grange, co. Tyrone), born circa 1796, died at Fethard, Wexford, 16 Aug.

1828. As a wee child she exhibited a reflective and enquiring mind, as the following will illustrate. The circumstance occurred in the year 1798 when she was four years old, upon the occasion of her father James entertaining at his rectory of Killinchy, Lord Carrick. One morning she escaped from the nursery in her nightgown, made her way to the bedroom set apart for visitors, cautiously opened the door and advanced to the large four-post bedstead where his Lordship was at that moment screened from outer life by the closed curtains of the stately couch. The Earl saw a little white-robed maiden gently part the curtains, and gaze upon him, and then heard a little voice say: "Please, are you the Lord I say my prayers to?" Of their two sons and three daughters, the eldest daughter—

Dorothea Jacob, born 27 January 1821 (died 30th November, 1909, aged 88), married, 13 February 1839, to William Bewley, Esq. (born 18 March 1812, died 20 Sep. 1884), of Illerton, Killiney, co. Dublin, and had three sons and seven daughters.

(m.) Wilhelmina Hewetson, born 1799, died 18 August 1882, aged 83, at Belle Vue, Lismore, in which latter place she was buried on the 21st of same month, outside the Cathedral of St. Carthage. She was wife to her cousin Major Christopher Hewetson of Felicity Hall, Port of Spain, Trinidad, in 1827; died sine prole.

(n.) Helena Hewetson (twin of Anna, see o, infra), bright, kind, pretty, and helping everyone through life. She was married in 1833, in the Diocese of Waterford, to Captain Henry Bowles of Ahern Castle, co. Cork.

(o.) Anna Hewetson (twin of Helena, see n, supra), a great beauty, died young in 1825 at her sister Wolseley's, the Vicarage, Saintfield.

(p.) Margaret Hewetson, born . . December 1798, and died at Ardglass, co. Down, 22 March 1866. On 27 February 1820 she was married to the Rev. Charles Peter Campbell (son of the Rev. Henry Campbell of St. Paul's, Dublin), born 29 June 1800, and died at Ardglass 15 October 1872. He took his Trinity College degrees of B.A. and M.A. whilst there; was Curate of Kircubbin in the Ardes, co. Down, in 1827, then Rector of St. Peter's, Dublin, and afterwards Rector of Ardglass for nearly forty years, and Rural Dean. He was a "remarkable preacher," and his friends and parishioners erected a handsome brass tablet in Ardglass Church to his memory. They had four sons and four daughters, of whom survived—

1. Charles Edward Campbell (Rev.), born at Killyleigh, co. Down, 5 Oct. 1826. Entered Trinity Coll., Dublin, 1845; became a Scholar of his College 1848, and took his B.A. spring 1854. He died 26 October 1900 at Theydon Bois, Essex, of which he had been Vicar twenty-six years, having married, 23 February 1870, Mary, widow of Thomas Graham, Esq., of Ayton Hall, Darlington, co. York, and daughter of Charles King, Esq., Westmorland.

2. William Wolseley Campbell (Rev.) of Monkstown, co. Dublin, born 28 October 1829; became a Scholar of Trinity College, Dublin, in 1850; took his B.A. spring 1854 and M.A. 1857; Chaplain in the Royal Navy 1856, retired 1876. He married, 15 March 1860, Lilly (who died 21 September 1891), daughter of . . . . Thorsby, Esq., of Thorsby Park, Sydney, New South Wales.

3. Dorothea Lynn Campbell, born 27 October 1822, died October 1875. She was married, firstly, 29 August 1853, to Major John Henry Alcock of Richmond House, Cappoquin, High Sheriff of the county of Waterford, who died 1859 s.p.; secondly, 1 December 1864, at St. Peter's Church, Dublin, to Robert Charles Webster, Esq., of Gardden Hall, Ruabon, N. Wales.

4. Mary Julia Campbell, born 3 January 1835, died 1 July 1880; wife to William Patterson Grimshaw of Belfast.

5. Harriette Margaret Campbell, born 9 July 1836; resided at Bray, Wicklow; died circa 1905.

PART I.

Principal authorities: (1) Decennial Indices to Services of Heirs in Scotland; (2) Edinburgh General and Dumfries Particular Registers of Sasines; (3) Will-Registers (P.C.C.) in Somerset House; (4) An "Inventory of the writes of the Ten pound Land of Little Hutton, comprehending therein the nine merk Land of Halldykes and Hutton hills and the six merk Land of Fulldoors," conveyed by "William Herries of Halldykes" to "John Goldie of Craigmuie and others as Trustees for his creditors conform to trust right," by a disposition dated 2 January (registered "in the sheriff court books of Drumfries" 26 September) 1751. This document (penes Edward Herries, C.B., of St. Julians, Sevenoaks), dated 22 Oct. 1751, and signed by Mr. Goldie, gives the history of the Halldykes estate from 1644 to 1751, with abstracts of Charters, Precepts, etc., relating to it; (5) A MS. Pedigree (at St. Julians) made in 1789.

Arms.—The Lyon Register, established by an act of the Scots Parliament in 1672, contains the two following matriculations for members of this family: (1) 19 December 1747, "Robert Herries, Esq., merchant in Rotterdam, second son of the deceast Robert Herries of Haldykes who was son to Robert Herries of Haldykes who was son to Mr. Robert Herries, minister of the Gospel at Drysdale, and younger son of the last Lord Herries, bears Argent, a crescent between three urcheons sable. Crest, a buck's head or, attired with ten tynes argent. Motto, Dominus dedit." A note added, 19 July 1824, by Mr. Auriol Hay, Lyon Clerk, points out that the minister of Drysdale was really son of William Herries, merchant of Edinburgh, to whom he was served heir 8 January 1642. (2) 28 May 1789, "William Herries, Esq., lately merchant and Banker in Ostend, and now of the City of Brussells, born at Halldykes in the county of Dumfries 4 September 1748, youngest brother of Sir Robert Herries of London, Kt., and third son of William Herries of Halldykes by his lady, Katherine, eldest daughter of John Henderson of Broadholme, Esq., in the said county, which last William was paternally descended from the ancient and respectable family of the Lords Herries, Peers of Scotland and Chiefs of that surname, bears Argent, three herizons sable within a bordure wavy gules. Crest, a buck's head erased gules, attired vert. Motto, Deus dedit."

Robert Herries, Minister of Dryfesdale (for whom and his ancestry see the pedigree of Herries of Harthat, "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Fourth Series, Vol. IV., p. 272), had issue a daughter and two sons. The elder son William Herries of Harthat died before his father in 1658, leaving issue by his wife Marion McGill[†] (see the above-mentioned pedigree). The younger son—

[*] Communicated by DAVID C. HERRIES, Esq., 53 Warwick Square, London, S.W., who would be glad of any additions or corrections to the Pedigree (pp. 214—218).

[†] Since the Harthat pedigree was printed it has been found that the Minute Book (in the General Register House, Edinburgh) of the Register of Deeds, Dumfries Commissariot, records a Discharge and Assignation by Marion McGill, no doubt the same person, but here described as relict of Robert Douglas of Beatfoord, to Catherine Herries, relict of John Herries of Mabie (her third daughter, see the Harthat pedigree), dated 5 June and registered November 1688. This Minute Book also records a bond by Mary Austine [sic], "relict of Francis Herries of Harthat" (No. IV. in the Harthat pedigree), to John Lawson in Gledingholm, dated 16 July 1689 and registered December 1694; and a bond by Mary Ainslie [sic], "relict of Francis Herries of Harthet," to John Herries, merchant in Dumfries, dated 26 March 1691 and registered January 1707. The actual registration of these deeds appears to be lost.

I. Robert Herries acquired Halldykes in the following way. On 3 June 1652 James Steill in Brierhill and his son William entered into a contract to sell a wadset (i.e. the original seller had a right of redemption) of the Little Hutton or Halldykes estate bought by their family in 1644 from James (Murray), 2nd Earl of Annandale, to Janet Mackison, spouse to Mr. Robert Herries, Minister at Drysdale, and to her son Robert Herries; and on 30 May 1654 Ronald Brown, portioner of Leitfield, who had been allowed a "decreet of apprizeing" against the two Steills, 4 May 1654, joined with them in conveying this wadset to Mr. Robert Herries and Janet Mackison his spouse, who had sasine of the property 24 July (registered at Dumfries 30 August) 1654. They disponed it to their son Robert Herries 24 Aug. 1660. He obtained a more secure tenure of it by entering, 18 December 1701, into a contract of feu, whereby David (Murray), 5th Viscount Stormont (inheritor of some of the above-named Earl of Annandale's lands and titles),* ratified the foregoing transactions and conveyed the Halldykes estate to Robert Herries in liferent and to William Herries his eldest lawful son, and his heirs and assigns, in fee, which failing to the said Robert's nearest heirs and assignees whatsoever, without any manner of reversion, redemption, or regress, to be held in feu-farm and heritage for payment of forty pounds Scots (£3 : 6 : 8) of feu duty yearly. A charter of feu-farm, confirmation, and ratification to the same effect bears the same date, in virtue of which Robert Herries and his son William had sasine of the property 2 January (registered at Edinburgh 28 February) 1702.

"Robert Herreis of Haldkyes" [sic] was imprisoned from 12 July to 6 August 1677 for "Deforcement of James Murray, messenger," when executing "letters of Poinding" at the instance of Lord Stormont against Adam Newall,† "Chamberlain to the Earl of Southesque, by firing a pistol at Gilbert Cowpar, one of the messenger's assistants, and thereafter assaulting him with his drawn Sword." ("Edinburgh Justiciary Court Records," i., pp. 223, 224, 230, being vol. xlviii. of the Scottish Hist. Soc.)

Robert Herries of Halldykes died before 10 May 1704, having married "Jane daughter of .... Irving of Cove" (MS. Pedigree of 1789), parish of Kirkpatrick Fleming, Dumfriesshire, by whom he had issue:—

1. William, above mentioned, who died before 5 August 1703.
2. Robert, of whom see below (No. II.).
3. "A daughter, married to .... Graham of Mossband." (MS. Pedigree of 1789.) Another MS. pedigree (at St. Julians) gives a third son James and a daughter Margaret, wife of John Carruthers of Dormont, Dumfriesshire. A James Herries in Halldykes was a witness at the above-mentioned sasine of 2 January 1702, and the confirmation of the testament of Katherine "Herreis, spouse to John Carrutheris of Dormount" at Dumfries, 26 March 1657, proves that she died leaving five children in December 1656, a date which shews that she cannot have been the daughter of Robert Herries of Halldykes whose parents were married in 1618.

II. Robert Herries as "of Halldykes" was served heir general to his "Brother William Herries of Halldykes" 5 August 1703, and had sasine of Halldykes 12 June (registered at Edinburgh 9 August) 1704, by virtue of a Precept of Clare Constat of 10 May 1704 by Lord Stormont in his favour as brother-german

* The Pretender (James III. and VIII.) created James Murray, 2nd son of the 5th Viscount Stormont, 2 February 1721, Earl of Dunbar, Viscount Drumcairn, and "Lord of Hadykes." (Ruvigny's "Jacobite Peerage," 44, where a note says that Hadykes is "Halldykes (pronounced Ha'dykes), near Lockerbie.")

† The Minute Book mentioned in an earlier footnote records a "Factory by Sara Herries" (probably related in some degree to Robert Herries of Halldykes, hence the latter's championship of her husband), "relict of Adam Newall, chamberlain to Southesk," to John Herries, notary in Dumfries, dated 16 December 1685 and registered November 1688. The registration, however, is lost.

and nearest lawful heir to William, eldest lawful son of the late Robert Herries of Halldykes. "In 1724 he charged his estate as provision for each of his younger sons .... I have often heard my Father speak of his and say that 'he was a dapper little man, a perfect gentleman, and that he never stirred without bearing his sword by his side.'" (MS. notes on the family at St. Julians by his grandson Robert Herries, No. V. in this pedigree.)

Robert Herries died before 21 June 1728, having married "Mary, daughter of .... Johnston of Scroggs in Annandale,"* according to the MS. pedigree of 1789, which gives his issue as follows:—

1. "William," of whom later (No. III.).
2. "Robert," of whom presently (No. IV.).
3. "John, who died unmarried" in Jamaica in October 1759, according to Account Books of his brother Robert (at St. Julians). A MS. Book of his own (also at St. Julians) says that he was born at Halldykes 24 April 1721, old style, and that after being in India and the West Indies he was in Business at Rotterdam with his brother Robert and later with his nephew Robert Herries from 1744 till 1754. In 1756 he left Scotland for Jamaica, but owing to his ships having been taken on two occasions by French privateers did not get there till 30 November 1757, at which date his MS. Book ends.
4. "Charles, who was twice married." His brother Robert's Account Books shew that he was living in 1762. He had three daughters: (1) Anna, wife of William Young, lieut.-governor of Tobago (1770) and Granada (1775), son of her aunt Mary Herries (see Mr. H. B. M'Call's "Some Old Families," p. 278); (2) Harriet, married, 1 Oct. 1768, at the age of 15 (ibid.), to William's younger brother, Robert Young. Her daughter Harriet Young, wife of Duncan Campbell of Inveraw, was mother of Lady Spearman, wife of Sir Alexander Spearman, Bart., so created in 1840; and her granddaughter Maria Young married as his second wife the Rev. Sir Frederick Vincent, 11th Bart.; (3) Margaret, who died in October 1830, according to a MS. Book of her cousin Robert Herries of Lynmouth (penes Mrs. Herbert Herries, 53 Warwick Square, London).
5. "Jane, married to Irvine of Woodhall, by whom she had a son Robert Irvine of Woodhall."
6. "Janet, unmarried."
7. "Margaret, married to Dr. Herbert Kennedy of Hallheaths, by whom she had a daughter Margaret." Margaret Kennedy was served heir-general, 1 April 1777, to her "Father Herbert Kennedy in Righeads, formerly of Halleaths," which last place in Dumfriesshire had long been held by this family.
8. "Elizabeth, who died unmarried" in 1780 at Edinburgh, according to the above-mentioned MS. Book of her nephew Robert Herries of Lynmouth (No. V. in the pedigree).
9. "Mary, who married Alexr. Young of Auchenskeoch in Galloway and had issue." Mary "Herries, relict of .... Alexander Young ...., had sasine of Auchenskeoch" 22 March 1750 (M'Kerlie's "Lands in Galloway," iii., pp. 344-5), and William Young was served heir, 30 October 1756, to his "Mother Mary Young Herries, wid. of Lieut. Al. Young of Auchenskeoch." This William's marriage with

* "Andro Johnston in Scroggs" was a witness at the above-mentioned sasine of 12 June 1704. On a window-sill over the porch at Halldykes (now a farm house) is cut R. H., MDCCXXII. M. I., meaning no doubt that it was built in 1722 for Robert Herries and Mary Johnston. Two wings of the house have been pulled down, and what remains is not much more than a good-sized cottage. Two of the rooms are handsomely panelled in oak in the style of Wren and his followers.

a daughter of his uncle Charles Herries has been mentioned above; his sister Margaret Young, second wife of Charles Spearman of Thornley, Durham, was grandmother of Sir Alexander Spearman, created a baronet in 1840. (See the Young pedigree in Mr. H. B. M'Call's. "Some Old Families," pp. 263—281.)

10. "Isabella, married to Robert Malcolm of Grange," Fifeshire, second son of Sir John Malcolm, Bart., so created "v.p. when under age," 25 July 1665 (G. E. C. "Complete Baronetage," iv., pp. 245-6). Robert Malcolm died "abroad 3 June 1769, aged 87" (ibid.), and "Mrs. Isabella Herries, widow of Robert Malcolm, Esq., of Grange," died 7 August 1793 "at Edinburgh." ("Scots Magazine," lv., p. 414.) The testament dative, inventory, etc., of Isabella Herries, widow of Archibald [sic] Malcolm of Grange, who died in 1793, was confirmed at Edinburgh 3 January 1795, being given up by "Sir Robert Herries, Knight, Banker in London, her nephew" (her brother William's eldest son), who had evidently forgotten his uncle's Christian name.

III. William Herries had sasine of Halldykes 23 October (registered at Dumfries 15 December) 1735, by virtue of a Precept of Clare Constat, dated 21 and 27 June 1728, by David, Viscount (with consent of David, Master of) Stormont, in his favour as lawful heir of the deceased Robert Herries of Halldykes, his father, to whom as his son and as "of Halldykes" he was served heir-general 21 April 1737. The date of 1697 given for his birth in some MS. pedigrees is perhaps too early, for his brother John (not the youngest) was born as late as 1721. Tradition says he was extravagant and devoted to sport. For the benefit of his creditors he disponed, 2 January 1751, to Mr. Goldie of Craigmuie and others his landed estate, which was bought at auction at Dumfries, 22 October 1751, by his brother Robert according to a "Docquette" at the end of the "Inventory" mentioned above in the list of authorities for this pedigree. He lived henceforward at Rosebank, a farm on the Halldykes property, where he died 24 September 1777, according to a letter (at St. Julians) to his brother Robert (in London), signed William Murray and dated Murrayfield, 25 September 1777.

He married "first Katherine, eldest daughter of John Henderson of Broadholme in Annandale" (MS. Pedigree of 1789). She died 8 February 1768, in her 61st year, according to a copy (at St. Julians) of the inscription on her tombstone in Dryfesdale Old Churchyard, where she and her husband were buried.* His second wife, who is said to have been of an inferior class in life (both her Christian and surnames are left blank in the MS. pedigree of 1789), was called Susanna, as appears from receipts signed by her for money sent her by her step-son Colonel Charles Herries, the last (at 53 Warwick Square) being dated Lockerbie, 3 July 1813. There were children of both marriages, of whom the writer proposes to give an account in the second part of this pedigree. William Herries's brother—

IV. Robert Herries, second son of Robert Herries (No. II.), was sometime a merchant at Rotterdam, where he was visited in 1745 by Dr. Alexander Carlyle, minister of Inveresk, an Edinburgh celebrity in his time, who describes him ("Autobiog.," 163-4) as "a handsome young man of a good family in Annandale, who had not succeeded in business at Dumfries, and had been sent over by my uncle Provost George Bell of that town as their agent .... He had immediately assimilated to the manners of the Dutch and was much respected among them."

* Her sister Grace Henderson, wife of William Johnstone of Lockerbie, was grandmother, through her daughter Grace Johnstone, Lady Douglas, of the 5th and 6th Marquesses of Queensberry. For some account of these Miss Hendersons see some papers in the "Annandale Herald," reprinted (at Lockerbie, 1865) under the title of "Dryfesdale Old Kirkyard and Excursions round Lockerbie."

Having acquired "what was considered in those days a competent fortune," says Sir William Forbes of Pitsligo ("Memoirs of a Banking House," 17), he "returned to his own country, where he purchased from his eldest brother the family estate of Halldykes."* Here he lived till 1771, when he removed to London to become "acting partner" in a bank that his brother William's eldest son Robert (knighted in 1774) was setting up in St. James's Street, for which position Sir William Forbes ("Memoirs of a Banking House," 30), an original partner in the concern, says he was "extremely well qualified." The "Gentleman's Magazine" for 1791 (July—December, 972) thus announces his death on 3 October: "At his house in King Street, S^{t} James's, in his 82^{d} year, Robert Herries, esq., of Halldyke, formerly partner in the banking house of his nephew, Sir Rob. H. of London. He is succeeded in his landed estate in Scotland by his only son of the same name." Between this son and his daughter Maria his personalty was to be divided according to his will (in which he is described as "of Halldykes . . . . now residing in London") dated 10 July 1786 and proved 26 October 1791 (P.C.C., 465, Bevor). He desires if he dies in London to be buried with his wife in Bunhill Fields Cemetery.

He married in 1747 "Isabella, eldest daughter of Sir Thomas Kirkpatrick of Closeburn, (3rd) Bart." (MS. Pedigree of 1789.) She died 17 October 1777, aged 47, according to a mourning ring and her son's MS. Book (both at 53 Warwick Square). By her he had issue:†—

1. Robert, of whom presently (No. V.).
2. Susanna. The "Scots Magazine" (xxxi., 447) thus announces her death (at the age of 20, according to a mourning ring) on 10 August 1769: "At Haldykes, Miss Susie Herries, eldest daughter of Robert Herries, Esq.; of Haldykes."
3. Maria, born 21 August 1762. She died 10 May 1834, according to the MS. Book of her brother with whom she lived.

V. Robert Herries was born at Halldykes 31 October 1767, according to his MS. Memorandum Book (at 53 Warwick Square). Sometime a partner in the above-mentioned bank in St. James's Street, he retired from business in 1815 and settled at Glenlyn, Lynmouth, North Devon. He also bought, apparently in partnership with his cousin the Right Hon. John Charles Herries (eldest son of Colonel Charles Herries, second son of the first marriage of William Herries of Halldykes, No. III.), land near Sevenoaks in Kent, where he built in 1822 a house called St. Julians, which he made over about 1836 to the same cousin. He died at Glenlyn 27 October 1845, and was buried at Brendon, near Lynmouth. In his will dated 21 September 1841, with a codicil of 12 February 1845, and proved (P.C.C.) 19 December 1845, he mentions the death of his sister Maria, and names as executors and principal legatees the above-mentioned Right Hon. J. C. Herries "and his brother" Sir William Lewis Herries. The latter (described in the legacy receipt as descendant of a brother of the deceased's father) inherited Glenlyn and the testator's house in King Street, St. James's. Among the other legatees were Sir Charles Kirkpatrick, 6th Bart. (called in the legacy receipt descendant of a brother of the deceased's mother), and James, 10th Lord Torpichen, whose mother was a Kirkpatrick.

* His Account Books shew that he also bought in 1751 Broadholme, sometime the property of John Henderson, brother of Mrs. William Herries (No. III). for £920, and that he sold it in 1770 to "Gordon of Halleaths" for £1,900.

† Robert Herries's Account Books (at St. Julians) record the following payments: 24 August 1762, one guinea to the poor and three to Mrs. Hughes, midwife, "on the baptism of my daughter Maria, born the 21st"; 1 November 1767, two guineas to the midwife and two shillings for an "Express to Closeburn to announce the birth of my son"; October 1770, "to Dr. Clapperton for inoculating my son £2 : 2, to Mr. Yorstoun, Surgeon, for attending him £3 : 3 and a watch"; June 1769, two guineas each to Drs. Gregory, Clapperton, and Gilchrist for a "consultation about my eldest daughter Susa."

MS. notes of Robert Herries (at 53 Warwick Square) and advertisements of sale (at St. Julians) shew that he sold the Halldykes estate (mainly to Mr. Thomas Beattie and Mr. William Stewart) in portions from 1801 to 1803 for £9,150. The property then consisted of 785 Scots (about 1000 English) acres, of which 217 were "mere heath," divided into five farms bringing in £264 10*s.* a year, apparently all paid in money. The tenants besides their rent paid the Land tax, Bridge, Rogue (a police rate), and Road money, and the school salary. The landlord had to pay yearly £7 (partly in kind) towards the minister's stipend and his feu-duty of £3 6*s.* 8*d.* to the feudal superior of the lands, the (3rd) Earl of Mansfield (8th Viscount Stormont). Robert Herries the father (as his Account Books at St. Julians shew) gave £2,700 for the property in 1751, and a "Rentall" (at St. Julians) signed by Mr. Goldie and purporting to be referred to in the "trust disposition" granted by William Herries (No. III.), 2 January 1751, gives the then yearly rents from six farms and a "miln" at £120 10*s.* 8*d.*, paid (as the custom then was) partly in money, partly in services, such as carting hay or peat, and partly in "kain" fowls, of which fifty-four valued at fourpence each were due yearly from the tenants; the feu-duty and payment to the minister were the same as in 1801. £120 was a high rental for so small a property at that time if Mr. H. G. Graham may be trusted, who says ("Social Life in Scotland in the 18th Century," i., 4) that a "Scots landowner in the early part of the century was wealthy with a rent roll of £500, rich with an income of from £300 to £200, well off with £100 or £80; and many gentlemen of good degree .... had to preserve their station with £50 to £20 a year."

The Smythies of Essex and Suffolk.

(A 10) William Smythies, son of William Smythies (A 1), is recorded in Emmanuel College Registers as having entered that College in 1651, and taken his A.B. degree in 1659. In 1660 he was presented by Robert Baldock to the Rectory of Tacolneston in Norfolk, and held that living till 1671, when he resigned (Blomfield's "Norfolk," v., 170); after that he was, as is shewn by a family document (Deed of assignment of the Whitehouse and lands in Witnesham in the county of Suffolk by Elizabeth Cremer, née Palmer, widow of Robert Cremer, to William Smythies, dated 18 March 1673), for a time resident in and probably Curate of the parish of St. Mary Matfellon, Whitechapel, but during the year 1673 he became Curate-in-charge of the church of St. Giles, Cripplegate, and his name first appears in the church books as Chairman of the Vestry Meeting held on the 17th April of that year. The titular vicar was one of the bishops, but the position was in fact filled by William Smythies, who for over thirty years, when religious feeling ran high and much tact must have been required, conducted the spiritual affairs of this important parish. The last time his name appears as Curate and Chairman of the Vestry is in April 1704. In the following June Samuel Burgis is shewn as Curate and Chairman. The deed quoted above, and others still in possession of his descendants, shew that during the time William Smythies was at Cripplegate he gradually acquired a property known as the Whitehouse and lands situated in the parish of Witnesham, co. Suffolk, from his wife's relations, the Palmers, the final deed being a release to him of this property by Charles Palmer, his brother-in-law, dated 24 September 1698. To this property he retired in his old age, and for three years acted as Curate of Witnesham.

On 12 November 1674, as recorded in the register of St. Giles's, Cripplegate, the poet John Milton was buried in that church, and William Smythies, being then Curate-in-charge, presumably performed or at any rate assisted at the ceremony. Tolerant in his views and charitable to all in distress, he suffered much abuse and calumny himself through being kind to those whose religious views were different from his own. His enemies tried to prove that he was disloyal to the throne, because in one of his sermons he spoke with disapproval of "the Prince of this World," and some spiteful people brought it to the ear of the King that he was "an associate with dissenters," in those days a serious accusation, but he managed to hold his own and to continue his good works.

As a preacher and religious controversialist he was well known, and a pamphlet of his entitled "The Benefit of Early Piety," addressed to the three young sons of his friend Sir Nathaniel Hern, first published in 1684, had in 1729 reached a fifteenth edition. He is described on the title-page of this pamphlet as "Morning Lecturer at S^t^ Michael, Cornhil, London." With Sir R. l'Estrange ("The Observator"), who seems to have made it his business to attack the bishops and prominent clergy, he had a heated controversy, in the course of which he refers to his experiences before the Restoration, and says when "I had hid myself in a private place in the Essex Hundreds I was routed thence by one of Oliver's Agents because my name was then Malignant." ("Three Replies to the Observator," 1684; "The Benefit of Early Piety," 1684; "Advice to Apprentices," 1687; and other pamphlets, British Museum.)

"1715. The Rev^{d} M^{r} W^{m} Smythies, many years Curate of S^{t} Giles Cripplegate, in London, and three years Curate of this Parish, was buried in the Churchyard at the Chancell end. June 29."

"1719. M^{rs} Hephzibah Smythies, Relict of the Reverend M^{r} Smythies, late of Cripplegate, buried. Aged 84. May 12. She lies in the South Wing of the Church amongst her own Relations the Palmers, a Family of Good Sort and Standing in this Parish tho now reduced."

By his will William Smythies left the Whitehouse, Witnesham, with all the lands thereunto belonging, to Hephzibah his wife "during her life and after her decease to my grandson Palmer Smythies and to his heirs . . . . willing him to pay yearly to my brother-in-law Charles Palmer forty shillings . . . . nevertheless if it shall so happen that his mother Thamar Smythies become a widow then she the said Thamar shall after the death of my said wife have the full rents, etc., excepting the forty shillings . . . . so long as she continues a widow. I give . . . . goods and furniture to my granddaughter Hephzibah Meadows, desiring her to preserve the wrought Bed for her Daughter Hephzibah, now a child. Also I give unto my wife six spoons, five salts, one salver, one Ladle, one porringer, all silver . . . . (annuities here follow) . . . . unto each of my two great-grandchildren James and Hephzibah Meadows a silver tankard, and to their sister Sarah Meadows my silver coffee-pott . . . . unto my grandson Thomas Smythies of Colchester and to his heirs my Coppyhold house . . . . lying in Wittnesham . . . . with all the coppyhold lands adjoining . . . . also I give unto my son Peter Smythies and to his heirs my Coppyhold house lately inhabited by Charles Palmer, with all the coppyhold Lands . . . . lying in Wittnesham . . . . also I give unto my grandchildren Mary Smythies, Dorothy Smythies, and Susan Smythies of Colchester each of them ten pounds . . . . Lastly I give unto my dear friend M^{r} Robert Goodwin, Rector of Liston in the County of Essex, Twenty pounds and do . . . . appoint him . . . . executor. Dated 9 July 1717 (evidently an error for 1714). Proved at London in P.C.C. 15 August 1715 by Robert Goodwyn, the executor named (166, Fagg).

(A 11) Robert Smythies was born when William Smythies his father was Rector of Tacolneston, and his baptism is recorded in the Parish Register as follows: "Ano 1665. Robertus filius Willielmi Smythies & Hephziba uxoris ejus natus fuit quinto die Novembris baptizatus decimo tertio die ejusdem mensis an• prdicto." The Register of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, contains the following entry: "1684, Jun. 25. Smythies, Robert, S.R. Norf., A.B. 1687."

(A 12) Christopher Smythies was also born when William Smythies his father was Rector of Tacolneston. His baptismal entry in the Parish Register is as follows: "1666. Christopher filius Wilielmi Smythies & Hephziba uxoris ejus baptizatus fuit vicesimo octavo (?) die mensis Decembris Ano prdicto." He only lived two years and a half. His burial is recorded as follows: "1669. Christopher Smythies sepultus quinto die July."

N.B.—It is likely that James Smythies who is recorded in the College Register as having entered Emmanuel College, Cambridge, 3 July 1686, was another son of William Smythies (A 10), born between 1666 and 1673. He is not shewn as having taken the degree of A.B., and he is not mentioned in the will of William Smythies (1714); probably therefore, if he was his son, he died young.

(A 13) Peter Smythies was born several years after his elder brothers, when his father William Smythies was curate-in-charge of St. Giles's, Cripplegate, in the Registers of which church is the following entry: "Baptisms. Peter s. (son of) William Smytheis, Clerk, and of Hephzibah, borne 22d December (1673), christened 5th Janry 1674." He "was the youngest son of William Smythies, late of Witnesham in the County of Suffolk, Clerk" (Cardons Hall in Witnesham, Mr. Sergeant Smythies' release of title to the Rev. Mr. Palmer Smythies, dated 12 January 1741), and had one son named Sergeant Smythies (see A 14, below).

In the deed quoted above he is referred to as "of the City of Norwich." His wife's name is not known, but the peculiar Christian name given to his son suggests that her surname may have been Sergeant.

Peter Smythies was left the "coppyhold house lately inhabited by Charles Palmer with all the coppyhold Lands .... lying in Witnesham"* by the will of his father, proved 1715 (see A 10, above).

(A 14) Sergeant Smythies, the son of Peter Smythies. In a deed, still in the possession of the family, dated 12 January 1741 (Cardons Hall in Witnesham, Mr Sergeant Smythies' release of Title to the Revd Mr Palmer Smythies), Sergeant Smythies is thus cited: "Sergeant Smythies of the City of London, only son of Peter Smythies of the City of Norwich in the County of Norfolk, who was the youngest son of William Smythies, late of Witnesham in the County of Suffolk, Clerk, deceased." The deed is too long to quote at length. Its object is to remove a doubt, due to the wording of the will of William Smythies, as to the title of Palmer Smythies to three acres of land forming part of the property in Witnesham left him by his grandfather William Smythies, and it records that "Whereas the said Peter Smythies the father of the said Sergeant Smithies as youngest son of the said William Smythies was, according to the custom of the said manor, heir of the said William, the said Palmer Smythies to clear the doubt arising upon his title .... hath contracted and agreed with the said Sergeant Smythies for all his estate, right title and interest therein at the price and for the sum of therteen pounds two shillings and sixpence."

Sergeant Smythies is believed to have died unmarried. Had he had a son, the son's rights in the Witnesham property, as well as his own, would doubtless have been renounced in the document quoted above.

* In the pedigree, for "Walter Belchamp" (p. 175) read "Witnesham."

At Emmanuel College, Cambridge, he graduated A.B. 1682 (Grad. Cant. 1659 to 1823, B.M.); became Rector of St. Michael's, Mile End, 20 Dec. 1687 (Newcourt).

In the church of St. Michael, Mile End, is the following mural inscription: "Juxta jacet Gulielmus Smythies hujus Parochiæ Rector ann. 32, obiit Mar. 7 1719 [the pedigree in Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205, gives 9 March 1720 as the date of death], æt. 57. Jacet etiam in are proxime suggestum [?, Lettering blurred] Thamor uxor ejus: Obiit Nov. 6, 1734, ætatis 69, relictis septem sepultis 4 liberis."

His wife's maiden name was Thamar Furley (Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205). She was daughter and coheiress of Stephen Furley of Colchester.

(A 16) John Smythies, son of William Smythies of Witnesham (A 10). The Parish Registers at Tacolneston record the baptism of John Smythies as follows: "Anº 1664. Johanes filius Willielmi Smythies & Hephziba uxoris ejus baptizatus fuit vicesimo secundo die mensis Aprili Anº p^{r}dicto."

John Smythies, Groton, Clerk, who is mentioned in the Suffolk Poll, 1702, may be identical with this John. No mention is made of his son John by William Smythies in his will (1714), and he was probably dead before that date.

(A 17) William Smythies of Colchester, son of William Smythies of Mile End (A 15), was born 10 January 1698-9 and baptized at St. Michael's, Mile End (Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205). His epitaph in the churchyard of St. Michael's, Mile End, is as follows: "Near this stone is buried M^{r} William Smythies formerly of Colchester, Surgeon, who died April 13th, 1772, Aged 75 Years. Deceased was Father of James Blatch, Esq., whose remains are deposited in the next grave, and brother of the Rev. P. Smythies, for many years Rector of this Parish." He was buried 20 April 1772 (Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205).

He married as his 1st wife, 12 February 1734, at St. Mary Magdalen's, Colchester, Margarita Richard, daughter of . . . . de Vandergues, who was buried at St. Michael's, Mile End, 4 January 1737, and as his 2nd wife Elizabeth, daughter of . . . . Blatch (Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205), who died 11 September 1807.

(A 18) Thomas Smythies of Lavenham, son of William Smythies of Mile End (A 15), was at Sidney-Sussex Coll., Cambridge, and graduated A.B. 1725 and A.M. 1729 (Grad. Cant. 1659 to 1823, B.M.). He was Master of the Free Grammar School in Lavenham from 1732 to 1746 (Newcourt's "Repertorium," p. 946), and in 1743 purchased the living of Alpheton, co. Suffolk, as shewn by the following:—

An Indenture made 24 Jan. in the 17th year of the reign of King George II. and A.D. 1743 "Between Sheffield Martin of Alpheton in the County of Suffolk, Clerk, and Elizabeth his wife, Catherine Martin of Alpheton aforesaid, Widow and Relict of Thomas Martin of Alpheton aforesaid, clerk, lately deceased, and Christopher Martin of Alpheton aforesaid, Gentleman, only son and heir of the said Thomas Martin, of the one part, and Thomas Smythies of Lavenham in the said County, Clerk, of the other part," which "Witnesseth that on and in consideration of the sum of five hundred pounds" paid by the said Thomas Smythies to Sheffield, Elizabeth, Catherine, and Christopher Martin aforesaid or one of them, ... "good causes and considerations them thereunto moving they the said Sheffield Martin (etc.) . . . . by these presents Do fully and absolutely Grant, Bargain, Sell, Alien, Release a(nd con)firm unto the said Thomas Smythies his heirs a(nd A)ssignees for ever All that the advowson, Nomination (etc.) . . . . and right of Patronage of in and to the (Rec)tory and Parish Church of Alpheton aforesaid . . . . (Signed) THO'S SMYTHIES.
ANNE SMYTHIES.

Anne Smythies (née Summers) was the daughter of Henry Summers of Sible Hedingham, co. Essex, Esq. (Morant), and the following document concerning her seems sufficiently curious to warrant its reproduction in full. The original document was formerly in possession of Rev. James Blatch, Vicar of Basingstoke. (See A 25, below.)

LICENCE FOR A LADY TO CURE THE KING'S EVIL.

Robert Nash, Doctor of Laws, Vicar General in Spirituals of the Right Reverend Father in God Thomas by Divine permission Lord Bishop of Norwich, lawfully constituted. To our well-beloved in Christ M^rs^ Anne Smythies, the wife of the Reverend M^r^ Thomas Smythies of Lavenham in the county of Suffolk and Diocese of Norwich, health in Our Lord. Whereas We have received sufficient and credible testimony of your skill and knowledge in the art of cureing blotches, breakings-out, and such-like diseases, called the King's Evil, and whereas we have received your consent and subscription to the articles of religion agreed upon by the Archbishops, Bishops, and Clergy of both provinces at the Convocation holden in London in the year of our Lord Christ 1562 and confirmed by regal authority; and also your oath of allegiance to his Majesty King Geo. 2 according to a late Act of Parliament in that case made and provided; have thought fit to licence and by these presents do licence you publickly to use and practice the said art of cureing blotches, breakings-out, and such-like diseases, called the King's Evil, within the Diocese of Norwich, and will this our licence to endure during our pleasure and your good demeanour, and no longer nor otherwise.

Dated the 26th day of March in the year of our Lord 1743.

(Signed) JOHN NARKER, Notary Publick, Dep. Reg.

(The Episcopal seal affixed.)

By the will of William Smythies of Witnesham Thomas Smythies inherited a copyhold house in Witnesham,* with all the copyhold lands adjoining (see A 10, above). This was probably Cardons Hall (see A 31, below).

Thomas Smythies died without issue (affidavit made by Rev. John Smythies in 1815).

* Erratum.—In the pedigree, for "Walter Belchamp" read "Witnesham."

Walasses Farm in Great Maplestead belonged to the widow of the Rev. Thomas Smythies in 1768 (Morant's "Essex," ii., 280).

(A 19) Yorick Smythies of Colchester, son of William Smythies (A 17) by his first wife Margarita de Vandergues, was baptized 10 February 1737 at St. Mary-at-the-Walls, Colchester. He died seised in effect intestate, having made a will and the devisees therein having all died in his lifetime (Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205). He was buried in the Church of St. Martin, Colchester, where there is the following inscription :—

"13 Oct. 1824. Died Yorick Smythies, A.M. of S^t^ John's College, Cambridge, son of William Smythies and Margaret de Vandergues, 54 years Rector of this parish, 59 years Rector of L. Bentley ; officiating minister of both Churches during nearly the whole of that time, a magistrate for the County of Essex, whose remains with those of his wife M^rs^ Anne Smythies, daughter of the Rev^d^ Thomas Leigh of Greenwich, who died Jan^y^ 27^th^ 1814, aged 76, are deposited in the middle aisle of this Church."

He was Chaplain to the Royal Horse Guards 28 Jan. 1765 to 1787 (Army List).

(A 20) William Smythies, son of William Smythies (A 17) by his second wife Elizabeth Blatch (Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205). A note in the Twining Family Papers, evidently referring to this William Smythies, states that he died a bachelor.

(A 21) Anne Smythies, daughter of William Smythies (A 17) by his second wife Elizabeth Blatch (Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205).

(A 22) James Smythies, son of William Smythies (A 17) by his second wife Elizabeth Blatch, obtained a licence to change his surname to that of Blatch.* This licence is "entered in the Earl Marshall's Book marked I. 32," fo. 103, and dated 14 March 1772. It states that "Whereas our Trusty and well beloved James Smythies of Colchester in our County of Essex Esq^r^ has by his Petition" asked to change his surname from Smythies to Blatch, in accordance with the will of Sarah Edwards, his aunt, who left him a legacy on that condition, "our Will and pleasure is that you Richard, Earl of Scarborough, Deputy to the said Marshal .... do require and command that this our concession and Declaration be accordingly registered in our College of Arms .... By his Majesty's Command. (Signed) Suffolk."

James Blatch and his wife were buried in Mile End Churchyard, and over their grave is the following inscription :—

"Under this stone lie the remains of James Blatch, Esq^re^, of S^t^ Mary's-at-the-Walls, Colchester, who died December 18^th^, 1811, Aged 63. Also under this stone are deposited the remains of Elizabeth Blatch, widow of the said James Blatch, who departed this life October 22^nd^, 1815, Aged 72 years."

Elizabeth Blatch's maiden name was Dennis (Twining Family Papers). Her will, dated 9 February 1812, was proved by her son James Blatch, Vicar of Basingstoke, 1815 (Family Papers).

(A 23) Charlotte Smythies, daughter of William Smythies (A 17) by his second wife Elizabeth Blatch, was buried in Mile End Churchyard, and over her grave is the following inscription : "M^rs^ Charlotte Doyle, wife of M^r^ Joseph Doyle of Stratford-le-Bow, daughter of M^r^ William Smythies of Colchester, died of consumption, leaving two sons William and Edward, was buried near her Brother James Blatch March 20^th^, 1778, Aged 27. This stone was erected to her Memory by her nephew James Blatch, Vicar of Basingstoke." In the same churchyard is buried her son William Smythies Doyle, the inscription stating that he died 28 January 1796, aged 23, and in the Church of All Saints, Colchester, a mural tablet records the death of her second son Edward Doyle. The inscription on this is somewhat quaint. It runs: "To the memory of Edward Doyle, Esq., late of Trinity College, Oxford, and an inhabitant of this parish, who on his return from the Hot Well, Bristol, where he had been sometime for the recovery of his health, expired suddenly in his carriage on the 27th of September 1793 in the arms of an affectionate Uncle and in the 19th year of his age." Then follows poetry by "Y(orick) Smythies, Avunculus."

(A 25) James Blatch, son of James Smythies (A 22), died unmarried (Twining Family Papers) and the male descendants of William Smythies (A 17) then became extinct.

The Rev. Richard Hoblyn was Rector of All Saints, Colchester.

(A 27) Elizabeth Blatch, daughter of James Smythies (A 22), married Augustus Beevor, had issue and died 1852. (Twining Family Papers.)

(A 29) Dorothy Smythies, daughter of William Smythies of Mile End (A 15).

N.B.—A 28, 29, and 30 were left £10 each by William Smythies of Witnesham, their grandfather, in his will proved 1715. (See A 10, above.)

(A 31) Palmer Smythies, the eldest son of William Smythies of Mile End (A 15) (Letter dated Probate Registry, Somerset House, 30 June 1881, from J. C. C. Smith, Esq., to Francis Smythies, Esq., of Colchester), was born 18 Oct. 1691 and baptized at Mile End, Colchester, 23 October following (Par. Reg.). He was at Sidney-Sussex Coll., Cambridge, became A.B. 1712, A.M. 1716 (Grad. Cant., B.M.), and Fellow of his College 1727 (Twining Family Papers). He succeeded his father as Rector of St. Michael's, Mile End, and was instituted to the living on 28 March 1720 (Morant). On 1 September 1721 he was appointed also Rector of St. Mary Magdalen and Master of King James's Hospital, Colchester. These latter benefices he held till 1773, when he was succeeded by his son John.

The first page of the Register of St. Mary Magdalen, Colchester, contains the following entry:—

"Palmer Smythies appointed Master of the Hospital of King James alias St Mary Magdalen Hospital, in Colchester, September 1st, 1721, By Thomas, Lord (soon after) Earl of Macclesfield, Lord High Chancellor, who at his own cost and charges fitted up the church for Divine Service after it had been disused at least ever since the siege of Colchester. The expenses amounted to Fifty-two Pounds six shillings and eleven pence halfpenny."

The last signature in the Register of Palmer Smythies as "Hosp. Magister" is dated 21 December 1772. His son John succeeded him in 1773, in which year his signature as Master appears in the books.

In addition to his other appointments Palmer Smythies held the position of Master of the Royal Grammar School, Colchester, to which post he was elected on 20 December 1727, and held the Mastership till 1776, the year of his death, when he was succeeded by the Rev. Samuel Parr.

The title of Royal Grammar School was conferred by Letters Patent 31 of Henry VIII., 1539. This was confirmed and the school endowed 27 Elizabeth 1585.

Palmer Smythies was admitted to the Freedom of Colchester on 9 December 1728. (Red Parchment Book (or Oath Book) of Colchester, p. 229 of the printed version.)

The inscription over the family vault at Mile End in which he is buried is as follows : " Here lie the remains of Palmer Smythies who was 56 years Rector of this Church and whose faithful discharge of every duty to his Parish, his Family, and his Friends will long endear him to their memory. He died Dec^r. 25, 1776, aged 85."

After the death in 1746 of Thomas Smythies who had bought the living of Alpheton from the Martin family in 1743 (see A 18, above), the Patronage of Alpheton came to Palmer Smythies (Anne the widow of Thomas Smythies may have held the right of presentation jointly with Palmer Smythies till her death) and in 1774 he left it by his will to Francis Smythies his youngest son and executor. The White House estate in Witnesham was left to him by his grandfather William Smythies (see A 10, above) and at his death he left it to his sons William, Humphrey, and George and his daughter Anne, "equally to be divided between them," an arrangement which, judging from the will, does not seem to have met with the approval of his eldest son William (see below). A bill of costs to Mr. Palmer Smythies, dated 15 November 1731, for " taking and entering ye absolute surrend^r from M^r Thomas Smythies to M^r Palmer Smythies " of " Cardons Hall in Witnesham " shews that Palmer Smythies acquired this property from his brother at that date.

" I give . . . . all that Messuage, Tenement, and farm called the White House and the Barns, Stables, Buildings, Lands and Appurtenances thereto belonging lying in the parish of Witnesham or elsewhere in the county of Suffolk . . . . unto my sons William, Humphry, and George and my daughter Anne and their heirs and assigns for ever, equally to be divided between them as Tenants in common, moreover I do order and direct that the small piece of Copyhold land in Witnesham aforesaid, which I purchased of my late Brother Thomas and also the House, Barn and Stable with the appurtenances in Mile End parish now or heretofore called the Oak be sold by my Executors . . . . and that the money arising from such sale shall be divided between my said sons William, Humphry, and George and my said daughter Anne " (here follow recommendations to George to buy an annuity, etc., and then a provision that if) " William shall disturb my said other children in their possession or enjoyment of the said Witnesham Estate or shall refuse to join in the sale of the other estates hereby directed to be sold, then I revoke all the covenants and appointments of this my will in his Favour and give, limit and appoint his share to my said other children Humphry, George and Anne and their heirs for ever equally. Item, I give and devise the advowson and Right of presentation of the Living of Alpheton in the county of Suffolk with the appurtenances unto my son Francis Smythies and his heirs for ever upon condition that the next time it shall become vacant he or his heirs shall present my said son Humphry thereto if he shall be then living, and the next time it shall become vacant that he or his heirs shall present my son John thereto if he shall be then living, and the next time it shall become vacant that he or his heirs shall present my Son-in-Law Thomas Twining thereto if he shall be then living." (Humphrey and John were appointed ; Thomas Twining died during Humphrey's incumbency.) After leaving his plate and linen to his wife and £100 and an annuity to his daughter Susan, he continues, " residue of my personal estate after payment of my debts and funeral charges . . . . I give to my wife and three younger children John, Francis, and Elizabeth, equally to be divided between them, and I appoint my said wife and son Francis to be executor of this my Will. Signed and sealed 6^th day of July 1774. P. Smythies. Signed by the said Palmer Smythies in the presence of John Blyth, John Gibson, Ben. Johnson." Proved in P.C.C. 28 January 1777 by Francis Smythies the son. (42, Collier.)

The first wife of Palmer Smythies was Susan Puplet. This is shewn by an indenture dated 2 January 1732 which "Witnesseth that the said Palmer Smythies for and in consideration of the great affection & Love which he beareth unto Thamar Smythies, widow, mother of the s^d^ Palmer Smythies, and Susan, William, Humphry, Ann, George, Thomas, & Charles, children of the s^d^ Palmer Smythies by Susan his late wife heretofore Susan Puplet" .... "hath granted .... Edward Leeds and William Bree .... the White House .... Upon this special Trust and Confidence nevertheless .... that they .... shall permit and suffer the aforesaid Thamar Smythies, mother of the s^d^ Palmer Smythies, to have and receive to her own use and benefit the rents, issues and profits .... during the term of her nat. Life if she shall so long continue Sole & unmarried," etc.

From the date of the birth of Palmer Smythies himself and of his eldest daughter Susan (see A 34, below) it is clear that he must have married his first wife about 1719 or a little earlier. Her death is recorded by a quaint inscription on a mural monument over the family vault in Mile End Churchyard. The wording is as follows: "Prudent and agreeable | modest without Affectation | sprightly with good Nature | the love of all that knew her | good without Ostentation | pious with Chearfulness | relying on the Merits of | a crucified Saviour | thro' him beloved of God | SUSAN | the affectionate Wife of | PALMER SMYTHIES | the tender Mother of 10 | Children 7 of which survived | her. Died July the 24, 1731 | And lies buried close up to | this Wall in the Churchyard."

Nothing has so far been ascertained regarding her parents, but it is believed they belonged to Ipswich, where a street called Purplet Street still exists, and that they were possibly members of that colony of Huguenot refugees which at the end of the seventeenth and beginning of the eighteenth century settled in the eastern counties.

The second wife of Palmer Smythies was Elizabeth Brazier, daughter of Rev. John Brazier, Rector of Great Holland and Easthorp, who was a member of an old Essex family descending from Anthony Brazier, Rector of Ingatestone, who died 1609-10 (Letter from J. C. C. Smith, Esq., Probate Registry, Somerset House, dated 30 June 1881); she was, with her two sisters, coheiress of her father (informant, J. K. Smythies her great-grandson in 1880). She married 1732 (see dates: death of 1st wife and birth of first child by 2nd wife); died at Colchester and was buried at St. Michael's, Mile End, in the family vault there. Her will was proved 9 January 1799.

A small oval portrait of Palmer Smythies, painted in oils on canvas by George Roth in 1773, is in possession of Frank Borthwick Smythies, Esq. (B 51), and a copy of it, painted in oils from the original, is owned by Major Raymond Smythies (A 70), also a miniature reproduction on ivory.

(A 32) Furley Smythies, son of William Smythies (A 15) of Mile End, and younger brother of Palmer Smythies, was born 18 September 1693 and baptized 9 October following. (Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205.)

(A 33) Hephzibah Smythies, daughter of William Smythies (A 15) of Mile End, was born 14 July 1695 and baptized 11 August following (Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205); she married Alexander Meadows and had issue James, Hepzibah, and Sarah. (Add. MSS. 19,086 and will of William Smythies of Witnesham.)

and baptized 27 December 1721. He died 9 April and was buried 12 April 1722 at Mile End. (Extract Family Bible and Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205.)

(A 36) William Smythies, son of Palmer Smythies (A 31), was born 18 Nov. and baptized 4 December 1722 at St. Mary's-at-the-Walls, Colchester; buried 5 November 1780 at St. Peter's, Colchester. Administration was granted to his daughter Catherine by the Prerogative Court 24 November 1780 (Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205; Par. Reg. St. Mary Magdalen, Colchester, etc.). He owned Green Street Hall, North House, and Martels in East Mersey, and "Lucas's" in Stisted parish (Morant's "Essex," i., 430, and ii., 256—58). He was at Sidney-Sussex Coll., Cambridge; became A.B. 1743, A.M. 1761 (Grad. Cant., B.M.) and Fellow of his College ("Gent. Mag.," xvii., 154). He was the first member of the family to benefit by the purchase of the living of Alpheton by the Rev. Thomas Smythies his uncle. Thomas Smythies died in 1746, so also did the Rev. Sheffield Martin, Rector of Alpheton; the living then became vacant for the first time since its purchase by Thomas Smythies, and William Smythies was appointed to succeed Mr. Martin, but was not inducted till 25 March 1747. (Alpheton Par. Reg., Bk. I., p. 60.) He was Vicar of St. Peter's, Colchester, 1759 ("Gent. Mag.," xxix., 607), inducted 1760, and held the living till his death (Add. MSS. 33,521). He is mentioned in his father's will. (See A 31, above.)

William Smythies married, 14 July 1747 (Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205), Anna Dorothea Carleton, at St. Michael's, Mile End, Colchester. She died and was buried at St. Peter's, Colchester, 5 September 1777 (mural tablet, left of pulpit, St. Peter's, Colchester). One of the sponsors at the baptism of her daughter Dorothea was Christopher Carleton, who was probably her father, to whom this Christian name is ascribed with a query.

(A 37) Catherine Smythies,* daughter of William Smythies (A 36), born 7 April and baptized at Alpheton 29 April 1748, her sponsors being Samuel Wigg, Elizabeth Smythies, and Catherine Carleton; married 1793 (Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205, and Alpheton Register). Her death is thus recorded in the "Ipswich Journal," 10 July 1819, and "Gent. Mag.," July 1819, p. 2: "Monday, died after a painful affliction, aged 71, M^rs^ Catherine Smythies, da. of the late Rev^d^ William Smythies, Rector of Alpheton in this co. and Vicar of S^t^ Peter's, Colch." From these references it would appear that Catherine Smythies married a cousin of her own name, but the Register at Alpheton, which for a time was very imperfectly kept, does not make this clear.

(A 38) Dorothea Smythies, daughter of William Smythies (A 36), was born at Colchester 21 November 1751 and baptized at St. Mary's (at-the-Walls) there, her sponsors being Christopher Carleton, Ann Smythies, and Susan Smythies. (Registered at Alpheton in Bk. I., on p. 60.)

(A 39) William Smythies, son of William Smythies (A 36), was born 18 July 1753 and baptized at Alpheton 5 September, his sponsors being Palmer Smythies, George Heath, and Hasler Affleck; Surgeon in the Army; died 1781 or 1782. Administration granted to Margaret his wife by Prerogative Court 23 March 1785. He married Margaret Burgess at New York 28 April 1777 (Par. Reg. Alpheton and Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205), and there died. She survived her husband and married 2ndly Sir Edmund Affleck, 1st Bart., 14 May 1788 (Burke's "Peerage," information given by Elizabeth Smythies his granddaughter, etc.). In Burke's "Peerage" Lady Affleck's Christian name is incorrectly given as Mary instead of Margaret.

(A 40) John Smythies, son of William Smythies (A 36), was born 30 July and baptized 4 August 1754. He died 4 October 1754 and was buried at Alpheton. (Par. Reg. Alpheton and Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205.)

(A 41) Carleton Smythies, son of William Smythies (A 36), died without issue. (Add. MSS. 19,149, and information given by Elizabeth Smythies his great-niece).

(A 42) Harriet Smythies, daughter of William Smythies (A 36), was born 25 November 1760 and married Jacob Whittington. She made an affidavit in December 1830 of her pedigree from her great-grandfather William Smythies (A 15) of Mile End, in which a curious mistake has been made, from which it would appear that William Smythies (A 17), with his brothers and sisters, and William Smythies (A 36), with his brothers and sisters, were all children of William Smythies (A 15) of Mile End, who died more than two years before William Smythies (A 36) was born, and is shewn in the Whittington pedigree to have done so. It is not surprising that Mrs. Whittington, who was over 90 years of age when the affidavit was made, should have been bewildered by the numerous Williams, but it is curious that the person who drew up the pedigree should not have noticed so obvious an error. Apart from this mistake the particulars regarding individuals, almost all of which it has been possible to check by comparison with wills, parish registers, etc., appear to be perfectly correct (they were no doubt taken from documents), but it is necessary to call special attention to the inaccuracy of this pedigree, as otherwise it might cause serious confusion.

The facts, as set forth in PEDIGREE 𝔄, are that William Smythies (A 36), who married Anna Dorothea Carleton, was the son by his first wife, Susan Puplet, of Palmer Smythies (A 31), who was the eldest brother of William Smythies (A 17), who married 1stly Margarita de Vandergues and 2ndly Elizabeth Blatch; Palmer Smythies (A 31) and William Smythies (A 36) being the sons of William Smythies (A 15), who married Thamar Furley.

(A 43) William Carleton Smythies, son of William Smythies (A 39) of Oldland Hall in Oldland, co. Gloucester, in 1830, was born at New York in 1778 (Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205). He was gazetted Cornet 6th (Inniskilling) Dragoons 18 August 1796 and was still serving in 1798, but his name disappears from the list of officers in 1799, and he evidently retired before marriage (Army List). He married, 21 March 1799, Æmilia Irving, daughter of Joshua Gosselin of Guernsey, and of Ware, co. Hertford, Esq. She died at Bath in 1858, æt. 82, and he died in 1853. (Gosselin Pedigree, Twining and Smythies Family Papers.)

(A 44) . . . . Smythies, another son* of William Smythies (A 39), who died in infancy, Christian name not known. (Add. MSS. 19,149, fo. 205.)

(A 45) Carleton Smythies, son of William Carleton Smythies of Oak Lawn, co. Suffolk, and Roman Hill, near Colchester; married Theodosia, da. of Sir Henry Hawley, 2nd Bart., but died without issue 17 July 1862.† He and his brother Thomas (A 46) were the last male descendants of William, son of Palmer Smythies, Rector of Mile End, by his first marriage, and both failing to leave issue, Henry Raymond Smythies (A 64), direct descendant of Humphrey, the other son of Palmer by his first marriage who left issue, became senior representative of the family.

(A 46) Thomas Gosselin Smythies, son of William Carleton Smythies, died unmarried. He was appointed Vicar of St. John's, Cinderford, 1844. ("St. James's Chronicle," February 3-6, 1844.)

* Erratum.—Delete the words "and eight daughters," which appear in the pedigree, ante, p. 179.

† Sir Joseph Hawley, 3rd Baronet, brother of Mrs. Carleton Smythies, won "The Derby" on four occasions, viz., in 1851, 1858, 1859, 1868.

(A 47) Elizabeth Smythies, living at Weston Lawn, Bath, 1880, died unmarried.

(A 48) Sarah Smythies, living at Weston Lawn, Bath, 1880, died unmarried.

(A 49) Catherine Smythies, married J. Hooper.

(A 50) Christian Mary Smythies, living at Weston Lawn, Bath, 1880, died unmarried 22 May 1891.

(A 51) Joshua Smythies, son of William Carleton Smythies, died young.

(A 52) Humphrey Smythies, son of Palmer Smythies (A 31), was baptized at St. Mary-at-the-Walls, Colchester, but the record of his birth and baptism, in which it may be noted his name is spelt Humphrey, is in the Register at St. Mary Magdalene, Colchester. The following quaint entry is found on the first page of the Register at South Moreton: "The Rev^d M^r Smythies gave ten books of the new version of the Psalms for the use of the Singers of South Moreton for which the Church Wardens are annually accountable to the Minister—in the year of our Lord 1766. These books were given—John Bohem, Dennis Alder, Church Wardens." And below, "N.B.—the sole intent of this memorandum is that the Books may not be embezzled privately, Hum'y Smythies." A notice of his preferment to Blewbury-cum-Upton in 1759 occurs in "Gent. Mag.," xxix., 195, and of his preferment to Alpheton in 1781 in the same, li., 48. In Alpheton Church is a mural monument with the following inscription: "In memory of Humphry [sic] Smythies, M.A., Rector of this Parish, who died May 30^th, 1806, in the 83^rd year of his age." By his father's will he was left a share in the Witnesham property (see A 31, above).

Humphrey Smythies married Katherine Abbot (widow of Mr. Abbot of Abingdon), whose maiden name was Carter, and from the date of the birth of their son Henry Yeats (A 59) it is probable the marriage took place about the end of 1763 or beginning of 1764, but enquiries at Abingdon and elsewhere have not been successful in eliciting further information. She died and was buried at Stanground, where her son was Vicar, and a mural monument in the chapel at the east end of the north aisle of the church bears the following inscription: "In memory of Katherine Smythies, Relict of Humphrey Smythies, M.A., Rector of Alpheton in the County of Suffolk and of Staughton in the County of Bedford. Died May 6, 1810, Aged 76." The Register merely records that Katherine Smythies, mother of the Rev. H. Y. Smythies, Vicar, was buried on 12 May 1810.

A miniature portrait of Humphrey Smythies, painted on ivory by Charles Jagger (1770—1827) of Bath, circa 1803, is now in possession of his great-grandson Major Raymond Smythies (A 70).

(A 53) Ann Smythies, daughter of Palmer Smythies (A 31), married the Rev. Brook Nathaniel Bridges, a member of the Kent family of that name (Brook Bridges, Esq., of Goodneston was created a Baronet 1718). The subsequent marriage of her daughter Margaretta to the Rev. Samuel Raymond of Belchamp Hall, Walter Belchamp, formed the first link between the Smythies and Raymond families. A head-and-shoulders portrait in oils on canvas of Rev. Samuel Raymond* and a half-length portrait of Margaretta his wife (30 in. by 25 in.) by John Simpson are now in possession of Major Raymond Smythies (A 70), also a miniature on ivory of Margaretta Raymond.

(A 54 to A 58). See pedigree.

* This is a replica of the portrait in the Belchamp Hall collection, which includes also a portrait of the Rev. Samuel Raymond, when a younger man, by Gainsborough, and a remarkable series of portraits of his ancestors from John Raymond (by Cornelis Janssens), who bought the estate from Sir John Wentworth about 1611, onwards.

(A 59) Henry Yeats Smythies, son of Humphrey Smythies (A 52), whose birth is recorded in the South Moreton Register, was for many years Fellow of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and on relinquishing the office of Bursar, which he had for some time held, he was presented with a silver cake-basket [now in possession of his grandson Major Raymond Smythies (A 70)], on which are engraved the Emmanuel College arms, the Smythies arms (On a field argent a chevron azure between three oak-leaves vert, each charged with an acorn or), and the following inscription: "Magister et Socii Coll. Eman. Henrico Yeats Smythies, S.T.B., in Bursarii munere obeundo Strenuo ac fideli D.D.D. MDCCCX." In the previous year he had received preferment as Vicar of the valuable living of Stanground-cum-Farcet, co. Hunts, in the gift of Emmanuel College, which he held till his death.

He married Isabella Raymond, the granddaughter of his aunt Ann Bridges (A 53). This formed the second link between the Smythies and Raymond families. A mural monument on the south wall of the chancel of Stanground Church bears the following inscription:—

"Within this church are deposited the remains of the Rev^d^ Henry Yeats Smythies, B.D., formerly Fellow and Bursar of Emmanuel College in the University of Cambridge and thirty-three years Vicar of this Parish. He was an active magistrate for the County of Huntingdon and Liberty of Peterborough, the duties of which office he fulfilled for many years with honor to himself and benefit to the public. He was born at South Moreton in the County of Berks Feb. 15, 1763, and died June 20th, 1842, Leaving a Widow and Seven Children, at whose desire this tablet was erected in testimony of their respect for his integrity of character and gratitude for his affectionate kindness as a Husband and Parent. Isabella, Relict of the above, died September 8th, 1858, aged 74 years, and lies buried at Woking in the County of Surrey."

A head-and-shoulders portrait in oils on canvas of Henry Yeats Smythies and a half-length portrait of Isabella his wife (30 in. by 25 in.) by John Simpson* are now in possession of their grandson Major Raymond Smythies (A 70).

The pedigree of Isabella Raymond, wife (and first-cousin once removed) of Henry Yeats Smythies, is recorded in Burke's "Landed Gentry," Burke's "Royal Descents," Ruvigny's "Plantagenet Roll of the Blood Royal" (Mortimer-Percy Volume, Part I.), etc.

(A 61) Margaretta Smythies, married John Greene, Esq., elder brother of Edward Greene, Esq., who married her sister Emily (A 67). They lived at "Abbey Ruins," Bury St. Edmunds. "The Panels" was bought by their son John Smythies Greene in 1874. Fanny, daughter of John Greene and Margaretta Smythies, married as his 2nd wife Rev. Oliver Raymond, Rector of Middleton, nephew of her grandparents (A 59), and so formed a third link between the Smythies and Raymond families. (See A 53 and A 59, above.)

(A 62 and A 63). See pedigree.

(A 64) Henry Raymond Smythies, son of H. Y. Smythies (A 59), had no issue (see this and pedigrees of his wives' families). A small oil-painting of him on panel by John Simpson is in possession of his nephew Major Raymond Smythies (A 70).

Fanny Heigham, daughter of John Henry Heigham, Esq., J.P., D.L., of Hunston Hall, Suffolk, 2nd wife of Henry Raymond Smythies, is a member of one of the

* John Simpson, portrait painter, was born in London in 1782, and for many years was assistant to Sir Thomas Lawrence. In 1834 he went to Lisbon, and was appointed painter to the Queen of Portugal, but returned to England and died in London in 1847. He painted portraits of many distinguished people; one of the Duke of Brunswick is at Windsor Castle.

oldest families in Suffolk, and has an unbroken pedigree of ancestors living in that county from the time of Richard Heigham, who died in 1340. (See Burke's "Landed Gentry," etc.)

(A 65) Julia Smythies, married John Vise Kelly, Esq. (see this and Kelly pedigree). A half-length portrait of her in oils on canvas (24 in. by 20 in.) is in possession of her nephew Major Raymond Smythies (A 70).

(A 66) Walter Tyson Smythies, son of H. Y. Smythies (A 59), married (but had no issue) Anne Rycroft Raymond, his mother's niece. This formed a fourth link between the Smythies and Raymond families. (See A 53, 59, and 61, above.)

(A 68). See pedigree (p. 200).

(A 69) Raymond Brewster Smythies, son of H. Y. Smythies (A 59), and the only son to have issue, had one son (see A 70, below).

A half-length portrait in oils on canvas (24 in. by 20 in.) of Raymond Brewster Smythies (artist not known) and a miniature on ivory, by Nina Hardy, of Isabella his wife, are in possession of their son Major Raymond Smythies (A 70).

A portion of the pedigree of Isabella Jane Anstey, wife of Raymond Brewster Smythies, is recorded in Ruvigny's "Plantagenet Roll of the Blood Royal" (Mortimer-Percy Volume, Essex Supplement). This shews her descent from Christopher Anstey the poet† and Ann Calvert (see Verney in Burke's "Peerage and Baronetage") her great-grandparents. The father of Christopher Anstey the poet was the Rev. Christopher Anstey, D.D. (who married Elizabeth, daughter of Anthony Thompson, M.P. for Cambridge in 1702), and his father was William Anstey, who was living and married in 1706 to Elinor Reynolds. Christopher Anstey the poet had a country seat and fine property at Trumpington, near Cambridge, but this was sold by his grandson Christopher (uncle of Isabella Jane Smythies), who died unmarried. A fairly full account of Christopher Anstey the poet, and some references to his father, are contained in "The General Biographical Dictionary," by Alexander Chalmers, F.S.A. (London, 1812), "The Dictionary of National Biography," etc. He was granted a mural monument in Poets' Corner, Westminster Abbey.

(A 70) Raymond Henry Raymond Smythies, son of R. B. Smythies (A 69), became, on the death of his uncle Henry Raymond Smythies (A 64) in 1888, the only living male descendant of Palmer Smythies (A 31) by his first marriage. A three-quarter length portrait of R. H. Raymond Smythies ($38\frac{3}{4}$ by $26\frac{3}{4}$) in oils on canvas has been painted by Joseph Simpson, R.B.A.

* Erratum.—In pedigree, for "three" read "four."

† Several portraits of Christopher Anstey exist. In the quarto edition of his works, brought out by his son John in 1808, a portrait in enamel by Zinck and one in oils by Sir Thomas Lawrence were reproduced. Another portrait by J. Thurston, engraved by Engleheart, was published by W. Walker in 1822. Another, with his daughter Sarah (afterwards the wife of Rear-Admiral Thomas Sotheby), by Gainsborough, is the property of the Rev. John Anstey, his great-grandson. And another by William Hoare, R.A., is in possession of the Corporation of Bath, who also own a portrait of Ann Calvert his wife, by the same artist.

Reviews.

History of Monmouthshire. Vol. II., Part 1. By Colonel J. A. BRADNEY, C.B., F.S.A. London : Mitchell Hughes and Clarke. Price £2 2*s*.

THIS instalment of Colonel Bradney's monumental work continues to uphold the high place the first Volume has already taken, reflecting the highest credit on the careful research and ability of the Author.

This Part deals with Hundred of Raglan, which includes the parishes of Raglan, Llandenny, Dingestow, Tregaer, Penrhos, Bryngwyn, Bettws Newydd, Clytha, and Parc Grace Dieu. It is curious to notice in connection with this Hundred of Raglan, consisting of about 18,341 acres, with a rateable value of about £19,166, that the population should remain so stationary, being in 1801 about 2,290 and in 1901, 2,200.

The genealogical portion of the work is of the highest standard, and contains pedigrees of the following families: Barry, Boothby, Bosanquet, Clarke, Crowe, Davies, Evans, Frampton, Hardwick, Herbert, Earls of Pembroke, Herbert of Clytha, Jenkins, Jones, Lewis, Meakings, Milborne, Morgan, Oates, Phillips, Pritchard, Robert, Scudamore, Seys, Somerset of Pauntley, Somerset, Earls and Marquises of Worcester, Watkins, and Williams. These pedigrees have the great merit of having been checked from every available source, and are therefore to be relied upon for their correctness.

It is natural that the parish of Raglan, containing the castle of Raglan, in which is bound up the families of the Herberts and Somersets, should take up a third of the book. Colonel Bradney has dealt very carefully and fully with this subject. The account of the first Marquis of Worcester and the magnificence of the state observed in the mode of living in the castle is very interesting. The visits of King Charles I. to Raglan during the Civil War and the particulars of the siege of the castle are full of interest. The amount that the Marquis of Worcester in his loyalty to King Charles expended on the King and his cause is immense, amounting to over £1,000,000.

The Author fully describes the churches of each parish, with their monuments, together with the rise and development of the Nonconformist bodies. The history of the manors, old houses and buildings receive the same careful attention, amongst which may be noted those of Dingestow or Llanddingat Castle, Dingestow Court; Cefn Tilla and Tre-Worgan in Llandenny, Artha and Llwyn-y-Gaer in Tregaer.

Many interesting documents are printed in extenso, which throw much light on the history of the period with which they deal.

Special mention must be made of the 21 excellent illustrations of castles, houses, and other buildings, which have been reproduced from original drawings, making a feature of great attractiveness. In addition there are various plans, and a map of the Hundred.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XIX., No. 3. July 1911.
Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THE only new item in this part is a letter of Rev. James Maury to Philip Ludwell on the defence of the Frontiers of Virginia, 1756, which is interesting. The Randolph Manuscript is continued with a Copy of Instructions to Lord Culpeper, 1682; also "Miscellaneous Colonial Documents" from the Virginia State Archives, and "Revolutionary Army Records." In genealogy there are items on the Brent, Brooke, Chiles, and Poindexter families. In "Virginia Gleanings in England" the following wills appear: Robert Dinwiddie of Westminster, 1770; John Dixon of Bristol, 1758, with genealogical notes thereto; Philip Ludwell, late of Virginia, now of City of Westminster, 1767; Edward Creffield, junior, London, 1694; and Thomas Pattishall of Bombay, 1717.

The Utah Genealogical and Historical Magazine. Vol. II., No. 3. July 1911. The Genealogical Society of Utah, 60 East South Temple Street, Salt Lake City, Utah, U.S.A.

THE contents of this part consist of articles on the "Descendants of Richard Snow of Woburn, Mass."; a biographical notice of "Eliza Roxy Snow Smith"; the "Domesday Book"; and "The Mormons," which is continued from the last issue, and a "Record of the Dead who were buried in the Cemetery at Salt Lake City, Utah." The publication will not, however, be esteemed much in Great Britain.

The Hewetsons of Kerry, Limerick, and Suirville, county Kilkenny, Ireland.*

OF ROYAL DESCENTS.

c. Francis Hewetson (né Hewson), Esq., Captain 62nd Regiment, born in 1763, was residing at Oak Kile or Oak Hill, Waterford co., in 1792. When Lieutenant of the 17th Regiment he was quartered in New Ross in 1791; was named in his grandfather's will; died in the West Indies 1798, aged 35 years, soon after having been gazetted Captain. In 1793 he married, by licence in Kilkenny, Mary (born 1749), daughter of the Rev. . . . . Collier, D.D., Rector of Rosbercon, co. Kilkenny. She died at Waterford 9 April 1851, aged 102 years, and was buried in the churchyard of Saint John, Waterford (the church having been founded by John, Earl of Morton, 1185), where also lie three of her daughters. By her will, dated 12 September 1848 (proved 26 June 1851 by the principal legatee, no executors having been appointed to supply the place of the deceased executrix, and the residuary legatee being deceased), she desired to be buried in the churchyard of St. John. She bequeathed all her property to her friends the Rev. John Lymbery of Drumrock and Bartholomew Delandre, Esq., of Waterford, in trust as to two-thirds thereof for the use of her daughter Rebecca Hewetson otherwise Delandre, the wife of Edmond Delandre of Waterford, and also for the use of the said Edmond Delandre during their lives, afterwards for her grandchildren Margaret, Sarah, and William Figg. The remaining one-third she bequeathed to her grandchild Margaret Figg, which upon her decease was to go to her sister Sarah Figg. The "trifling articles of household furniture and plate" were to be divided equally between her daughter Margaret Delandre and grandchild Margaret Figg. As she had already provided for her daughter Catherine Hewetson upon her marriage with the late John Sawyer, she left her one shilling. She appointed her daughter Rebecca Delandre her executrix and residuary legatee. The issue of this marriage was four daughters:—

1. Catherine Hewetson, born at Ross, co. Wexford, 1794, died 27 April 1868, aged 74, and interred in Drumcannon churchyard, Tramore, co. Waterford. She was, on 24 November 1813, married (by licence) to John Sawyer, Esq., of the City of Waterford, who died in 1832, and was buried with his intimate friend Colonel St. Ledger, near Dunmore. With others, they had Francis John Sawyer, born 1832; and Sarah Sawyer, born in 1830, living at the Cove, Tramore, unmarried, where she died 11 July 1899.
2. Margaret Hewetson, born 1795; was married in 1820 to Captain William Figg, R.N. She died in 1833, leaving two daughters and a son, living in 1852, Margaret, Sarah, and William Figg, all legatees under their grandmother's will.
3. Sarah Hewetson, born at Suirville in 1796; buried 4 September 1848 in the Manor, Waterford.
4. Rebecca Hewetson, born 1797, died February 1849 and was buried on 27 February in St. John, the Manor, Waterford. In 1832 she was married to Edmond Delandre, Esq., of Waterford, who was buried on 2 May 1856, aged 64. They were both legatees under the will of her mother, and upon their decease, not having had issue, their nieces and nephew Figg enjoyed the bequest.

Captain Francis Hewetson (c, above), living at Oak Kile or Oak Hill in 1792, by deed of 25 March of that year, leased from his brother-in-law Arthur

THE REV. ROBERT HEWETSON, M.A.

Ussher, Esq., of Camphire, that part of Camphire and Oak Kile or Oak Hill, lately in the possession of Michael and Patrick Keefe, together with the broomfield and orchard, lately in the possession of Mrs. Morrisy, situated in the parish of Lismore, co. Waterford, with privilege to the said Francis Hewetson of erecting and building a salmon weir on the river Bride for the term of his natural life and that of his wife Mary Collier and Richard Gumbleton (eldest son of Richard), or the longest liver of them, with the term of thirty-one years after the said lives were ended, paying yearly fifty-nine pounds exclusive of taxes, etc.

D. Robert Hewetson (Rev.), one of the two most remarkable of this branch of the family (the other being his father), who was born and lived in rebellion times, and then passed some thirty years in the West Indies, where his experiences were most varied, the relation of some of which I may condense, seeing that the personages concerned have long ago departed to the Elysian Fields. He was the prototype of his father the Rev. John of Suirville, in generosity, justice, bravery, untiring energy and loyalty : whilst as to his personality, the accompanying photograph of an ivory miniature will speak. The painting was executed after he left College and before he took Holy Orders in 1796. He was born 2 June 1764 in the City of Waterford; entered Trinity College, Dublin, in 1782 (4 November), aged 18, took his B.A. on 20 February 1787, as "Robert Hewson," and proceeded M.A. After leaving College he made the "grand tour," and travelled to the West Indies for the recovery of his health, and on 1 April 1790, being then in his twenty-sixth year, he married his first wife in the Island of Antigua, West Indies, viz., Sarah Gilliad Thomas, second daughter and coheir of Henry Thomas, Esq., of St. John, Antigua, and Sarah his wife (experiencia prima). In 1791 they were in Ireland, he intending to take Orders, but did not do so until five years after, and remained there about a year, when they returned to St. John, Antigua. At the end of 1793 the British Ministers sent an armament to the West Indies to dislodge the French from every one of their possessions in that part of the world, and troops were landed on 5th and 6th February 1794 under General Sir Charles Grey, Bart., at Trois Rivières. To assist in the reduction of this Island and Guadaloupe the Antiguans sent a complement of men and negro slaves, and Mr. Hewetson at his own private expense served as a Volunteer Officer in H.M. 64th Regiment, without claiming or partaking of any share of pay, prize-money, or compensation. He conducted a forlorn-hope attack upon a fort with success, but with the loss of two-thirds of the party and the rest wounded, he himself receiving a bayonet-wound in the breast, the scar of which he carried to the grave. The conquest was completed in seven weeks, and on 25 March 1794 the French colours were struck and the British hoisted. Two stands of colours were presented to His then Majesty, who ordered them to be hung up in St. Paul's Cathedral, London.

In the following year, September finds him again domiciled in the old parsonage at Suirville, where he resided for the next three years, in the last of which (1798) his father deceased. In October 1796, having provided letters testimonial signed by James Lindsey, Rector of St. John, Antigua, James Coull of St. George, and Theo. Nugent of St. Philip, and also by John Hewetson, Rector of Aglish, Daniel Cuffe of Kilmacow, and Will. Denis of Kilculliheen, he was admitted into the order of Deacon on 18 October 1796, and into that of Priest on 8 October 1797. In this latter year he was appointed Justice of the Peace for the county of Waterford by the Marquis of Camden, which appointment he held for three years, at the imminent peril of his life. A year after (1798) he was honoured with the sinecure Vicarage of Kilbarrymeadon, Waterford, of the value of one or two hundred pounds per annum, by the Right Reverend Richard Marlay, Bishop of Waterford and Lismore, out of respect for his father. His zealous exertions as a Magistrate during the Rebellion of 1798 raised against him a host of rebel enemies, who offered a reward of fifty pounds for his head, fired at him whilst performing Divine Service in the parish church of Kilmacthomas for his brother James, in his own house, and repeatedly in the execution of his various duties, public and private. One of the effects of the rebellion was the stoppage of Banking Houses, and that of "Newport" in Waterford City caused to him a loss of fifteen hundred pounds.

He held his benefice until, in consequence of his perilous situation, he was obliged to abandon his clerical and private interests in Ireland, and so he, together with his wife, returned to the West Indies, where in 1803 he purchased an estate in the Dutch part of the Island of St. Martin, consisting of a house and seventy acres of land adjoining. In his diary he mentions that it cost £4,234, additions to the house £531, and furniture £366. He also says that debts due to him in the Dutch quarter of St. Martin amounted to £750, and in the French £165. Three years after his purchase another unwelcome experience occurred, for, on the appointment of Louis Bonaparte (brother of Jerome Bonaparte, who married Elizabeth Patterson, see f, ante, page 297) to the throne of Holland on 6 June 1806, and his refusing to take the oath of allegiance to him and abjure his Sovereign, the above estate and other property, to the value of £10,000, was entirely confiscated by the Dutch Government as "Alien proprietor." His last official act in the French quarter of the Island is recorded thus: 10 March 1807. Grove Estate, French quarter, St. Martin. Baptized Anne Reid and Susan Sarah (twins), daughters of Nathaniel Calvert, Esq., and Anne his lawful wife. During this year a disastrous fire destroyed one half of the town of Port of Spain and consumed property belonging to Mr. Hewetson to the extent of £2,000.

On 16 April following, he, together with his family, arrived at St. George's, Grenada, from St. Martin, at the cost of sixty joes, and on the 23rd took possession of the parsonage at Charlotte Town, whilst on the 24th he was inducted to his livings of St. John and St. Mark, the presentation being made by the Governor-General Frederick Maitland, who was paid £16 16*s*. for induction fees. On this day he hired "Kate," Mrs. Scott's slave, at eight dollars a month from the 21st. On the 27th Mrs. Hewetson arrived at the Parsonage from St. George, and a free black, "Colebrook," was hired at five dollars a month with six bitts allowance per week. The following is an interesting record of a visit made on 3 August to a part of the estate of Alexander Fraser, Esq., the "Hermitage" in Grenada, in company with Governor-General Maitland, Captain G. Waller of the Royal Engineers, Captain Rowan of the . . Regiment, and Mr. Fraser, where he saw a Memphitic Spring (of the same deleterious quality as the Grotto del Cane in Italy) kill a pig and full-grown duck, the latter in two seconds and the former in two and a half, the scent issuing from a fissure and the strongest ebullition of water heard underground, the water as cold as ice. An open spring apparently boiled with excessive violence near the above fissure being cold in the extreme.

Looking over his Parish Register of Burials on 7 October 1807 he came across a reminder of Ireland and of a relation of his mother (Catherine Drew) by the following entry: "Lieut.-Col^l^ John Godfrey Drew of the 3^rd^ West I. Regiment, died at Charlotte Town on the 26 February 1801, and was interred in the churchyard of said place the same date by the Rev. John M^c^Fair."

In the summer of this year he went out in "Cadette's" canoe to the Isle de Ronde and spent two days there in shooting ducks, and two days after (Sunday) he christened thirty slaves, and leaving in the afternoon for Carriacou arrived there the same night—most inhospitably received by the Rev. William Nash, Rector, whose house he left in the morning, preferring to breakfast with Cadette's brother, a coloured man. Expense of journey £9 15*s*. currency.

An extraordinary act of his benevolence is shewn by the following: 14 Nov. 1807. Paid twenty-seven joes (£90) cash for two plover and preventing the murder of Mr. Joseph Murray by William Diggin, Manager of the Springs Estate, Grenada, a native of Vinegar Hill, Wexford, Ireland, and the third attempt of his in Grenada, where he was imprisoned only once.

On the same day, Saturday, he married at the house of Isaac Hersford, Esq., Paradise Estate, Ously Rowley, Esq., Secretary for the Island of Grenada, to the widow Christian Rose, of said Isle, by special licence from His Honour John Harvey, Esq., President, for which he received £10 10*s*.

On 22 October he records—Paid Mrs. Ryrie's tavern bill at Dominica £130, and sailed for Barbados, lodged at Nancy Clark's three weeks, paid her bill £31 10*s*. (this tavern at Bridgetown, Barbados, was a noted place in 1791, and Nancy was a mulatto).

In 1810 Mr. Hewetson had resigned his livings and been appointed Chaplain to the flag-ship of Admiral Sir Alexander Cochrane, the "Neptune," of 74 guns, and when the Admiral was removed to the Halifax station he was appointed to the "Abercrombie," commanded by Rear-Admiral Fahie. On June 25 of this year he writes: Commenced school on board H.M.S. "Abercrombie" with Messrs. George Broome, Richard Augustus Mercer, William Forbes, and Joseph Rawlins, Midshipmen. He afterwards amplified this entry with "a set of great scamps."

On 8 August the "Abercrombie" arrived at Portsmouth with a West Indian convoy. Here he bought a silver hunting watch from a Michael Nathan, silversmith of James Street, for six guineas, a stop-watch and gold key for ten shillings and sixpence, which he presented to Mr. Thomas Archer of the "Abercrombie," and having obtained leave of absence made a round of visits to his relations in Waterford, the Usshers of Woodlands, of Camphire, and Barry Drew of Flower Hill, etc. Rejoining his ship he sailed from Plymouth on 1 December 1810 with 600 marines for Lisbon, where on 2 March 1811 his brother Captain John of the 89th arrived from Gibraltar, and spent eight days with him on board his ship and in Lisbon. In a memorandum of June 17, in setting forth a number of bills paid by his London Navy Agents, he names his brother Captain John as the Drawee of one for thirty pounds. On 13 May he sailed with a convoy of sixty-one transports for England, having on board Lieut.-Colonel Stoffel, a French prisoner, in their ward-room, which he joined. He wrote in Mr. Hewetson's pocket-book in a clear, official hand, "Monsieur le chevalier de Stoffel, Lieut.-Colonel, attaché à S.A.S. le Prince de Wagram et de Neuchâtel rue de la Sourdière N° 33, Paris." Upon the "Abercrombie" quitting the Tagus he made an inventory of his table and other linen, and found that during his five months' stay there that of the original 171 articles ninety were missing, of 36 shirts 29 only remained. On 13 June he left his ship ill of violent liver complaint, and four days after went into the Royal Hospital, Haslar, under the care of Doctors Wright and McArthur.

Now comes to him a major experience, in the decease of his first wife Sarah Gilliad Hewetson, at St. John, Antigua, on 10 September 1811. During their married life they spent thirty-six thousand pounds.

In 1812 he held the Curacy of Leigh-on-Sea, Essex, where, at the Rectory, he married his second wife, on 24 April 1812, Elizabeth Moore, daughter of James Moore of Stogumber, Somersetshire, half-sister to the wife of the Rector, Newton Walter. She was born 30 November 1783, died at Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, West Indies, 26 August 1817 and interred the following morning at 9·30 A.M., in the older portion of the "beautiful and well cared for" cemetery of Lapeyrouse, aged 33 years and 9 months.

In January 1813 he became Curate of Northfleet, Kent, opposite Leigh, on the other side of the Thames, and here, on 20 May 1813, was born his first son William Francis Miles Notley Hewetson, who died at North Naparima, Trinidad, 7 Sep. 1827, the very day on which his father died in England. In this year he was Chaplain on board H.M. Ships "Raisonable" and "Sussex," but resigned the appointment at the beginning of 1814, quitting his curacy for the county Antrim, Ireland, to take up the curacy of "Island Magee." On 7 September of this year his second son James Christopher was born at Carrickfergus, same county, and baptized by his uncle the Rev. James Hewetson of Killinchy, dying 1 January 1818 at Port of Spain in his fourth year.

Mr. Hewetson again began to turn his thoughts to the West Indies, where he had property of four thousand pounds in Antigua, in right of his first wife, as also property and debts of his own of some ten thousand pounds, which required his personal attention; so he and his family embarked at Belfast on board the "Golden Fleece," 29 December 1815, and arrived at Port of Spain, Trinidad, at the end of March 1816. In April following he established a Seminary in Port of Spain, the licence for which the Governor and Commander-in-Chief and Vice-Admiral Sir Ralph James Woodford, Bart., presented to him gratis, "he being enjoyned to educate and instruct his pupils in the true knowledge and principles of the Christian religion, and to pay the most scrupulous attention to their morals and behaviour." In June, October, and December he baptized 165 slaves on the following estates: Brecon Castle, Camden, Exchange, Enterprise, Friendship, Lodge, Mount Annon, North Esperanza, Northumberland, North Union, Orange Valley, Perseverance, Providence, Phœnix Park, Surprise, Savilla, and Union.

In this year he joined the other arm of the Service, and on 25 September was appointed to the Chaplaincy of the Garrison of Trinidad by His Excellency Lieut.-General Sir James Leith, Commander-in-Chief of the Forces in the Windward Islands, at fourteen shillings and three pence sterling per day and a soldier servant.

The new year of 1817 commenced auspiciously by the advent of his third and last son Robert Dixon Hewetson, who was born at 10 A.M. the 15th Jan. 1817 at Port of Spain, Trinidad; entered the Clergy Orphan School, St. John's Wood, London, in 1828, where he was educated under the Rev. Thomas Wharton, Master, revered by his pupils and most highly esteemed. He died 30 September 1888, in his 72nd year. Will dated 17 November 1863. He married, 4 July 1841, Anne (born 5 December 1819, died 31 May 1895), daughter of John Joy of the county of Huntingdon, by whom he had three sons and two daughters; the eldest was John Hewetson of London, born 27 June 1845; living in Paris, Western France, and Brussels in 1881-2-4; the family genealogist; Author in 1901 of "Memoirs of the House of Hewetson or Hewson in Ireland"; the "Hewsons of Finuge, Kerry"; the Cromwellian "Colonel John Huson (Hewson)" of a Kentish origin; and writer of the present article.

Seven months after the birth of his son Robert Dixon Hewetson, his second wife Elizabeth died in Port of Spain, Trinidad, on the 26th evening of August 1817 (having been born 30 November 1783), in her 34th year, and was buried the following morning at half-past nine in Lapeyrouse Cemetery. A fortnight afterwards he baptized a nephew, James, son of Christopher Hewetson, Esq., of Felicity Hall. Yet again, with the advent of the new year, turns life's kaleidoscope, and on 1 January 1818 his second son James Christopher died at Port of Spain, in his fourth year, bringing us to the close of West Indian life, and in his Diary made the following entry:—

"25 June 1819, sailed from Trinidad with my two children William Frank and Robert Dixon, then aged 6 and 2½ years, on board the ship 'John Bushman,' bound for London, John Gauntlet, Master; arrived the 10th August, after a tedious and unpleasant passage, at the expense of One hundred pounds sterling."

In 1820 he was in correspondence with the celebrated Wilberforce of "Slave emancipation fame," and visited him at Brompton Grove, London. At the end of this year he was again on his way to visit his relations in Ireland, and on his way thence viâ Bristol and Milford, called at Tenby, where he made the following entry in his Diary: "Observations on a fireside at Tenby. That a great improvement may be made by giving a rotary motion to all parlour and chamber fires by a very slow movement on an axis continually bright, without cinders or ashes appearing in front, and supplied invisibly, without fire-irons and the attendant overflow of ashes, etc., and applicable to small families, and for culinary economy by the under application, as heat proceeds from a centre, and the whole without the necessity of a fender. Coal produces the least ashes." During his visit and after leaving Camphire for Flower Hill his horse stumbled, threw him off, broke two of his ribs, and shook him so severely that he was bled and blistered and disabled for a month at Flower Hill.

On 25 September 1822 he was in London, and on the next day attended a levée held by H.R.H. the Duke of York at the Horse Guards, and the day following that he had conference with Mr. Peel, Secretary for the Home Department. He was occasional preacher in 1822 and 1823 at St. Margaret's, Westminster, St. Giles, Cripplegate, and the "Wren" churches.

On 2 July 1823 Mr. Hewetson married, at St. Martin-in-the-Fields, London (a Royal Church, and the fashionable one in those days), his third wife, Mary Anne, daughter of .... Harmer, Esq., and relict of George Leame, Merchant, of the City of London, and one of the Honourable East India Company's Directors. She was born in 1771 and died at Portland House, Hammersmith, London, 30 March 1859, aged 88 years, s.p.

In December 1825 he left London to take up the curacy of Holy Trinity, Stourpaine, Blandford, Dorsetshire, and entered upon the duties on 1 January 1826. He held this cure for one year and eight months, when for himself was performed that last rite which he had so often performed over others, in committing their bodies either to the keeping of mother earth or to the sad sea wave. He died at Stourpaine in his 64th year on 7 September 1827, and was interred near the north door outside the parish church on the 10th of same month—his experiencia ultima. It is very remarkable that on this self-same 7th of Sep. his eldest son, William Francis Miles Notley Hewetson, died at North Naparima, Trinidad. When the writer, his eldest grandson, John Hewetson, born 27 June 1845, and celibate in 1910, visited Stourpaine twenty-five years ago, an octogenarian related that Mr. Hewetson used to say he should like to be buried in a standing position near the north door, so that he could wink at the parson going into church, but he added, with a touch of gravity, "he was not buried that way."

E. George Hewetson, Esq., in the Navy, and one of only three Justices of the Peace at the time of the 1798 rebellion who were fearless enough and sufficiently loyal to execute the laws of the land in the county of Waterford.

F. William Hewetson, Esq., in the Army.

G. Martha Hewetson, died in the spring of 1827, s.p., wife to Richard Keily Ussher, Esq., of Cappagh House, Lismore, born 4 February 1778; Lieutenant in the Navy, which he entered in 1790, when 12 years old, quitting the service in 1796. He married in December 1802, in the Diocese of Cloyne; died 25 Feb. 1854, aged 76, and was buried 1 March following at Whitechurch.

H. Margaret Hewetson, married at Waterford on 3 January 1788 to Arthur Ussher, Esq., of Camphire, on the Blackwater, Waterford County, born 30 March 1764. Entered Trinity College, Dublin, 1782, and took his B.A. 1786. The issue of this marriage was five sons and nine daughters. Their fourth son, Christopher Musgrave Ussher, Esq., born 1801, married at Cove, 7 Dec. 1833, Eleanor (born 1816, died 1897), eldest daughter of Thomas O'Grady, Esq., of Landscape, Clare, and had issue. The fifth son was Lieut.-Col. Edward Lee Ussher of the Madras Army, baptized 22 April 1809, died November 1877; married in 1836 Margaret Isabella Day (born 1817, died at Sydenham, London, 22 July 1902, aged 85), by whom there was issue. Their nine daughters were (1) Elizabeth Ussher, baptized in Lismore Cathedral 12 July 1791, and married to Baron Maurice de Cloudt, Major in the King's Second German Legion, on 16 April 1811. (2) Catherine Ussher, married in 1813 to David Deane, who died 1860, son of William Deane of Cork. (3) Martha Ussher, died 24 June 1843; married to Edward Roberts, Esq. (died 13 July 1881, aged 88), of Weston, Waterford (uncle of Earl Roberts); both were interred in the Old French Church, Waterford. (4) Sarah Ussher, married 10 April 1823 to Richard Pearson, Esq.,

Surgeon, First Dragoon Guards, with which he served at Waterloo; a descendant of John Pearson, D.D., Bishop of Chester, born in 1612. (5) Wilhelmina Ussher (said to be uncommonly beautiful and amiable), born at Camphire Aug. 1801, died 21 October 1879, and on 17 April 1826 married, at Cappoquin, to Thomas Greer, Esq,, born 21 April 1791, died 4 June 1870, of Tullylagan, co. Tyrone, J.P., by whom was issue. (6) Margaret Ussher, whose personal charms duplicated those of her sister Wilhelmina, married on 30 June 1826 to William Jackson Greer, Esq., born 8 June 1797, died 17 February 1841, of Rhone Hill, Moy, Tyrone, J.P. (7) Lucy Ussher, married firstly to Captain William Tucker, and secondly to Captain Charles Barnham, both in the Army. (8) Julia Ussher, married to James Bullock, Esq., Suffolk. (9) Susan Maxwell Ussher, married 25 February 1835 to Strangman Davis Goff, Esq., born 27 May 1810, of Horetown House, Taghmon, Wexford, and had issue.

I. Mary Hewetson (twin of Julia infra), born 1773; living with her sister Margaret Ussher at Camphire in 1827; died at Youghal, co. Cork, in 1850, unmarried, aged 77 years; said to have been a "very handsome haughty old Dame," and was buried in St. Mary's Churchyard there.

J. Julia Hewetson (twin of Mary supra), born 1773; known as "Sweet Julia"; died 14 January 1839, aged 64. Married in 1788 (aged 15) to Barry Drew, Esq., of Flower Hill, Lismore, born 1761, died 1 April 1837, aged 76, third son of Francis Drew, Esq., M.D., of Mocollop Castle, etc., co. Waterford, who died 3 September 1787, aged 72. They were both interred in the private burying-ground behind the house, named "Keil Duggaun," said to be as old as Glendalough. They had issue Barry Drew, Esq., of Flower Hill, born 1793, died 7 April 1880, aged 87 years. He married circa 1842 Jane, born 1806, died 3 June 1874, aged 58, daughter of Arthur Baker, Esq., of Balhery House, Swords, Dublin, by whom he had two sons and two daughters.

K. Patience Anne Hewetson, born 1779, died at Youghal, Cork, 1 October 1848, but interred in the nave of the ancient church of Ardmore, Waterford. Married at Lismore . . April 1815 to Francis Lewis Zehender, Esq., of Berne, Switzerland. His earliest known eponym was, in 1270, Chatelaine of the Abbey of Sekingen in the Black Forest, and his brother Robert was a Chevalier of the Teutonic Order, and Marquard Zehender in 1340 carried off the prize in the Grand Tournament at Zurich. He was Lieutenant in the Minorca (Queen's Own) or 97th Regiment in 1799; accompanied the Expedition to Egypt 25 March 1801, and was severely wounded at the Battle of Alexandria; afterwards Brigade Major on Sir John Stewart's Staff; on 21 August 1808 he was present at the Battle of Vima, Portugal; afterwards on the Quartermaster's Staff; was present at the Battle of Corunna, and during the retreat of the Army his horse was precipitated into a disused quarry and killed, whilst he himself was so much injured as to be unfit for further active service. He was Captain in the 6th Royal Veteran Battalion until it was disbanded in 1816. Shortly afterwards he returned to Switzerland, where he died. They had issue, in addition to five sons and three daughters: (1) Edouard Frederic Marquard de Zehender, born at Berne, Switzerland, 1 November 1816, died in 1892, having married on 15 July 1851 Adèle de Fisher, by whom he had Edouard Charles Marquard de Zehender, born 2 December 1856. (2) Alberta de Zehender, born at Berne 13 July 1819; lived at Ardmore, Waterford, for many years, where she died unmarried on 24 April 1896, aged 77, and interred in the highest part of the old churchyard on 26th of same month. Her brother John Zehender was a student at Sandhurst.

L. Susan Hewetson, who died at Brussels on the eve of the Battle of Waterloo, 17 June 1815, having been married to Major Theodore de Harling of the Hanoverian Dragoons, by whom was a daughter, who died previous to 1893.

M. Another daughter of the Rev. John Hewetson of Suirville was married to General Maunsell.

6. Septimus Hewson, Esq., of Briska, co. Limerick (seventh child of John Hewson, see D II., ante, page 292). His will was dated 16 July 1787 and proved 27 of same month. He married and had two sons and two daughters (a, b, c, d, below).

(a.) John Hewson, Esq., of Briska, which property he devised to his brother Monsell Hewson; named in his father's will of 1787. Had a lease of house and lawn from Major Wilson of Caherconlish, whose ancestor William Wilson of Elton, co. York, was both Chancellor and Chaplain to William the Conqueror. He married Abigail, his first-cousin (daughter of the Rev. John Parker, Rector of St. John's, Limerick, and niece of Elizabeth Monsell), who was buried at Kilkeedy 6 February 1837. They had (besides Elizabeth Hewson, wife of Henry Jones of Limerick, named in her grandfather's will of 16 July 1787, which bequeathed to her the value of his black mare; and Anne Hewson, baptized at Kilkeedy 26 July 1778, wife of Thomas Keayes, born 1777, of co. Tipperary), six sons:—

a 2. Jonathan Hewson.

a 3. George Massy Hewson, who died suddenly. One of his sponsors was the Ven. Archdeacon Massy, brother of General Massy of Clarina.

a 4. John Hewson, died young.

a 5. Monsell Hewson, had a commission in the Army. He married in Jamaica, where he owned a plantation. He died intestate leaving a large property, and having no issue his estate was thrown into Chancery—the heirs of his eldest brother, if any, not being forthcoming—where it was still in 1910.

a 6. Septimus Parker Hewson (the seventh child), born at Caherconlish .. December 1773, died 5 October 1873, aged 100 years less two months. His sponsor was Major Wilson (supra). He was interred in the Old Kilkeedy churchyard, in the grave of his uncle, Barrister George Hewson (see 2, ante, page 292), having married at Rathkeale, co. Limerick, Fanny, daughter of John Enright, Esq., M.D., of Rathkeale, by whom were (besides those who died young)—

James Hewson, who married Mary Anne, daughter of Edward Bromell of Limerick, and had six sons and four daughters. Massy Hewson, born in the City of Limerick 12 October 1831, died at Briska 3 June 1904, aged 72. He had married (firstly) at Saint Munchin's, Limerick, 17 December 1855, Eleanor (born June 1833, died at Briska 1 April 1902), daughter of Samuel Kirkpatrick of Drummond, near Ballycastle, co. Antrim, a branch of the historic house of "Kirkpatrick of Closeburn," from whence derived Eugenie, Empress of the French. His second wife was Frances Aphra Griffin (born 31 October 1848), whom he married on 19 January 1904 at Marmullane, Passage, West Cork, daughter of George Edward Griffin, Esq., of the Abbey, Rathkeale, and his wife Aphra, eldest daughter of George Massy, Esq., of Glenwilliam Castle, Ballingarry, co. Limerick.

Thomas Lewen of Amble and Hauxley, co. Northumberland, eldest son of Robert Lewen of Newcastle-upon-Tyne by his wife Anne, da. of Sir John Delaval, Knt., of Seaton Delaval, co. Northumberland; baptized at St. Nicholas', Newcastle-upon-Tyne, 8 Aug. 1578, when his sponsors were Sir Thomas Grey of Chillingham Castle, Knt., Mr. Edward Lewen, and Mrs. Delaval, wife to Robert Delaval of Seaton Delaval. Occurs as "of Warkworth" in the Northumberland lists of freeholders, 1628 and 1639 ("Arch. Æl.," ii., pp. 318—322). On 12 February 1637-8 he brought a suit against Sir William Carnaby, Knt., High Sheriff, Richard Carnaby (substitute for Sir William), Thomas Carnaby, George Wray, John Finch, Thomas Urwen, and Robert Mitford for illegal seizure of his goods in 1636, stating that he was bond to the Crown for Henry Grey of Kyloe, deceased, for a sum of £45 (P.R.O., Excheq. Depos., 14 Car. I., Easter Term, No. 31, 1637-8). Will dated 16 March 1639-40; "to be buried at Warkworth, £10 for a monument" (Sharp MSS., vol. 16A, p. 203, Cath. Lib., Durham); mentions his sons Nicholas, John, Thomas and Henry, daughter Alice, "children of dau. Elizabeth, dau. Mary Gray, Ra. Gray, her eldest son," "Sir William Fenwick, my son Mr. Lance Algood." Inventory p.m. (P.C., Durham) taken in 1642 by John Lewen, Thomas Lewen, and Henry Lewen, his sons and executors, in which it is stated that he rented lands from Algernon, Earl of Northumberland, and the tithe-corn of Warkworth East Demesne from George Warwick. [Died at Sunderland; buried at Bishopwearmouth 27 Jan. 1640-41.] A	=	Alice,† da. of . . . . Fulwood; died before her husband; buried at Warkworth (Sharp MSS., vol. 16A, p. 203, Cath. Lib., Durham).

* Sir Cuthbert Sharp's wording of the fragment of Thomas Lewen's will, which he has preserved, renders it doubtful whether the latter had two or three daughters. The exact words he uses are "Children of dau. Eliz., dau. Mary Gray, Ra. Gray her eldest son."

Nicholas Lewen of Amble and Hauxley=Hon. Lillias Ker, da. of Sir Andrew Ker, 1st Baron Jedburgh.

Thomas Lewen of Amble and Hauxley, eldest son and heir [? enrolled apprentice to Sir Thomas Riddell, Knt., Hoastman, 4 January 1642—Surtees Society, vol. 105, p. 285]; described, 4 April 1649, as ". . . . Lewness filium primogenitum inter quondam Liliam Ker filiam dicti dom Jedburgh" (Charter, Reg. Magni. Sigil. Regum Scot., 1634—51, vol. 9, No. 2005). By deed dated 15 May 1665 he, then described as "of Ambell," became assignee of John Tennant of St. Andrews of a bond of £200 from his wife's kinsman Andrew Rutherford, Earl of Teviot (who had died at Tangier in May 1664), to the said John Tennant, which he transferred to his wife's sister Isobell Rutherford, da. to the Laird of Hunthill (Edin. Com. Tests, vol. 74, 4 October 1672). By agreement made at Westminster, Easter, 33 Charles II., 1681, he, together with his wife, mortgaged two messuages and 350 acres of land in Amble and Hauxley to Lancelot Allgood, gent. (Feet of Fines, Northumberland, 33 Car. II., Easter). Together with Major Allgood he demised and farm-let, by deed dated 20 July 1685 at Morpeth, 3 messuages, 3 cottages, 40 acres of land, 40 acres of meadow, 40 acres of pasture, 40 acres of heath and furze, 300 acres of moor, and the free fishery of Amble, in Amble and Hauxley, for seven years to David Dixon (Coram Rege Roll, Mich., 1 James II., m. 509); and in 1687 Edward Maxwell (by his attorney William Bigge) successfully sued him and Nicholas Lewen of Amble for the sum of £118, which they were ordered to pay with costs (Coram Rege Roll, Trinity, 3 James II., m. 554). On 7 and 8 November 1687 Thomas Lewen of Amble, gent., joined with Nicholas Lewen his son and heir, George Lewen the elder of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, Major Allgood, clerk, Lancelot Allgood, gent., in deeds of lease and release by way of mortgage with equity of redemption, to the Hon. Francis Radcliffe of Dilston for the sum of £2000, of the capital messuage of Amble, four messuages or farms in Amble, the Hope house and the Barnes, and two messuages in Hauxley, with other property, all late in the possession of the said Thomas Lewen and Helen his wife, and Nicholas Lewen "his onely son & heire" (Radcliffe v. Lewen, Chancery, Bridges, 634, 1707; Feet of Fines, Northumberland, 4 James II., Easter; Greenwich Hospital Deeds, Box 14 F, No. 6). In 1661 he was admitted to the Freedom of the City of Newcastle-upon-Tyne as a merchant, but apparently he never took out his Freedom of the Merchant Adventurers' Company.* He was nominated as first Master of the Holy Jesus Hospital in Newcastle-upon-Tyne by the Mayor and Corporation of that City 26 March 1683, and in that capacity was party to deeds dated 27 March 1683 and 6 November 1683, being succeeded by Nicholas Dent as Master before 24 September 1685. He was Foreman of the Grand Jury at Morpeth in 1683 (Sessions Records, Northumberland). Described as of "Todgston Moorhouses" in an action to recover £382 debt due to Sir Fras. Radcliffe (Coram Rege, Mich., 2 James II., m. 252). He died before 1 August 1707. A =Helena, 3rd da. of John Rutherford of Hunthill, co. Roxburgh (M.P. for Roxburghshire 1630), by his wife the Hon. Alison Ker, 5th da. of Sir Andrew Ker, 1st Baron Jedburgh. She was executrix to her brother-german Thomas, 2nd Lord Rutherford, who died 11 April 1668, her husband being then described as "merchant in Newcastle" (Edinburgh Commissariat Testaments, vol. 73, 1668). Francis Lewen of Sowerby, co. York, baptized at St. John's, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, 11 April 1698; defendant in the plaint of Ralph Bell, that he (Francis Lewen) was on 1 January 1736-7 at the Castle of York indebted to Bell for the hire of horses, mares, and geldings, and that on 29 December 1736 Lewen hired a gelding, which he did not return, and also another gelding "for one Thomas Lewen, Brother to the said Francis Lewen" (Bell v. Lewen, King's Bench, P.R.O.); buried at Sowerby, co. York, 31 December 1746, unmarried. Will dated 16 December 1746; proved (P.C., York) 14 February 1746-7 by Elizabeth (née Morley), widow of Christopher Bell, and sole legatee.

Catherine, da. [? widow] of . . . . Scott; buried at Scarborough 28 April 1755. 1st wife. = Thomas Lewen of Scarborough, co. York, Attorney-at-Law, 2nd son; enrolled an Attorney 27 Nov. 1730 (P.R.O., Q.B.); admitted to the Freedom of Scarborough 1735; Bailiff of that town 1738 and 1751; purchased lands at Hawsker near Whitby, 13-14 George II., 1739, from Thomas Pattison and William and George Robinson and wife (York Feet of Fines); agent for Lord Dupplin (whose brother the Hon. and Rev. Robert Hay-Drummond was sometime Rector of Bothal) in his contested election as M.P. for Scarborough in 1735. He died at Hammersmith 17 Jan. ("Gentleman's Magazine," vol. 31, p. 44) and was buried there 23 Jan. 1761. Will dated 4 October 1760, sealed with the arms of Lewen of Newcastle and Amble, Henry Howard, Ann Howard, and Thomas Prince, witnesses; proved (P.C., York) 23 April 1761 by his son James Radcliffe Lewen, one of the executors. = Mary, widow of William Robinson† of Scarborough; married her second husband (bond at York dated 26 April 1759, he then aged 50 and upwards and she aged 40; Henry Howard of Scarborough, vintner, joins in bond) at Scarborough 15 May 1759; bur. there 5 Dec. 1789, aged 73. 2nd wife.

* Amongst the late Mr. James Lewen's papers is a note that Gabriel Jackson died 27 March 1786, aged 52.

† Mrs. Drake has surviving issue a son William and a dau. Edith, who married Alfred Wrightson.

APPENDIX I.—Lewen of Birling, co. Northumberland.

Mary, da. of . . . . ; buried at Warkworth 27 March 1698. 1st wife. = John Lewen, took a farm in Birling by lease from the Earl of Northumberland in 1697 ; buried at Warkworth 3 February 1720-21. = Elizabeth Forster of High Buston ; married at Warkworth 1 July 1701 ; buried there 19 May 1708. 2nd wife.

Thomas Lewen of Birling Northfield, son of John Lewen, so described in lease ; buried at Warkworth 29 Jan. 1740-41. = Elizabeth, da. of Edward Valentine of Wooden by his first wife Isabella Smith of Togston ; baptized at Warkworth 22 September 1692 or 27 October 1694 ; married there 16 June 1715 ; died at the birth of her son Edward ; buried at Warkworth April 1718.

George Lewen, = baptized at Warkworth 29 Dec. 1696.

Margaret, baptized at Warkworth 11 November 1694 ; [query buried as Mary at Warkworth 20 Dec. 1694].

Mary, baptized at Warkworth 13 June 1716.

Edward Lewen of Birling Northfield, born 1718 ; mentioned in lease of 1739 as son of Thomas ; buried at Warkworth 12 May 1749. Will dated 20 January 1747-8, proved P.C. Durham 2 June 1752, in which he made Henry Cramlington of Birling trustee, and his wife Elizabeth Lewen executrix. = Elizabeth, da. of . . . . Robinson ; married at Long Houghton 11 November 1740. [Remarried at Warkworth, 7 September 1753, Ralph Grey of Morpeth.]

Hannah, baptized at Warkworth 7 Aug. 1722; buried there 17 January 1722-3.

John Lewen, baptized at Warkworth 31 May 1743; buried there 27 Aug. 1746.

Margaret, baptized at Warkworth 25 November 1741 ; mentioned in her father's will Jan. 1747-8 ; living 1825.

Elizabeth, baptized at Warkworth 20 February 1744-5 ; mentioned in her father's will Jan. 1747-8 ; living 1825.

Mary, baptized at Warkworth 30 April 1747 ; mentioned in her father's will ; married . . . . Dewell [and had a da. Mary, wife of James Taylor]. She was living 1825.

Ann, born six months after her father's death ; baptized at Warkworth 29 October 1749 ; married there, 14 June 1772, George Ord of Low Buston, and had issue three daus. : (1) Anne, baptized at Warkworth 5 September 1773 ; living 1825 ; (2) Elizabeth, living 1825 ; and (3) Mary, wife of John Readhead, who in 1825 unsuccessfully claimed the Low Hall and Amble Hope estates from the representatives of the Radclyffe family ("Hist. Northd.," vol. 5, p. 287).

APPENDIX II.—Lewen of Bamburgh.

The descents of the younger branches of this family are practically insoluble. There were several related NICHOLAS LEWENS all contemporaries, and without further evidence it is difficult to disentangle the various notices preserved, and to say which relate to which.

I. NICHOLAS LEWEN occurs as sometime of Seaton Delaval, and in 1683 of Link House in the township of Newsham, gentleman. He married (bond at Durham dated 28 August) at Earsdon, 31 August 1680, Elizabeth, da. of .... Laidler and widow of William Grey of Seaton Delaval [whom she had married at Earsdon 24 June 1679, and who was buried there 8 April 1680 (Earsdon P.R.)]. She may be identical with the Mrs. Elizabeth Lewens buried at Bamburgh 27 December 1716. This NICHOLAS LEWEN had a son THOMAS LEWEN, baptized at Earsdon 26 December 1681, who was buried at Earsdon 6 March 1682-3, his father Nicholas then living at Linkhouse (Earsdon P.R.).

II. The administration of the estate of JOHN LEWEN of Warkworth, gent. [who was buried there 30 November 1685], was granted at Durham in 1686 to his brother NICHOLAS LEWEN of Alnwick,* gent., John Salkeld of Alnwick, gent., and William Wilson of Hadston, yeoman, being sureties.

III. NICHOLAS LEWEN was a sponsor (with Mathew White and Mrs. Mary Fenwick) at the baptism of Nicholas, son of Mr. Nicholas Fenwick, at St. Andrew's, Newcastle, 11 August 1698. This is probably the NICHOLAS LEWEN of Wolsington, gent., who was party to a bond at Durham 29 September 1702 for his proposed marriage to Isabel Wilkinson, spinster, with direction to Newburn and St. John's, Newcastle. The marriage does not occur in the register of either parish. A JOHN LEWEN paid hearth-tax upon four chimneys at Wolsington or South Dissington in 1675 (P.R.O., Lay Subsidy Rolls, 158/110). Newburn parish register has, by the kind permission of Canon Nowell, been examined, but the name does not occur therein.

IV. NICHOLAS LEWEN† of Bamburgh, gent., was buried there 9 December 1719. He made his will 26 November 1719 (proved P.C. Durham 1720), and appointed Thomas Wood of Burton and John Davison of Warkworth Barns trustees. In it he mentioned—

(a) His cousin JOHN LEWEN of Alnmouth, upon whom he settled his property at Warkworth. JOHN LEWEN is probably the John, son of Thomas Lewen‡ of Birling, who was baptized at Warkworth 30 September 1698. He married at Eglingham, 12 July 1720, Ann, da. of .... Muschamp, and died the same year, being buried at Bamburgh 7 October 1720. Administration of his estate was granted P.C. Durham to his widow Ann on 10 October 1720, her sureties being John

* Rev. R. R. Mangin writes, 21 March 1910, there are no Lewens in Alnwick Register of baptisms, burials, and marriages, 1676 to 1706.

† This Nicholas Lewen also mentions in his will his cousin John Laidler of Newcastle, an apprentice, and his cousin Matthew Laidler of the "Fryars," under age. These relationships suggest that this Nicholas was a son of the Nicholas first mentioned above, and of his wife Elizabeth Laidler.

‡ Thomas Lewen is probably identical with the Thomas Lewen of Acton in the parish of Felton, gent., who married (bond at Durham dated 9 April 1697, John Mitford of Durham, gent., bondsman) at Warkworth, 11 April 1697, Ann, daughter of George Nesbit of Birling. Administration of the estate of Thomas Lewen of Alnmouth was granted, P.C. Durham, to his widow Anne, 4 May 1703, Edward Valentine of Warkworth, yeoman, and Thomas Brown of Alnmouth, yeoman, being sureties. A bond was issued at Durham, dated 4 November 1703, for the marriage of Anne Lewen, widow, to William Soulsby of Alnmouth, master mariner. This marriage for some reason never took place. She eventually remarried at Lesbury, 31 January 1705-6, William Reeveley of Hartlepool.

Errington and John Robson. His only child, John Lewen, was born posthumous and baptized at Bamburgh 17 April 1721 and buried there 11 January 1722-3. Ann Lewen* the widow remarried (bond at Durham dated 5 October 1724, John Errington of Bamburgh, gent., being bondsman) at Bamburgh, 6 October 1724, Nicholas Bowman of The Friars in the parish of Bamburgh, and had issue.

(c) Margaret, wife of Thomas Dawson of Warkworth, upon whom Nicholas Lewen settled his property in remainder, and who succeeded as eventual heiress of this branch of the family. She is described as "aunt and heir-at-law of John Lewin" of Alnmouth, deceased, in a lease and release dated 8 and 9 October 1762 (Title to "Sun Inn" at Warkworth quoted in "History of Northumberland," vol. v., p. 160). She married as "Margaret Lewen, spinster" (bond at Durham dated 27 June), 14 July 1709, at Warkworth, Thomas Dawson of that place, gent., who was buried at Warkworth 12 June 1726. She was buried there 28 December 1760, leaving issue.

A conjecture may be hazarded that Thomas Lewen of Acton and Margaret Lewen, afterwards Dawson, were brother and sister of a Lillias Lewen who was baptized at Long Houghton 20 March 1683-4 [and query buried at Warkworth 12 July 1685] as daughter of John Lewen. If so, it is further probable that this John is one of the cousins who brought the suit against Thomas Lewen of Amble in 1685, whilst the John Lewen who heads the pedigree Appendix I. is probably the other cousin John, party to the same suit.

Pedigree B.—The Smythies of Essex and Suffolk,

Descended from Palmer Smythies and Elizabeth, née Brazier, his second wife.

(B 1) John Smythies of Colchester, son of Palmer Smythies (A 31). The Rev. Robert Bashford, Master of King James' Hospital, Colchester, writing 26 March 1903, says: "All his successors . . . . owe to the Mr. Smythies, Master in 1805, a debt of gratitude for his plucky and successful law-suit on behalf of the Master's income and statutory obligations. The present hospital dates from King James 1st reign, and originally it was a leper hospital, founded by Count Eudo de Dapifer in the reign of Henry 1st."

Two identical portraits of John Smythies, painted in oils (artist not known), are in existence, one the property of his great-grandson Mr. Arthur Smythies, and the other of his great-great-granddaughter Miss Mary Peachey.

* She may have married for a third time at Bamburgh, 16 February 1734-5, John Dodds. Administration of the latter, then described as of The Friars, Bamburgh, was granted P.C. Durham, 18 August 1777, to Anne his relict.

† A Jane Lewen was buried at Warkworth 24 November 1728.

‡ Concluded from p. 319.

Elizabeth (née Longcroft), wife of John Smythies, was on her father's side a member of an old Hampshire family, and on her mother's was descended from the Bearcrofts of Mere Hall, Worcestershire. This property was possessed by the Bearcrofts in lineal male descent from 1337 to 1822, when it passed to an heiress, whose heirs assumed the name and arms of Bearcroft. (See Burke's "Landed Gentry," etc.)

(B 2, 3, and 4). See pedigree.

(B 5) Elizabeth Smythies married the Rev. Thomas Twining, who, in a bicentenary record of the Twinings of Devereux Court, Strand (published 1910), is thus described : "An erudite classical scholar, an acute critic, a brilliant letter writer, a musician of great ability, and an accomplished linguist. His translation of Aristotle's 'Poetics' is still spoken of with respect." "He was a friend of Johnson, Garrick, Burke, and Burney, formed part of Mrs. Thrale's 'charmed circle' at Streatham, and, on his death in 1804, was made the subject of an eloquent epitaph by the great Samuel Parr."* See also the "Dictionary of National Biography;" "A Country Clergyman of the XVIII. Century" (Murray, 1882); "Papers of the Twining Family" (Murray, 1887), etc. A portrait of Rev. T. Twining was painted by J. J. Hales and reproduced in mezzotint by C. Turner.

Thomas Twining, the founder of the well-known house of tea merchants and bankers, when he first came to London at the end of the seventeenth century lived in the parish of St. Giles's, Cripplegate, and there, in all probability, became acquainted with William Smythies (A 10). If so, the friendship then started would account for the fact that Richard Twining, grandson of Thomas, having taken his eldest son Thomas into his business and finding him unfitted for it, asked Palmer Smythies, grandson of the above-mentioned William Smythies, to take Thomas into his family and prepare him for the university. It was in this way that Thomas Twining the younger became attached to Elizabeth Smythies, the daughter of his preceptor, and subsequently married her. A second marriage took place between the two families in the next generation (see B 6, below), when Richard Twining, nephew of the Rev. Thomas Twining, married Elizabeth Smythies (B 6), his wife's niece. Their son was the next head of the house of Twining, and their daughter Miss Louisa Twining, who is still living, is well known for her valuable work in the cause of education and philanthropy.

(B 6) Elizabeth Mary Smythies married Richard Twining, the second head of the "House of Twining" of that name (see B 5, above). He was educated at Norwich under Dr. Samuel Parr, was Chairman of the Committee of Bye-laws at the East India House, a Fellow of the Royal Society, and a Member of the Society of Arts. A good portrait of him exists, painted in oils, by Mrs. Carpenter. It is now at Devereux Court, Strand, in possession of his descendants.

(B 7) John Robert Smythies, son of John Smythies (B 1). M.I. St. James' Churchyard, Colchester. Author of "Thoughts on the Agricultural Question," contained in a letter to the Earl of Liverpool (London, 1820). A miniature portrait of John Robert Smythies is in possession of his great-granddaughter Miss Mary Peachey. He is also one of the figures represented in the picture, by Ansdell, of "The Country Meeting of the Royal Agricultural Society of England" (1839 ?), engraved by S. W. Reynolds, and published by Thomas Agnew at Manchester in 1843. The document appointing John Robert Smythies Chaplain to H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex was in possession of his son John Kinnersley Smythies in 1880.

* Who succeeded Palmer Smythies as Master of the Royal Grammar School, Colchester.

(B 8) Elizabeth Smythies, of whom a miniature portrait in water-colour exists in possession of Miss Mary Peachey, her great-niece.

(B 9) John Kinnersley Smythies, son of John Robert Smythies (B 7), spent a great part of his fortune in constructing a flying-machine and making experiments therewith. His appointment as Recorder of Ludlow was announced in "The Times," 9 November 1880. He was the author of a pamphlet entitled "Problems on the Motion of Atoms," pp. 23 (London, 1885).

(B 10 and 11). See pedigree.

(B 12) Henry Smythies, son of John Robert Smythies (B 7), married Harriette, daughter of Henry Waddington, at Liverpool, 1 March 1840. Particulars of the Waddington family and a pedigree are given in the "History of Monmouthshire," by Colonel Joseph A. Bradney, C.B., B.A., F.S.A. (p. 388). The Rev. Joseph Waddington, Vicar of Harworth and Walkeringham, co. Notts, who was born in 1711 and died in 1780, had a large family, and amongst them a son Henry (born 1761), the father of Mrs. H. Smythies. Another, and elder son, William, became a naturalized Frenchman, and his son Thomas was the father of William Henry Waddington (born 1826, died 1894), who became French Ambassador to Great Britain (1883—93). Harriette Smythies died 17 April 1891, aged 79, and was buried at Dunedin, N.Z.*

(B 13). See pedigree.

(B 14) Elizabeth Lydia Smythies was born 23 October 1842, and is now (1911) living in New Zealand. Her husband, Samuel Bold Stephens, died at Otepopo 1 July 1877.

(B 15) Harry Waddington Smythies, son of Henry Smythies (B 12), married secondly a widow, Mrs. Stevens. There has been no issue of this marriage.

(B 16) Edward Kinnersley Smythies, son of Henry Smythies (B 12), has (1911) no issue.

(B 17) Fanny Smythies was born in 1847.

(B 18) Rosa Smythies was born in 1850.

(B 19) Robert Smythies, son of Henry Smythies (B 12), was born in 1852.

(B 20) Edward Smythies, son of John Robert Smythies (B 7). Elizabeth (née Elizabeth March Phillipps), the first wife of Edward Smythies, by whom he had issue, was the eldest daughter of the Rev. Edward Thomas March Phillipps, third son of Thomas March, Esq., and his wife Susan (née Lisle), who was a cousin of her husband. Thomas March, on the death (1777) of his cousin Samuel Phillipps, Esq., of Garendon Park and Grace Dieu Manor, assumed the name of Phillipps, and in 1796 came into possession of his estates. His grandson Ambrose Lisle March Phillipps, Esq., who succeeded to the family estates in 1862, in addition assumed the ancient name of his grandmother's family, viz., de Lisle (or de Insula). (See Burke's "Landed Gentry," under Phillipps de Lisle.)

* From these particulars it will be seen that the father of Harriette Smythies was great-uncle, not brother, of the French Ambassador.

(B 22) Arthur Smythies, son of Edward Smythies (B 20), during his service in the Indian Woods and Forests Department, wrote several treatises on the subject of forestry for the use of the students at the Imperial Forests School and others interested. These included "Fruit Culture in the N.W. Himalaya," "List of Trees and Shrubs found in the Dehra Dun and Saharanpur Forests," "The Working of the Dehra Dun Sāl Forests," a translation of "Elements of Sylviculture" from the French of E. E. Fernandez, besides various articles in "The Indian Forester" and the "Journal of the Imperial Forests School." His wife has on one side French descent, her mother having been a member of the Huguenot family of Faure.

(B 23) Evelyn Arthur Smythies, son of Arthur Smythies (B 22), married 3 April 1911, at St. John's Church, Lucknow, India, Olive Muriel, daughter of Percy Rowland Cripps of Winford Manor, co. Somerset, Esq., J.P. (deceased). The marriage took place from Government House, the residence of Mr. Leslie Porter, C.S.I., officiating Lieut.-Governor of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, and his wife (née Aletta Aston), a sister of Mrs. Arthur Smythies (B 22).

(B 24 to 28). See pedigree.

(B 29) Beatrice Inez Smythies married Henry Holmes Jellett, whose father, the Rev. John Hewitt Jellett, had been Provost of Trinity College, Dublin, and whose uncles, the Very Rev. Henry Jellett and Hewitt Poole Jellett, K.C., were respectively Dean of St. Patrick's and H.M.'s 2nd Serjeant-at-Law in Ireland. These three distinguished brothers were the sons of the Rev. Morgan Jellett, Prebendary of Tullycorbet.

(B 30 and 31). See pedigree.

(B 32) Eric Smythies, son of Frederick Smythies (B 26), was born 18 September 1888.

(B 33) Margarita Hilda Smythies was married, 12 October 1911, to A. C. Glynn Baker of Helpmakaar, Lindley, Orange River Colony.

(B 34 to 40). See pedigree.

(B 41) Francis Smythies, son of Palmer Smythies (A 31). An open letter from "An Independent and impartial Free Burgess to the rest of the Free Burgesses of the Borough of Colchester," advocating the appointment of Francis Smythies as Recorder of Colchester, contains the following: "The vacancy of the Recordership, an event which . . . . cannot be at a very great distance, will make to you the most important crisis of any that hath taken place since your acceptance of the new Charter. The embarrassed situation of your finances, and the late outrageous attempt of one of your Aldermen and Representatives in Parliament to reduce them to a still lower state by depriving you of the most valuable part of your fisheries, are matters of the most serious Consideration. They call upon you in the strongest manner to elect a man to the Recordership who is both able and willing to vindicate your just and ancient rights . . . . Three persons have been talked of as successors to Mr. Mayhew . . . . Sir Robert Smyth . . . . Mr. Smythies, the Town Clerk, and . . . . Mr. Grimwood . . . . All the Magistrates, and by far the greatest part of the Corporate body, I find most warmly wish Mr. Smythies to succeed to the office of Recorder. They seem to think him in all respects perfectly qualified for the due execution of it, and indeed I do not find that his most violent enemies have ventured to call in question his abilities for any part of the business that belongs to it. The greatest objection I have heard against him is that he is too sanguine in his temper, and too violent in carrying his party measures into execution; and, I confess, that where I have differed from him in opinion I have thought the same, and have felt the full force of the objection; and, angry as I have been with him at the time, yet I never could suppress a wish that we had had so warm and so steady a friend on our side of the question; and though perhaps a character with less spirit might be more generally popular, yet would it be less adapted to our present perilous situation. In the course of the twenty years that he has exercised the office of Town Clerk . . . . whenever I have had occasion to ask his advice he has always given it to me gratis . . . . With respect to his behaviour on the Hall, whenever our rights to the Commons, Fisheries, or other public matters have been under consideration, you must have made your own observations, and I dare say they have been such as have done him Credit, both as a Townsman and a Brother Burgess." (Copied from the original, as published, dated 17 November 1787.) Francis Smythies was appointed Recorder.

(B 42). See pedigree.

(B 43) Mary Ann Smythies, daughter of Francis Smythies (B 41). Sackville Henry Frederick Gwynne of Glanbran, the husband of Mary Ann Smythies, was a member of the well-known Welsh family of that name. The record of his marriage to Mary Ann Smythies will be found in the Gwynne pedigree given in the "History of Monmouthshire," by Colonel Joseph A. Bradney, C.B., B.A., F.S.A., p. 409. He was baptized at Llanfair-ar-y-bryn 14 August 1778, became Captain in the Monmouthshire and Brecknockshire Militia, Colonel of the Carmarthenshire Volunteers, and Sheriff of Brecknockshire 1807. He and his son sold Glanbran, and spent the family fortune. He died in 1836. There are now (1911) several descendants of this marriage in the female line, but none in the male. A very interesting account of the Gwynne family is given in "Old Wales," vol. iii., p. 288.

(B 44 to 49). See pedigree.

(B 50) William Smythies, son of Francis Smythies (B 41), married about the year 1797 Grace, daughter of Thomas Richards of Stow Hill, Newport, Monmouthshire. Her mother was Elizabeth Evans, daughter, by his first wife, of Samuel Evans of Goldcliff, co. Monmouth, Esq.

(B 51) Francis Smythies, son of Francis Smythies (B 41), was offered knighthood by King George IV., but declined the honour. His will contains a comprehensive statement of his landed property, and its distribution amongst his children and grandchildren.

A portrait in oils (c. 30 inches by 25 inches), by Pickersgill, of Mrs. Francis Smythies (née Caroline Dale) is in possession of Mrs. William Yorick Smythies, by whom it was purchased at a sale at Messrs. Robinson, Fisher, and Co.'s rooms, on 2 February 1911, when certain pictures, formerly the property of Rev. William Yorick Smythies, who died intestate, were offered at auction. The picture was incorrectly catalogued as a portrait of Mrs. Frances [sic] Smythies.

(B 52) Francis Smythies, son of Francis Smythies (B 51), married Harriet Jane Gardiner, whose mother (née Anne Mangles) was a sister of Frances Mangles, who married 1825 Captain the Hon. Charles Leonard Irby (see "Boston" in Burke's "Peerage"), and had, with other issue, Frances Elizabeth, who married Rev. R. J. Howard Rice (see B 55 and 58, below).

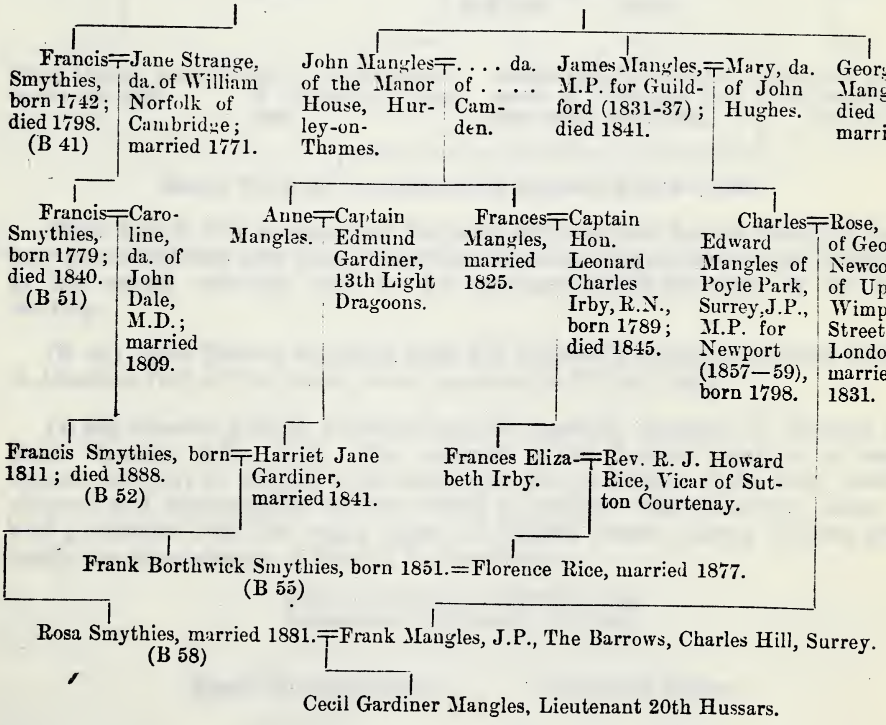
(B 53 and 54). See pedigree.

(B 55) Frank Borthwick Smythies, son of Francis Smythies (B 52), author, under the nom-de-plume "Garboard Streyke," of "The Sea, the River, and the Creek," a series of Sketches of the Eastern Coast (Sampson Low, Marston, Searle, and Rivington, 1884). The maternal grandmother of F. B. Smythies, Mrs. Edmund Gardiner, and the maternal grandmother of his wife, the Hon. Mrs. Charles Irby, were sisters (see B 52 above and B 58 below).

(B 56 and 57). See pedigree.

(B 58) Rosa Smythies, daughter of Francis Smythies (B 52). The maternal grandmother of Rosa Smythies, Mrs. Edmund Gardiner (née Anne Mangles), was first-cousin to Charles Mangles, M.P. for Newport, her husband's father; hence she and her husband are second-cousins once removed (see B 52 and 55 and pedigree below).



Francis Smythies, born 1742; died 1798. (B 41)
Jane Strange, da. of William Norfolk of Cambridge; married 1771.
John Mangles of the Manor House, Hurley-on-Thames.
. . . . da. of . . . . Camden.
James Mangles, M.P. for Guildford (1831-37); died 1841.
Mary, da. of John Hughes.
George Mangles, died unmarried.
Francis Smythies, born 1779; died 1840. (B 51)
Caroline, da. of John Dale, M.D.; married 1809.

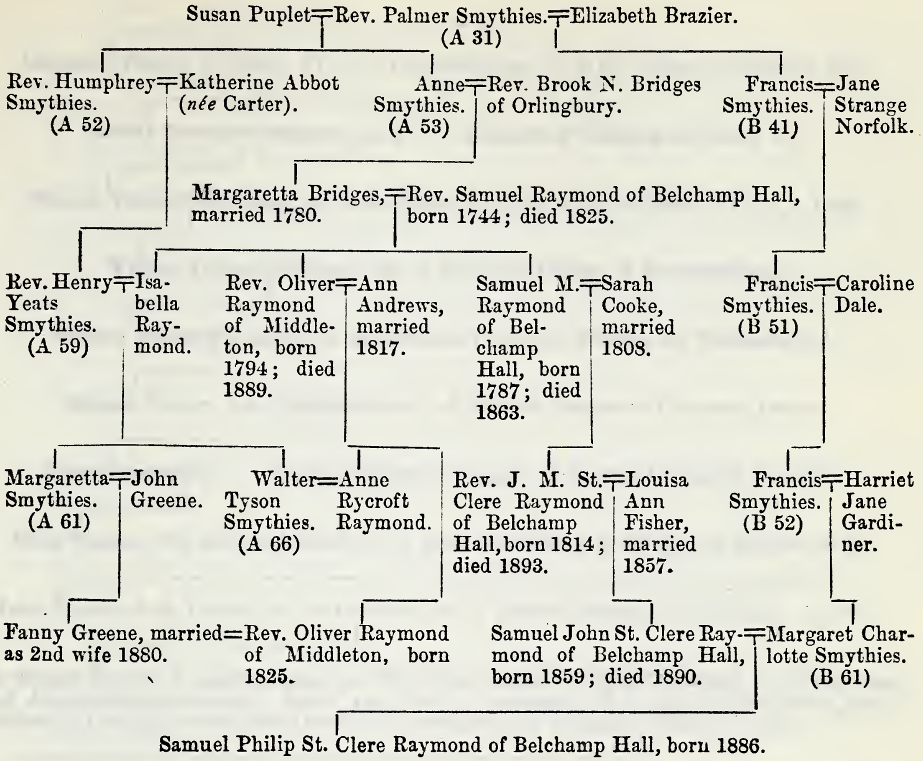
Rose, da. of George Newcome of Upper Wimpole Street, London; married 1831.
Francis Smythies, born 1811; died 1888. (B 52)
Harriet Jane Gardiner, married 1841.
Frances Elizabeth Irby.
Rev. R. J. Howard Rice, Vicar of Sutton Courtenay.
Frank Borthwick Smythies, born 1851.=Florence Rice, married 1877. (B 55)
Rosa Smythies, married 1881. (B 58)
Frank Mangles, J.P., The Barrows, Charles Hill, Surrey.
Cecil Gardiner Mangles, Lieutenant 20th Hussars.

(B 59 and 60). See pedigree.

(B 61) Margaret Charlotte Montagu Smythies, daughter of Francis Smythies (B 52), married Samuel Raymond, and so formed a fifth link between the Smythies and Raymond families. The pedigree overleaf shews these links in tabulated form.



Susan Puplet=Rev. Palmer Smythies.=Elizabeth Brazier.
(A 31)
Rev. Humphrey=Katherine Abbot Smythies. (née Carter). (A 52)
Anne=Rev. Brook N. Bridges Smythies. of Orlingbury. (A 53)
Francis=Jane Smythies. Strange (B 41) Norfolk.
Margaretta Bridges,=Rev. Samuel Raymond of Belchamp Hall, married 1780. born 1744; died 1825.
Rev. Henry=Isabella Yeats Raymond. Smythies. (A 59)
Rev. Oliver=Ann Raymond Andrews, of Middleton, married born 1794; 1817. died 1889.
Samuel M.=Sarah Raymond Cooke, of Belchamp married Hall, born 1808. 1787; died 1863.
Francis=Caroline Smythies. Dale. (B 51)
Margaretta=John Smythies. Greene. (A 61)
Walter=Anne Tyson Rycroft Smythies. Raymond. (A 66)
Rev. J. M. St.=Louisa Clere Raymond Ann of Belchamp Fisher, Hall, born 1814; married died 1893. 1857.
Francis=Harriet Smythies. Jane (B 52) Gardiner.
Fanny Greene, married=Rev. Oliver Raymond as 2nd wife 1880. of Middleton, born 1825.
Samuel John St. Clere Ray-=Margaret Charmond of Belchamp Hall, lotte Smythies. born 1859; died 1890. (B 61)
Samuel Philip St. Clere Raymond of Belchamp Hall, born 1886.

From this it will be seen that Margaret Smythies and Samuel Raymond both trace descent directly from Palmer Smythies, she being his great-great-granddaughter by his second marriage, and he his great-great-great-grandson by his first marriage.

(B 62) Jane Harriet Smythies, after her husband's decease, continued to live at Alresford Hall till her death, which occurred on 27 July 1908.

(B 63) Charles Norfolk Smythies married Isabella, daughter of Admiral Sir Eaton Travers, R.N., K.H. The pedigree of the Travers family is of much interest, not only on account of its length, but also on account of the many notable alliances and distinguished services which it records. The following, taken by kind permission from the family papers of Colonel James Conway Travers, gives briefly the direct descent of Mrs. C. N. Smythies :—

(B 65) Charles Alan Smythies, son of Charles Norfolk Smythies (B 63). One of the most important services rendered by Bishop Smythies was the promotion of harmonious relations between the German and English officials and missionaries in East Africa. With this aim in view he visited Berlin in October 1890. There he was the guest of Sir Edward Malet, the then British Ambassador, and had interviews with the Chancellor, General von Caprivi, and the Emperor William II. It may be said with confidence that the good understanding regarding missionary enterprise in English and German East Africa, which this visit materially helped to establish, was of much value to both nations. A "Life of Bishop Smythies," by G. W.,* edited by Edward Francis Russell, M.A., with a portrait as frontispiece, was published at the office of the Universities' Mission to Central Africa, 9 Dartmouth Street, Westminster, in 1898. There is a handsome memorial to him in the form of a reredos in Zanzibar Cathedral, and a memorial tablet in the Church of St. Mary-at-the-Walls, Colchester.

(B 66) Palmer Kingsmill Smythies, son of Charles Norfolk Smythies (B 63), served as a Lieutenant attached to "Boadicea's" Naval Brigade during the Zulu War of 1879. He joined General Crealock's column, and went with it to Port Durnford. In 1881, during the operations against the Boers, he was Naval Transport Officer in Natal. He was Lieutenant in command of H.M.S. "Albacore," during the naval and military operations in the Eastern Soudan, at Suakin, 1884-85. As a Commander he held command of H.M.S. "Linnet" on the China station.

(B 67) Lancelot Alan Smythies, son of Palmer Kingsmill Smythies (B 66), was selected in 1910 as a Naval Officer to study Russian. He proceeded to Russia accordingly, and on his return passed the examination in the language as interpreter.

(B 68 and 69). See pedigree.

(B 70) William Yorick Smythies, son of Francis Smythies (B 51), was a boy at Shrewsbury School (1832—1835) in the reign of King William IV., and lived to see King George V. ascend the throne of England. He was fond of telling the story of the visit of the young Princess Victoria to Shrewsbury, when he was at school there—how he with the other boys joined in the cheering which greeted her and her mother the Duchess of Kent. For some years (between 1876 and 1893) he was Inspector of Schools for the Dioceses of Rochester and St. Albans, and during this time lived on his own property near Colchester. In 1897, being in his 81st year, but still full of vigour, he was appointed by the Rev. Basil Beridge to the very valuable living of Algarkirk in Lincolnshire, and held it till his death in 1910. When 88 years of age he made a tour to Italy, Greece, the Holy Land, and Egypt, and was able thoroughly to enjoy his experiences. He was a man of commanding presence, and up to the last retained the full use of his faculties. When he died, at nearly 94 years of age, the name of Smythies for the first time during three centuries ceased to be represented among the clergy of the Church of England.

Some particulars regarding the family of the first wife of W. Y. Smythies (née Harriette Maria Gordon) are given below (B 76). She wrote some novels under the name of "Mrs. Gordon Smythies." His second wife (née Anna Maria Belson), who survives him, belongs to a naval and military family, many members of which have rendered distinguished service. Amongst these may be mentioned Sir Philip Belson, her grandfather's brother, who commanded the 28th Regiment at Quatre Bras, Captain H. F. Belson, R.N., her father, who was presented with a specially-struck gold medal by King Louis Philippe for saving a French transport in the Bay of Biscay, and General Belson, Royal Artillery, her uncle, who was present in thirty-three actions during the Peninsula War. The Belson family is connected by marriage with the de Hochpied Larpents, and also, through the Anderson-Morsheads, with the Leslies, Earls of Rothes.

(B 71 to 75). See pedigree.

Gordons of Lesmoir.
Edward Gordon=Elizabeth de Barre.
Edward Gordon of Sunning Hill, co. Berks.=Jane Halliday.
Elizabeth Gordon=George Edward Clarke.
William Yorick Smythies. (B 70)=Harriette Maria Gordon.

Family of Bor of Holland and Ireland.*

Prefatory Remarks.—The original Pedigree in Dutch is in the possession of Colonel E. J. Bor, R.E., who has had it translated by Mr. De Villiers of the British Museum. This translation will be found in the following pages. Colonel Bor's notes are distinguished by his initials in brackets.

A detailed annotation of the family of the Bors, in so far as these have, up to the present time, come to my knowledge.

I find in the notes of my brother, Salomon Bor, written in his own hand, these very words : "From old letters it is found that the Bors had in the year 1600 been in Utrecht for five hundred years, to wit, from the year of our Lord 1100." But where he got this from I do not know. But I have it from my uncle, Jan Bor, that he has knowledge of Aert Bor, though without having been able to find when he was born, whom he married or when he died, yet that he had, amongst others, a son named

Goyert Bor, who had as wife Lysbeth, the daughter of Jan Alpherts van der Mije, and had amongst others a son named

Jan Bor-Goeyertsz, who had as wife Geertruydt de Beer, being daughter of Jan Adriesz de Beer and of Weijntje van Ewijck his housewife. He, Jan Bor, died 20 February 1539, and Geertruydt de Beer died 8 March 1551, and were both buried in the Buerkerk at Utrecht. (Weyntje van Ewyck died 11 January 1518.) Which Jan Bor and Geertruydt de Beer had these children:—

Goyert Bor, born 16 July 1499 and was Procurator at the Bergh, near Amersfoort. He died 4 February 1544 and lies there buried under a tombstone.

Grietjen Bor, born 14 October 1501; married Cornelis Brandon the . . . . 1541, and died 30 November 1575 and was buried at Prekers.

Jan Bor, born 3 July 1503; died 1 November 1529.

Lysbeth Bor, born 7 February 1508; died young.

Lysbeth Bor, born 21 February 1509; married Dirck Gysbertsen in 1552 at Wijck. She died 14 February 1590 and was buried at Wijck. He died 6 March 1596.

Cornelis Bor, born 15 November 1510; died young.

Christiaen Bor, born 18 January 1513; married Maria van Sompeken 28 Nov. 1551. She was born 27 August 1531.

Adriaen Bor, born 6 May 1516; died 1519.

Weijntjen Bor, born 31 August 1519; died . . . . 1577; buried first at Minnebroedeis and afterwards in the Buerkerk (Utrecht).

I cannot, up to the present, find that there are any descendants of the children of Jan Bor-Goeyertsz and Geertje de Beer, excepting only the children of Christiaen Bor and Maria van Sompeken. I shall consequently set forth the same in order here.

Christiaen Bor, son of Jan Bor-Goeyertsz and of Geertje de Beer, born 18 January 1513; married Maria van Sompeken (daughter of Augustijn van Sompeken, who was Alderman of the town of Utrecht in the year 1563) on 28th Nov. 1551. He died 4 September 1575, and lies buried in the Buerkerk. She died 13 November 1614 and was buried at Vianen, being 83 years old. They begat the following children:—

Jan Bor, born 14 October 1552. He married Pietertje, daughter of Hendrik van Staden, January 1576, and begat five children.

Pieter Bor, born 18 September 1553; died 20 February 1554.

Giertje Bor, born 15 November 1554; married Daniel Barents van der Meer 29 January 1577. She died 1 March 1584. They begat three children.

Lijntje Bor, daughter of Christiaen Bor and Maria van Sompeken, born 14 February 1556; married 1st Pieter Jansze Segerman, who died in 1593, leaving one daughter. She married again Eduardt Jonas and died 5 (15) October 1632 at Dordrecht. He, Eduardt Jonas, died 23 October (2 November) 1634, also at Dordrecht, and they were buried in the great church there. She bore Pieter J. Segerman one daughter—Peternalla Segerman, born 5 February 1575, and married Evert Dircksz Muller. He died 1 February N.S. 1641 at Amsterdam, and had issue: Ida Muller, born 30 November 1611; Pietertje, Dirckje, Maeijke.

Lijntje Bor and Eduardt Jonas had Pietertje, born 16 January 1589; married Willem Macaelje. He died in 1614 and she married again Hendrich Goredt. She had issue of Willem Macaelje: Michiel Macaelje, born 1608, married Barbara . . . , in 1631 and had issue : Barbara, born 1632, died young ; Willem, born 1633, died . . . . ; Eduardt, born . . . ., married . . . . ; Barbara, Catharina.

Guert Bor, born 4 October 1557 ; he married Lucretia, daughter of Balte de Loes, widow of . . . . Sem, on 23 November 1591. He died 7 September 1625 in Dordrecht, childless, and lies buried in the great church there.

Pieter Bor Christiaensz, born 24 January 1559 ; married Martina Booth, widow of . . . . Sas, 15 December 1603 ; she died in March 1632 at the Hague ; he died 6 March 1635 without children. He was in his lifetime Treasurer of North Holland and afterwards took in hand the description and chronicles of the troubles and wars of the Netherlands, which he completed in a very praiseworthy manner, and had the same published in six parts in folio. He lies buried in the great church at Haarlem. Motley, in his " Rise of the Dutch Republic," frequently refers to " the enormous but indispensible folios " of Bor, which contain " an artless but earnest narrative." [There is a copy in Library of Trinity College, Dublin.]

Elizabeth Bor, daughter of Christiaen Bor and Maria van Sompeken, born 23 April 1560 ; married Nicasius le Petit ; she died 27 April 1610 ; he died 13 Sep. 1615. He was in his lifetime Councillor of the town of Utrecht. They begat the following children :—

Maria le Petit, born . . . . ; married Pieter Wtenbogaert 22 January 1605 ; he died 31 October 1660, after having for many years held the Treasurership of St. Catherine. They begat these children :—

Frans Wtenbogaert, born 1606 ; Advocate at the Court of Utrecht and Canon of St. Peter's at Utrecht, and Receiver of the General Revenues there. He married 13 February 1634 Mistress Judith van Wijck, daughter of Mr. Asch van Wijck. He died 25 April 1661. They begat these children : Frans, born 1635, died young ; Hillegondt, born 1636 ; Lysbeth, Floris, Judith Aleth ; Jacop, born . . . ., died May 1663.

Seger, died young.

Cornelis Bor, born 14 May 1561 ; married Anna van Kelst 5 March 1584 ; he died 17 April 1612 in Vlaerdingen, being bailiff and sheriff of the said place, and lies buried there. She died 28 March 1622 at Dordrecht and was buried there in the great church on the south side of the choir in a grave covered by a tombstone, having the arms of Bor and Van Kelst upon it. They begat children.

Jacob Bor, born 24 July 1562 ; died 20 September 1575.

Augustijn Bor, born 3 March 1568 ; married Pirina . . . ., and begat one son, who, being an imbecile, died young. He died 4 February 1602.

Weijntje Bor, born 31 January 1569 ; died 21 February 1591 and buried at Prekers.

Jan Bor, son of Christiaen Bor and Maria van Sompeken, born 14 October 1552 ; married Pietertje, daughter of Henderick van Staden, January 1576; he died 1 December 1635, 83 years old, and was buried on the 6th at Utrecht in the Buerkerk. She died 3 July 1627. They lived together in Utrecht for fifty-nine years, and had issue the following children :—

Christiaen Bor, born 20 November 1576 ; married Judith, daughter of Hendrick van Zuijlen, 8 July 1606 ; he died 21 December 1621, and was in his lifetime an expert Doctor of Medicine and Alderman of the town of Utrecht. They begat eight children, of whom five died young and three came to full age, being, Henderick Bor, born 14 July 1608. He became Advocate of the Court at Utrecht and married Mistress Cornelia Zaal Wten Eng, widow of Doctor Brinkhof ; he died 28 September 1638 ; she died 8 October 1640.

Elizabeth Bor, born 24 September 1615 ; married . . . . Sinapius, Sheriff at Luesden, and lived at Amersfoort.

Maria Bor, born 30 October 1618 and married 11 February 1645 Mr. Pieter van Helsdingen, Advocate at the Court of Utrecht and afterwards Secretary at Amersfoort, where he died. She died . . . . 165 . . They begat these children: Christiaen van Helsdingen, Anna Maria van Helsdingen.

Gerrit Bor, born 10 July 1582; married 24 May 1634 Maria Dircksz van Voorburg of Delft; he died 18 February 1638 and was buried in the Buerkerk.

Geertje Bor, born 23 January 1585; married Jan Claesz van Rodenburg of Ondewater; he died . . . . 1630. She married again to Cornelis Dirksz Van Voorburg . . . . 1631 and bore . . . . children, of whom not more than one son remained alive.

Christiaen van Rodenburg, born . . . .; married 1st Mistress . . . . de Goeijer, the daughter of the Burgomaster de Goeijer, and afterwards Mistress . . . . He is a deacon of the Chapter of St. Peter at Utrecht, and a Deputy to the Assembly of their Noble Mightinesses the States of the Province of Utrecht, and for the same constituency deputed Councillor of State.

Pieter Bor, born 6 March 1586, and appointed in the year 1614 Secretary to the Justices of the town of Utrecht. He married Mistress Anna van der Burch . . . . 1633 and was elected Town Councillor the 1st October 1643 and Alderman of the town of Utrecht 1 October 1644. He died 29 April 1648, between 9 and 10 at night without issue.

Jan Bor, born 14 September 1590; he was a Doctor of Medicine and married 26 January 1625 Mechtelt, daughter of John van Someren, formerly Alderman of the town of Utrecht. He begat these children:—

Elizabeth Bor, born 10 March 1626; married 1660 . . . . van Rojesteijn, Doctor of Medicine. They had issue the following: Johannes van Rojesteijn, born 1661; Judith van Rojesteijn, born May 1663.

[Note.—The above is written by Christian Bor, not by original writer of the Dutch part of the pedigree.—E. J. B., Col., 1904.]

My husband Christian Bor, Esq., dyde ye 10th of June 1733 at Seven o'clock, being Sunday, and was buried at St. Cavan's Church under the great stone in the ile on ye thursday following, being the 14th of the same munth.

John Bor, Esq., eldest son of the above Christian, fell overboard at sea, and was drowned on the 18th day of October 1742; his body was buried in St. Cavan's Church under the great stone with his father. [Written by Helena Maria Bor.—E. J. B.]

Gerrard Bor, son of the aforesaid Christian Bor, died of a fever at his mother-in-law's house in Big Longford Street, he having married Mary Burton, her father having been a yeoman or battleax; her mother kept a brandy shop in Longford Street, Dublin. He died 25 January 1745-6. The wife proved a marriage by these witnesses, viz., her mother Sophia Echlin alias Kennedy, maidservant to her brother-in-law George Wrightson, who kept a small grocer's shop in Abbey Street, and her sister Wrightson. The marriage had at Wrightson's house. The minister, Hopkins, of George's Church on the Hill, a notorious man. The marriage was proved after his death and a son born, 25 July 1746 following, named Gerrard. This unhappy marriage occasioned much law, loss and trouble to the family. He was buried with ye family in St. Kevin's Church.

William Bor, son of the aforesaid Christian Bor, died in Family House, Big Butter Lane, the 14th day of April 1744, of a decay; he was unmarried. He was buried with the family in St. Kevin's Church. [Written in a very good hand, possibly that of the brother Jacob, who died 1765.—E. J. B.]

[Note.—This ends the part of the old Dutch manuscript which I have (had) translated. The last entry, concerning the family of Christian and Helena Bor, is written by them in English, just as I have copied it.

NOTE.—On folio 37 of the old Dutch pedigree the following entry has been written by Christian Bor :—

In the Name of God, Amen. On the third day of July, being Wednesday, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Seven Hundred and Seventeen, I, Christian Bor, of the city of Dublin, was married to Hellena Maria Longfield, daughter of Robert Longfield of Kilbride in the County of Meath, Esq^{r}. The marriage was performed by M^{r} John Kearney, Vicar of S^{t} Peter's Church, Dublin, by Licence from Doctor Theophilus Bolton, Vicar Generall of the Diocese. We were married in the house of William Longfield, Esq^{r}, in Yorke S^{t}, Dublin, my wife's brother who gave her in marriage. Present at the marriage Mrs. Katherine Longfield, my mother-in-law ; her daughters, Katherine Wentworth, Editha Baldwin, her husband Arthur Baldwin, Esq^{r}, Edward Eustace of Castlemore in the County of Catherlagh, Esq., my brother-in-Law, the said Hellena Maria Longfield.

I had issue as follows :—

John Bor my Eldest Son, borne 26 7^{ber} 1718 on Fryday morning at two o'clock, and baptized by M^{r} Kearney of S^{t} Peter's the 5 8^{ber} following. W^{m} Longfield and Charles Baldwin, Esq^{r}, godfathers, and my mother-in-Law and Lady Clotilda Eustace godmothers.

Robert, my second son, borne 26th 9^{ber} 1719, six minutes before seven in the morning on Thursday and baptized the 4th x^{ber} following by M^{r} . . . ., curate to M^{r} Kearney, Vicar of S^{t} Peter's ; Richard Nally, Esq^{r}, Councillor-at-Law, and Tho^{s} Burde, Esq^{r}, godfathers, my cousin Tyghe and Lady Eustace godmothers.

Gerrard Bor, my third son, borne on Tuesday noon the 8th of November 1720, at half an hour past twelve, and was baptized by the 19th following by M^{r} Duggat, Vicar of S^{t} Peter's ; my cosen Maurice Warron and bro^{r}-in-law Arthur Baldwin, Esq^{r}, his godfathers, and my mother-in-law and Aunt Eustace his godmothers.

Christian Bor, my fourth son, was borne on Tuesday about half an hour past nine of the clock in the morning, being the 19th of December 1721, and was baptized on Saturday the sixth of January, being twelfth day ; Richard Tighe and cos^{n} Rob^{t} Longfield, Esq^{rs}, his godfathers, my cosen Clotilda Eustace and cosen Nicholson his godmothers.

Jacob Bor, borne the one and twentieth day of March 1722-3 on Thursday night, three minutes before nine, and was baptized on Easter Monday the fifteenth of Aprill 1723 by the Rev. M^{r} Duggatt of S^{t} Peter's Church ; S^{r} Pierce Butler and Bro^{r} Eustace godfathers, personated by Bro^{r} Longfield and M^{r} W^{m} Marshall, my mother Longfield and sister Baldwin godmothers.

William Bor, my sixth son, born the 15th day of March 1724-5, on Munday morn about nine o'clock, and was baptized on Easter Sunday the twenty-eighth day of same month by the Rev^{d} M^{r} Duggatt of S^{t} Peter's Church ; my brother Arthur Baldwin and William Williams godfathers, and cosen Sarah Nicholson godmother.

NOTE.

The family of Christian and Helena Maria Bor (née Longfield, 2nd wife of . . . .) became extinct on the death of Gerrard's son Gerrard in 1766, and all the property reverted to Helena Maria, who by her will, dated 23 April 1767, left everything to her own relations, the Swiftes—M^{c}Carthy's. She died 23 July 1767.

John Bor, born 26 September 1718 ; died 18 October 1742.

Robert Bor, born 26 November 1719 ; died 2 December 1726.

Gerrard Bor, born 8 November 1720 ; died 25 January 1745-6 ; his son Gerrard, born 26 July 1746, died 1766.

Christian Bor, born 19 December 1721 ; died 23 December 1726.

Jacob Bor, born 21 March 1722 ; died 1765.

William Bor, born 15 March 1724-5 ; died 14 April 1744.

NOTE.—The Bor name in branch represented by Christian and Eleanor Bor, died out in their children—all daughters. [See note from Hore's "History of Wexford," below.] Borrmount, on the River Slaney, a few miles below Enniscorthy, has long since been pulled down, and a modern house built near. I was at Borrmount in 1895. The only traces of the old mansion were the grass terraces on which the house and gardens stood.

Notes from Hore's "History of the Town and County of Wexford" (published 1911), vol. v. of the "History of Wexford."

Christian and John [? Jacob, see p. 369 of Pedigree] Borr from Lower Germany had a grant of "denization" in Ireland, made to them in the sixteenth year of James I.

Christian Borr was given 4744 acres in Wexford as a Cromwellian settlement, some of which was returned at the restoration to Mr. Hore, the former owner. Borr retained the Castle and grounds, and early in the eighteenth century they were sold to Government by his representatives, and were converted into Barracks. Christian Borr married Begnet Cusack, and left two sons. The eldest was named Christian Bor of Drynagh and Edermine, which latter he changed to Borrmount. He was Mayor of Wexford in 1652 and High Sheriff of co. Dublin. On 1 May 1673 he married Ellen, daughter and heiress of Philip Hore of Ballycheoge (now Belle Vue). With her he acquired estates in the Baronies of Forth and Shalmalier. His will is dated 1686. He died 1687, and was buried at Drynagh. He left six daughters, coheiresses, viz.:—

1. Catherine, christened 3 12 1775.
2. Clotilda, m. 1st Sir Fraser Eustace; 2ndly Michael Parsons of Parsonstown.
3. Helen, m. 3 5 1707 Thos. Uniacke of Carview, co. Cork.
4. Barbara, m. 27 11 1708 the Rt. Hon. R. Tighes of Woodstock.
5. Emilia, m. 24 9 1705 Edward Lovett of Drynagh.
6. Euphemia, m. 30 11 1711 George Houghton of Kilthorp Manor in Rutlandshire, and afterwards of Borrmount through right of his wife. He sold the English property, and died in 1733, leaving 5 sons and 3 daughters.

The above Table shews all the descendants of Aert Bor who are at all likely to include the ancestor of the Bors now extant. Up to the present I have not traced the parentage of Humphrey Bor of Borfield, Clonard, co. Meath, the ancestor of the extant families. (See p. 375.)

His second wife, Deborah Mills, he married 17 August 1722. This would seem to date his birth somewhere in the last part of 1650—1700. This would be about the time Cornelis or Gerrit (sons of Begnet Cusack) would have had children.

Jacob Bor, son of Jan Bor and Margaret Byse, born 12 October 1665; died 8 July 1723. Appointed Major in Fox's Marines 12 February 1702; Colonel 29 November 1704; Brigadier-General 1 January 1709-10; Quarter-Master-General to Lord Rivers 5 June 1706.

Gibraltar was captured by Sir George Rooke on 2 September 1704, and Prince George of Hesse-Darmstadt was left in command, Lieut.-Colonel J. Bor being 2nd in command of the Marines. The place was besieged by the Marquis de Villadarias from 22 October 1704 to 18 April 1705. On 11 November 1704 the Governor, Colonel Nugent and General Fox were killed and Bor succeeded to the command of the English troops. As a recognition of his gallant services during the siege he was appointed to the command of Fox's Marines (afterwards known as the 32nd Regt.), the appointment being dated 5 December 1704.

Carlow, and Pellettstown, co. Dublin. Houses in St. Michael's Lane, Schoolhouse Lane, and Borr's Court to his brother-in-law Arthur Baldwin in trust and his wife Edytha Baldwin. Ballynurry and Kilcoole and other lands in Carlow to son Garrett and heirs to be lawfully begotten, failing him to son Jacob on like conditions, failing him to son William on like conditions. His two sons Jacob and William to have Pellettstown and Dublin houses equally. One failing, then to revert to the survivor; both failing, then to revert to Garrett and William. Failing these, to John. Sons not to marry without written permission of mother, and "not to marry any of the daughters of my brother-in-law Edward Eustace of Castlemore, co. Carlow." Wife to be guardian of sons, then all under age. Signed by Christian Bor of Kevin Street 8 June 1733. Witnesses: A. Weston, Thos. Quinn, Edw^d Dalton.

[4] Robert Bor may have left a family.

[5] Jacob Bor (Brig.-General). He died 8 July 1723.

[6] Benjamin Bor may have left a family.

[7] Cornelis Bor was a doctor at Utrecht; not likely that his family remained in England or Ireland.

[8] Gerrit Bor. I know nothing about him; he may have left a family. On 21 September 1695 Gerrard (Gerrit) Bor, Administrator to the late Earl of Arran, petitioned the Irish Parliament in respect of the issue of copper half-pence in Ireland.—E. J. B.

"Contemporary writers are united and enthusiastic in their admiration of the gallant defender of Gibraltar and his Lieutenant, and it is not too much to say that it is to these two men, Prince George of Hesse-Darmstadt and Colonel Bor, that Great Britain owes possession of the Rock. For eight months the siege lasted; with its garrison of 2000 men, soon to be reduced by casualties to half that number, with inferior armament on battered fortifications, they held the place against a besieging army of 12,000 men and a formidable fleet. By their staunch soldier-like qualities in presence of a hostile population, and that worst of foes, internal dissension, they kept their worn-out troops together, and enemies outside the lines, until the arrival, long deferred, of a relieving force, when the siege was raised."

In 1705 Colonel Bor proceeded to Barcelona in command of his regiment, but on landing he had the misfortune to kill Lieut.-Col. Rodney of Holt's Marines in a duel, in which he was himself dangerously wounded. He took no part in the operations before that time [town ?], nor was he with his regiment at the Battle of Almanza, 25 April 1707, he having been appointed Quarter-Master-General (5 June 1706) of an expeditionary force, under Earl Rivers, destined for a descent near the mouth of the Charente.

At Gibraltar, 10 November 1704, Bor commanded 500 Marines sent to dislodge 500 Spaniards who had landed near St. Michael's Cave; of the latter, 200 were killed and 190 taken prisoners, including the leader, Colonel de Figuera, and 33 other officers.

It is an old tale in the family that Jacob Bor was killed by his own dog. He had wagered that his dog would recognize him and not attack him, however disguised. On putting it to test, the dog killed him before the onlookers could interfere.

For mention of General Jacob Bor reference may be made to "Historical Records of the XXXIInd Regt. and of Marine Corps;" Parnell's "History of the War of the Spanish Succession"; Boyer's "Annals of Queen Anne"; Dalton's "Early Army Lists," vol. ii.; Record Office Papers; "London Gazette," 4, 5, 6, 7 Dec. 1704; "Triumphs of Her Majesty's Army, 1707."

Copy of the will of General Jacob Bor. [Given me by William Jackson Pigott of Manor House, Dundrum, co. Down.—A. E. B.]

Jacob Bor, General, 1723. In the name of God. I, Brigadier General Jacob Bor, being of sound mind and memory, do make this my last will and testament. I bequeath all my goods and chattels and worldly substance to James Hamilton of the City of Dublin, gent., for the payment of what I owe him, and if any surplus should remain after paying him the said James Hamilton all his just demands with the £200 he gave me for the Agency to my Regiment, then I bequeath the same for the payment of my other just debts to Robert Bor, my natural son, and do constitute and appoint him the said James Hamilton sole Executor of this my last will and testament, and I do publish and declare it under my hand and seal this 26th day of June 1723.

Pat Nulty.

Bor's Court, School-house Lane, Dublin.—From John Bor, who in 1674 leased from the Corporation the City Free School, situated in School-house Lane at the corner of this Court, often corrupted into Borris Court and Burrowes Court.

Crest, arms, etc., on a seal which belonged to my grandfather, Humphry Bor of Ballindolan, co. Kildare: Party per fesse in chief gules, a bend between six fleurs-de-lys (three and three) argent; in base or, a saltire engrailed sable. Crest: Two wings endorsed gules and or, on the former a fleur-de-lys of the last. Motto: Sicut iris florebit.—E. J. B.

Humphrey Bor of Mulpedder, co. Meath, also of Borfield, co. Meath, near Clonard, was married 1st to Miss Dunne of Brittas Castle, by whom he had one son, Thomas Bor. He married 2ndly Deborah Mills on 17 August 1722; she died 12 July 1733, aged 25 years; she was the daughter of James Mills of Turnings, Kildare, which place is still in possession of my cousin Mills. Deborah Bor was buried in the cemetery on the Hill of Carbury, co. Kildare, and her tombstone has the following inscription, now almost illegible:—

"Here lyeth the body of Deborh Bor als Mills, daughter to Mr Jams Mills, who departed this life ye 12th July 1733, aged 25 years. This stone was erected by her husband, Mr Humphrey Bor of Clonard."

By Deborah, Humphrey Bor had one daughter named Margaret, born about Nov. 1723. She married 1st Charles Blood, 12 November 1744, of Ladycastle, co. Kildare. They had two children, Deborah, born 9 November 1746, and Edward, born 23 April 1748. Blood died 3 June 1749, and Margaret married again, on 17 Feb. 1749-50, Thomas Bermingham of Kylfylan, King's Co.; by him she had three children, Andrew, born 11 January 1750-51, Edward, and Margaret. Margaret Bor died 10 December 1756.

Humphrey Bor was succeeded by his son Thomas, who married 1st Miss Mills, 2ndly Miss Nugent of Clonlost. By the 1st wife he had one daughter Margaret, who married Mr. Pigott of Capard; by the 2nd wife he had two sons, Christopher and Edward:—

Christopher Bor, married 1st Anna Maria Lee, by whom he had a daughter Harriet, died unmarried. By his 2nd wife, Anne Loftus of Annesbrook (married 1777), he had the following children:—

Humphrey Bor, born 1777 or 1778, died 5 June 1836 (see below); Edward Bor, was in a Highland Regt., died aged 20; Letitia Bor, married, 1814, Mr. William Scott; Martha Bor, married, 1815, Mr. James Hibbert Newton; Jane Bor, married, 1822, Mr. Lockhart Ramage; Eliza Bor, married Mr. Digby.

Edward Bor of Park, Kinnegad, co. Meath, son of Thomas Bor, married 1st, in 1763, Jane Peacock, by whom he had one daughter Jane, married William Francis Reade, and was mother of Edward, Jane, Maria, and Jessica Reade. By his 2nd wife, Miss Purdon, he had three daughters, Charlotte, Mrs. Irvine; Eliza, married Rev. John Digby (she died 1806, and he married secondly Eliza, daughter of Christopher Bor of Ballindolan, her first-cousin; Mr. Digby had several sons, the last of whom, Rev. George Digby, died Rector of Harrogate, s.p.); Louisa, Mrs. Kirkland, who had two daughters, Bessie and Louisa, and a son James, who died unmarried. They married brothers, Delapere Robinson and Thomas Robinson. The former had one daughter, married .... O'Reilly of Rathaldon Castle, and the latter four daughters, Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Alley, Mrs. Homan, and Miss .... Robinson.

Edward Bor's line (male) died out with him as he had no son.

"Park" is about four miles from Ballindolan on the road to Kinnegad. It is a good house situated in a well-timbered estate. Edward Bor's name and a date (I think 1760) is carved on one of the corner stones of the house. It has been in possession of the Handy family as long as I remember, from 1860 to the present time.

Humphrey Bor of Ballindolan, co. Kildare, son of Christopher Bor, married Jane Briscoe of Riverdale, co. Westmeath. He received the estate saddled with a debt of £40,000, the result of the reckless extravagance of his father. This he paid off and left the property to his son Edward clear of the debt. He (Humphrey) built the present house of Ballindolan 1822, in place of the old house, which was situated near Carrick Hill [note by E. J. B.]. He died 5 June 1836, aged 59 years; she died 12 February 1861, aged 61 years. They had issue:—

1. Humphrey, died young.

2. Edward, married Charlotte Hopkins of Freyne Athboy, co. Meath. He died 31 March 1870, aged 52 years; she died 14 February 1894. They had issue: Humphrey, born 4 July 1848, died 9 April 1872; William, born 15 August 1849; Edward, born 23 August 1850, married 1 June 1892 Katherine Morrow; Fetherston, born .... 1851, died 16 September 1875; John, born ...., died 1 November 1872; Frederick, born ...., died 24 November 1867; Robert, born ....; Ralph, born ...., died ....; Lucy; Charlotte, died 30 June 1905; Jane.

3. James Henry, married, 1852, Margaret Frances Browne of Clohamon, co. Wexford, and had issue: Arthur, James Henry, Alfred Edward, Jane Anne (Mrs. F. Rothwell), Louisa Charlotte (Mrs. F. V. C. Philips).

4. Thomas, married Mary Hobbs; he lived at Haristown, near Castlejordan, co. Meath. They had issue: Thomas Humphrey Fitzroy Bor (married 1st Sarah E. Cutler, and has issue Mary Maud Millicent, who married Bertram Gosselin, and has issue Thomas Humphrey; 2ndly, 1911, Mary Elizabeth, widow of Professor Dougan of Belfast); Frederick Fitzwilliam Bor (married Rose Kearney in America, and has issue Frederick, Thomas, Alfred); Archibald, died ....; Edward Norman Cavendish Bor (married Mabel Lloyd Thornton, and has issue Nannie Eveline, born March 1890, Thomas Humphrey, born February 1891, Norman Loftus, born May 1892, Mary Edwina, born December 1895, Ruth Margaret, born January 1896, Beatrice Victoria, born December 1900, Guy Thornton, born November 1903, Fetherston Briscoe, born November 1905); Margaret; Helen, died . . . .; Frances; Charlotte Adelaide (married Edward William Mather, and has issue Frances Helen, Edward William, Thomas Humphry Fitzroy); Josephine.

5. Frederick, graduated B.A., T.C.D. 1844,
6. Arthur, " " " 1845,
7. Lucy,
8. Frances,
} All unmarried.

9. Jane. She was burned to death at Ballindolan when four years old; her clothes caught fire from a candle on the staircase landing.

10, etc., several other children, who all died young. (Total children were 16.)

  - The Trenches, Barons Ashtown.
- Charlotte Uniack. = Barachias Wallis of Drishane. = (Margaret) dau. of the late (deceased 1762) Emanuel Pigott of Chetwynd, co. Cork; married 1763.

Thomas Pigott of Gurteen, Queen's Co. (died 1729), married (Margaret), sister of Humphrey Bor of Clonard, co. Meath.

Michael Parsons of Tomcluffe (great-grandson of Sir William Parsons), son of Mary, daughter of Moyses Hill, married Clotilda, second daughter of Christian Borr of Drynogh, co. Wexford, and died 1700.

George Houghton of Kilthorp, Rutland, and Borrmount, co. Wexford, married secondly, 1711, Euphemia (born 1685, died 26 December 1756), youngest daughter and coheir of Christian Borr of Borrmount, co. Wexford.

Lines by Dean Swift on Mrs. Houghton :—

> "You always are making a God of your spouse,
> But this neither reason nor conscience allows.
> Perhaps you will say, 'Tis a gratitude due,
> And you adore him because he adores you.
> Your argument's weak and so you will find,
> For you by this rule must adore all mankind."

In 1618 a patent was granted to Christian Bor, Gentleman, of Lower Germany, "that they be freed from the yoke of servitude to the German and Irish nation and enjoy all the rights or privileges of English Subjects for a sum of £1 6*s.* 8*d.*" During the reigns of James I. and Charles I. the Bors engaged extensively in commerce with Holland, and Christian Bor, as one of the merchants interested in the Dutch trade, contested the right of the City of Dublin to levy a tax for harbour dues of threepence in the pound on their shipping, which was tried in the Exchequer in 1632, and decided in favour of the Corporation. In the beginning of the last century Jacob Bor attained the rank of Brigadier-General in the British Army, and a branch of the family still resides at Ballindolan, co. Kildare. The name of Bor's Court has been in the present century corrupted into Borris Court. A very large and handsome house which stood on its northern side fell within the last few years, and its ruins are traditionally stated to be those of the residence of the personage from whom the Court received its title. (From Gilbert's "History of the City of Dublin.")

NOTE.—I have an old account book dated 1741 to 1762, and in it there is the following entry: "A genealogy of Humphry Bor's family as follows. His great-grandfather was a banker in London, who had three sons. Thomas his younger son was bread a lawyer & was married to Eltonhead of Eltonhead Hall's in England Dawter. Said Thomas was grandfather to the present Humphry Bor." This would seem to shew that the branch to which we belong must have been in England before Christian Bor married Begnet Cusack in Dublin in 1624.

Pedigree of Herries of Halldykes in the Parish of Dryfesdale, Dumfriesshire.[*]

PART II.

Principal authorities: MS. Pedigree made in 1789, penes Edward Herries, C.B., of St. Julians; Family letters and papers, also at St. Julians.

I. WILLIAM HERRIES of Halldykes (for whom and his ancestry see "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Fourth Series, Vol. IV., p. 304) had issue by his first wife Katherine Henderson:—

1. Sir ROBERT, of whom hereafter (No. II.).
2. Charles (Colonel), ancestor of the family of Herries of St. Julians, Kent, of which the writer hopes to give a pedigree in a later number.
3. WILLIAM, of whom later (No. III.).
4. Katherine,[†] married to . . . . Black (before 1762, according to her uncle Robert Herries's Account Books at St. Julians).
5. Mary, married to . . . . Hill.
6. Elizabeth. The "Scots Magazine" (xlii, 617) thus announces her marriage, 19 November 1780: "At Ypres in Flanders, John Peter Esq: his Britannic Majesty's Consul at Ostend, to Miss Elizabeth Herries, sister to Sir Robert Herries." Peter, who was appointed Consul at Ostend, Neuport, and Bruges, 4 August 1774 ("Annual Reg.," 1774, Promotions), was apparently knighted between 1780 and 1784. Some MS. memoranda (at 53 Warwick Square) of her brother Col. Charles Herries record that in 1784 "Lady Peter" was "delivered of a son who died," and that "Lady Peter died 28 September 1788 at Ostend and was buried at Dover," at St. Mary's Church (it is believed), 6 October 1788.[‡]

[*] Communicated by DAVID C. HERRIES, Esq., 53 Warwick Square, London, S.W.

[†] The MS. Pedigree mentioned above among the "Authorities" gives the names (but not the marriages) of the daughters of the first wife as Katherine, Mary, Elizabeth, and Christina. Robert Herries of Lynmouth (see "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Fourth Series, Vol. IV., p. 305), writing to his cousin Sir W. L. Herries, 3 January 1844, says "the three Daughters of the old Laird, whom I knew, were named Mary, Mrs. Hill, Elizabeth, Lady Peter, and Christina, Mrs. Falls." He goes on to say that the eldest daughter "made a mésalliance" by marrying a Mr. Black, but he believed that all her children were dead.

[‡] The "Gentleman's Magazine" for 1791 (July-Dec., 1060) announces the marriage at Hornsey, Middlesex, 29 September, of "Sir John Peter, his Majesty's consul in the Austrian Netherlands" to "Miss Porker, eldest daughter of John P. esq. of Muswell-hill, banker in London." She is probably the Mary, widow of Sir John Peter, K.M.H., who died 18 June 1846, aged 78, according to a mural tablet in Harbledown Church, near Canterbury.

7. Christina. The "Gentleman's Magazine" for 1781 (p. 242) thus records her marriage on 2 May: "James Falls Esqre of Ostend, to Miss C. Herries, sister of Sir Robert Herries of London." Col. Herries's Memoranda above-mentioned state that "Mrs. Falls died at Alicante in Spain, the 30 April 1791."

William Herries of Halldykes, by his second wife Susanna . . . ., had issue . . . .[*]

8. Robert John Charles (always called John). He died 6 November 1832, and by his will (dated 3 November 1831), in which he is described as late a Lieut.-Colonel in the 96th Foot, he leaves his property to John Charles Herries, Master of the Mint (son of his elder half-brother Charles; he had ceased to be Master of the Mint in 1831), Robert Herries, late banker in St. James's Street (see "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Fourth Series, Vol. IV., p. 305), and Thomas Bonnor of Angel Court, London (who proved the will 27 November 1832, P.C.C., 704, Tenterden), in trust for the use of his wife Mary and her son Robert John Charles Herries until the latter attained majority.[†] If the son died before the age of 21 the property was to go to the wife Mary for life and then to the testator's "reputed daughter" Mrs. Scott.[‡]

Colonel Herries[§] married at Leith in Scotland, 1 November 1831, Mary Clifford (said to have been his servant), by whom he had the above-named son Robert John Charles, who, though born at Cheltenham 14 October 1829, was legitimated according to Scots law by the subsequent marriage of his parents. This son, his mother having married a Mr. Richardson in 1835, was placed under the care of the Court of Chancery, which Court appointed, 14 June 1837, Sir William Herries (younger brother of the above-named John Charles Herries, Master of the Mint) as his guardian. This appointment was again confirmed by the Court, 3 March 1838. R. J. C. Herries died at Southampton 26 June 1903, and was buried in the Cemetery there. He wrote to Sir W. Herries, 21 August 1851, saying that he was about to marry a daughter of

[*] The MS. Pedigree of 1789 gives the names of the children of the second marriage as John, William, and Grizzel (Scots for Grace).

[†] As the will made no provision for what was to happen if the son attained majority, it was decided, 12 November 1853. by the Court of Chancery (after a question had been raised as to his legitimacy) that the son was entitled to two-thirds and the widow to one-third of the property.

[‡] This daughter (whose mother is said to have been a Greek), Isabella Georgina Herries, was married at St. Mary's, Cheltenham, 23 May 1831, to William Scott (see "Lamb of West Denton," Burke's "Landed Gentry," 7th ed.). Being divorced by Mr. Scott (see the "Times," 18 November 1842) she married a Mr. Potter and died in 1860, aged 49. She was buried in Montmartre Cemetery, Paris, 22 September 1860.

[§] The "Gentleman's Magazine" (1832, July-Dec., 647) says that Colonel Herries, "late commanding the 96th Regiment," went to India as a Cadet 1792 and became in the same year an Ensign in the 52nd Foot. He was at the siege of Pondicherry in 1793, and in the expedition against Ceylon in 1796. In 1799 he served as Captain in Holland with the 35th Foot. At the battle of Maida in 1806 he "had the honour to command the left Company of the British line." In 1807 "he was present at the surrender of Alexandria and the siege of Rosetta, and took an active part in the several actions in front of that place, particularly on the night of April 16, when he commanded one of the four companies which crossed the Nile and captured all the guns, camels, and equipage of the enemy." In 1809 he was at the "taking of the two islands of Ischia and Procida," and at the "capture of Zante, Cephalonia, and Ithaca." In September 1813 "he was appointed Lieut.-Colonel Commandant of the 103d [really 102d, later 100th] foot, which he joined at Bermuda, and in July formed part of the expedition against Moose Island in North America." A copy at St. Julians of the inscription on his and his sister's tombstone at Cheltenham (Trinity Churchyard ?) runs thus: "Sacred to the memory of Robert John Charles Herries, who | commanded his Majesty's 96th Regiment. | He departed this life on the 6th of November 1832 | aged 59 years. | Having served his Country | for 35 years in the East and West Indies | Mediterranean and North America. | And of his sister Catherine Jane Grace Herries, | who died 28 April 1840, | aged 69."

Mr. Nathaniel Davis, Treasurer of the Eastern Counties Railway. He had issue a daughter, Kathleen Grace, who was married, 8 January 1874, to Alfred Augustus Langdale (see "Langdale of Compton," Burke's "Landed Gentry," 1900), and two sons, of whom the elder died before him, leaving issue.

9. Christopher William. The family letters and papers shew that he was Collector of Customs at St. Vincent in the West Indies as early as 1812, and that he died there in 1824.
10. Catherine Jane Grace (called Grace); she died at Cheltenham 28 April 1840, and administration of her goods was granted (P.C.C.), 30 May 1840, to her "lawful nephew" the above-named Sir W. Herries.

II. Sir ROBERT HERRIES,* eldest son of William Herries (No. I.), having no prospect of ever succeeding to Halldykes owing to his father's extravagance, entered the business at Rotterdam of his uncle Robert Herries (see "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Fourth Series, Vol. IV., p. 304), and on the retirement of that uncle carried on the concern with another uncle, John Herries (ibid. 303). With this uncle, however, he soon disagreed, and in 1754 with the advice and help of his friends the Hopes, the well-known Scots merchants at Amsterdam, he started a business at Barcelona in Spain. In 1762, though retaining this concern, he withdrew from another at Montpellier and from the house of Honorius Dallio at Valencia, on accepting a proposal to become chief partner in the Coutts' (partly banking and partly general mercantile) houses in Edinburgh and London, founded by John Coutts and carried on by his sons, who had added the London house. Of these sons Patrick was insane, John was dead, and James and Thomas had retired from this business on entering the bank in the Strand now known as Coutts's, founded by a Mr. Campbell, whose niece James Coutts had married. These two brothers wished their former business to be carried on as a provision for Mr. Stephen, who had married a sister of their father, and for Mr. Cochrane, who had married their mother's sister, a daughter of Sir John Stuart of Allanbank, hence their proposal to Herries, who had been a friend of their brother John. Herries was to exercise a general control over the whole business and with Cochrane to manage the London house, while the other partners, Stephen, James Hunter (later Hunter-Blair, created a baronet in 1786), and Sir William Forbes, 6th Bart., of Pitsligo, were to carry on the Edinburgh business. Herries soon quarrelled with the Coutts brothers over Stephen and Cochrane, whom he insisted on pensioning off as incompetent. In 1771 he arranged with Forbes and Hunter that a fourth of the London house should be ceded to his "brothers Charles and William, who after being bred to business in his house at Barcelona and admitted partners there, had come to reside with him in London, and to George Henderson, Mrs. Herries's brother," it being understood that they "were to be relieved of any bad debts that might arise beyond the amount of their profits." ("Memoirs of a Banking House," 27.)

In 1768 Herries invented the system of circular notes of credit for the use of travellers abroad and arranged with Coutts's Bank for their issue, and with the aid of his old friends the Hopes of Amsterdam established agents in the various continental towns for their payment. Becoming dissatisfied with the Couttses he started a bank of his own in St. James's Street, which began business, 1 February 1772, as the "London Exchange Banking Company," and continued under various titles ("Herries's," "Herries and Farquhar's," etc.) till its amalgamation with Lloyd's Bank in 1893. This last firm carried on a branch of its business in the St. James's Street house till 1910, and is now (1911) rebuilding it. The original partners, according to Forbes, were Herries, his uncle Robert Herries, his two brothers and his brother-in-law above named, Forbes and Hunter, William Johnstone-Pulteney (a friend of Herries, who succeeded his brother Sir James Johnstone of Westerhall in the family title in 1794), and Sir William Maxwell, 3rd Bart., of Springkell. The opening of this bank occasioned fresh quarrels with the Couttses, who believed that some of their clients were leaving them for the newer and more fashionably situated establishment. In 1775, owing to various differences, Forbes and Hunter and Herries agreed to divide the old Coutts business, the two former taking the Edinburgh and the latter the London house. Forbes and Hunter withdrew at the same time from the St. James's Street bank, and Forbes's "Memoirs" cease to be a guide to Herries's life.

* The dates and details of Sir Robert's business career are taken from his partner Sir William Forbes's "Memoirs of a Banking House." Forbes wrongly calls Sir Robert's father John instead of William "Herries of Halldykes," and his younger uncle and partner at Rotterdam Charles instead of John.

Herries was knighted, 23 February 1774, and sat in Parliament for the Dumfries Burghs from 1780 till 1784. He spent his last years at Cheltenham, where he died, 25 February 1815, "aged 85" ("Gentleman's Magazine," 1815, Jan.-June, 282), leaving no legitimate issue. In his will, dated 14 April 1803, with five codicils (proved 15 April 1815, P.C.C., 188, Pakenham), he names as executor his wife Catherine, or in the case of her death her brother Captain Edward James Foote, R.N.,* jointly with "my own Brother Charles Herries, Colonel of the Light Horse Volunteers of London and Westminster," or in the case of his death, "his eldest son John Charles Herries, one of the Clerks of the Treasury." He mentions having sold the "superiority of Ecclefechan" and other Dumfriesshire property. He had also an estate called Greskin in that county inherited from a kinsman, Michael Herries of Spottes (see "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Fourth Series, Vol. IV., p. 276). His successor in this last estate was his above-named nephew John Charles Herries.

Sir Robert Herries married first his cousin Grace, daughter of John Henderson of Broadholme, Dumfriesshire, by Grace, daughter of Sir Patrick Maxwell, 1st Bart., of Springkell. Her only brother George Henderson has been mentioned already as a partner of Sir Robert. She died, according to a mourning ring, 10 January 1773, aged 36. The "Gentleman's Magazine" (vols. xlvii, 403; lxxviii, 89) thus announces Sir Robert's second marriage (12 August 1777) and the death of his second wife (4 January 1808): "Sir Rob. Herries, banker, in London,—to Mrs. Ross, of Charlton-place, near Canterbury [her father's country house]. Immediately after the ceremony, they set out for Dover in their way to Spa"; "At Cheltenham, Catherine, lady of Sir Robert Herries, bart. [sic], daughter of the Rev. Francis Hender Foote, [Rector] of Boughton-Malherb, by a sister of the late Sir Horatio Mann, bart. envoy at Florence. She bore a long illness with the utmost patience and resignation; and all who knew her and her many virtues will long lament her."†

* Captain (afterwards Admiral Sir Edward) Foote married at the house of the British Minister at Madrid, 22 January ("Gentleman's Magazine," 1793, Jan.-June, 184), and again at St. James's, Westminster, 13 May 1793, Nina Herries, described by Sir Robert Herries in his will as his "natural daughter by Martha Scott," and as Foote's wife, and by her (she died according to family letters 7 April 1835) had issue Francis, who married a Miss Hubbell and died 2 September 1843 (ibid. 1844, Jan.-June, 222); Catherine, who died unmarried; and Caroline, who was married 28 October 1833 (ibid. 1833, July-Dec., 462) to Charles Badham (see his life in "Dict. Nat. Biog."). On his petition Captain Foote's marriage with Nina Herries was dissolved by an Act of Parliament, which received the Royal assent 7 July 1803 ("Lords Journal," xliv, 230-233. 246-7, 319). He died 23 May 1833, leaving issue by a second marriage (see his life in "Dict. Nat. Biog.").

† Lady Herries died in her 55th year according to a copy (at St. Julians) of her monumental inscription at Cheltenham, where she and Sir Robert were buried (St. Mary's Churchyard ?). Her first husband was "Colonel Ross" (see "Foote of Charlton Place," Burke's "Hist. of the Commoners," 1833, i., 372). Like her uncle Sir Horace Mann, she was a friend of Horace Walpole, who in a letter of 17 September 1793 reminds the friends of his old age the Miss Berrys that he had first met them at Lady Herries's. She is mentioned as a "Blue-stocking" hostess in the Life of Miss Hannah More (by Wm. Roberts, 2nd ed.) and in the Diaries of Fanny Burney, who tells in 1792 of the "famous M. Lally Tolendahl" reading a "French tragedy upon an English subject, written by himself! The subject was the death of Strafford. He read it to a large but chosen company at Lady Herries's." ("Diary of Madame D'Arblay," ed. Austin Dobson, v. 66.)

III. William Herries was born at Halldykes 4 September 1748, according to the matriculation of his arms in the Lyon Register in 1789 (see "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Fourth Series, Vol. IV., p. 301), where he is described as of Brussels, and as brother of Sir Robert and as third son of William Herries of Halldykes by Katherine, daughter of John Henderson of Broadholme. After being, as already mentioned, in his brother Robert's Spanish and London businesses he became a banker at Ostend in 1782, and at Brussels in 1783 ("La Banque d'Ostende et de Bruxelles devoilée," a pamphlet printed at Liège in 1784). His letters from America to his elder brother Colonel Charles Herries, and a correspondence in 1816-17 (all at St. Julians) between his French widow and the same brother shew that later he became a banker at Paris and that he emigrated with his family to Louisiana in 1804, where he died at Bâton Rouge in November 1811. Though Sir William Forbes praises his business capacities ("Memoirs of a Banking House," 27), he does not seem to have prospered.

He married first "at Woodhouselee near Edinburgh," 3 September 1776 ("Scots Magazine," xxxviii, 509), Isabella Magdalen, daughter of Alexander Ker of Blackshiells, Haddingtonshire. Her maternal aunt Ann Craig was wife of William Tytler of Woodhouselee, the historian. Mrs. Herries was born 26 December 1755 according to a pedigree of her family in the "Herald and Genealogist" (viii, 241-5), and died in 1836 according to Mr. G. C. Williamson's "Andrew and Nathaniel Plimer" (where a reproduction of a miniature of her by Andrew Plimer is given). From her William Herries obtained a divorce in France, the validity of which was never confirmed by any British Court, and married a French woman probably about 1790, for in the correspondence above mentioned she tells Col. Charles Herries (8 October 1816) that she had devoted herself "plus de vingt ans au bonheur de votre frère," having married him against her will from fear of the violence of his passion, renouncing in his favour "un établissement brillant." At this time (1816-17) she was in Paris trying to wind up her husband's former business, and she consulted Colonel Herries as to the possibility of recovering from Admiral Sir Sidney Smith money borrowed to aid his escape from the Temple at Paris in 1798 from her husband's bank by his clerk Mr. Keith, who had accompanied Smith as his secretary and had been drowned in the Nile. (Keith is mentioned as Smith's secretary at Acre in 1799 in Barrow's "Life of Sir W. Sidney Smith," i, 301-2, 372, 392.) Herries was arrested on suspicion of being privy to the escape, but was released after a fortnight in the Abbaye owing to the influence of powerful friends. By the French lady he had issue :—

1. Edward, who died in Louisiana "victime du climat à l'age de vingt-un ans" (correspondence above mentioned), probably in 1814, for in Col. W. H. Powell's "List of Officers of the Army of the United States" (p. 137) an Edward Herries appears, 11 March 1814, as 3rd Lieutenant in the 44th Louisiana Regiment of Infantry, after which there is no further mention of him.
2. Francis, whom his mother was proposing to rejoin in Louisiana in 1817 when she had settled her affairs in Paris.

The Hortons of Howroyde, and some allied Families. In Three Parts. Compiled and Edited by the Rev. EDWARD F. LINTON, M.A. Oxon, Edmondsham Rectory, Salisbury.

THIS is a carefully printed Work in small 4to, giving the history of the three families of Horton, Linton, and Richardson, of Yorkshire. Of the first-named family, Thomas Horton of Chadderton was descended through his mother, Mary Gregge, from Joan of Acre, daughter of Edward I., and this line has been made use of and perfected in most branches down to the present time. A good view of Howroyde House, Yorkshire, and portraits of Joshua Horton, died 1708; Thomas Horton, Governor of the Isle of Man in 1757; Joshua Horton of 1720—1793; Charlotte Horton, his daughter, who married the Rev. W. Richardson; Thomas Horton of 1766—1829; and Rev. Joshua Horton of 1790—1845, illustrate this Part I., which also gives the families of each. The royal line is given on pp. 11 and 24, from the Normans and Saxons.

Part II. gives the Lintons of Freiston and Stirtloe, and this is illustrated by portraits of Thomas Middleton Trollope, son of Sir Thomas Trollope, and his wife Isabella Thorold. He was of an old Lincolnshire family, his predecessor being the Sheriff of Lincoln in 1052, and the twelfth Baronet being Sir John Henry Powell, born 1842. There is given also the portraits of Rev. John Linton, Vicar of Freiston in 1773—1782, with a full pedigree of six sons and three daughters; his son John Linton of Freiston Priory, born 1751—1834; Colonel James Linton and Mrs. Beauford; the Rev. Henry Linton, Hon. Canon of Christ Church, Oxford; Mrs. Swan, and the Rev. James Linton of Hemingford Abbotts, 1799—1872.

Part III. commences with the portraits of the Rev. William Richardson, Vicar of St. Michael-le-Belfry, and the Rev. William Richardson, Vicar of Ferry Fryston, son of Mr. John Richardson of Beckmill. The early history of the family and their connection with St. Bees are well brought out in the Registers of the Parish Church, which extend from 1661 to the eighteenth century, shewing that four families of the Richardsons were baptizing and burying their dead in St. Bees Parish Church at the end of the seventeenth century. There is a full account of the Descendants of William Richardson given from 1691 to the date of the children of the Rev. James Richardson, Vicar-General, York Cathedral, who died in 1850, leaving five sons and three daughters.

Altogether the Work is very painstaking, and redounds much to the Rev. Compiler, who has spared no trouble in giving full particulars of the family of the Hortons of Howroyde, and to whom the connections of the three branches of the Hortons, Lintons, and Richardsons owe a debt of gratitude for his literary searches. The book besides is well printed and got up, and makes a pleasing addition to one's library. Parts I. and II. are 10*s.* 6*d.* each; Part III., 6*s.* The whole Work is 14*s.* 6*d.*, in cloth, and copies may be obtained from Mrs. Munby, Highfield, Hitchin.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. XIX., No. 4. October 1911. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THE Randolph Manuscript is still continued from previous Parts, and it here commences with Instructions to Governor Lord Howard given him in February 1688, previous to obtaining leave to go to England for his health. The King announces in future that no Governor is to leave the places of their respective government without leave under His Majesty's Manual and Signet. The instructions given are various and of some length. The next article is "Virginia in 1669-70," and the documents given are in the spelling of the period, and strong complaints are made of the "Newgate Birds" being sent out in such numbers to Virginia, many being actual criminals, and but few belonging to the servant class. "Minutes of Council in 1622-24" are continued; likewise the "Revolutionary Army Orders issued in 1778-1779," both in the phraseology of the period. The next Paper is "Virginia Gleanings in England," communicated by A. Lathrop Withington of London, which gives some particulars of persons dying and making their wills in Virginia between 1650 and 1750. "Virginia's Soldiers in the Revolution" gives an account of the origin of the Continental Army in 1775, but the numbers were small, in ten Virginia regiments the men only mustering 2142. "Notes and Queries" give particulars of the Poythress family, also of the Farrars and Throckmortons, and in genealogy the Brent family is still continued, and portraits are given of Daniel Brent, Consul at Paris, and Colonel William Brent, Clerk of the Courts at Washington. There is an account of a young man, known as James Ord, who was brought by a supposed uncle to the family of John Brent at Norfolk, and who was believed by many to have been the son of the Prince of Wales, afterwards George IV., by his morganatic wife Mrs. Maria Fitzherbert. Archbishop Carroll, who was consecrated in the chapel of Lulworth Castle, the home of the Welds, the family of Mrs. Fitzherbert's first husband, and was formerly the tutor in England of the young Lord Stourton, the uncle of Mrs. Fitzherbert, brought the boy to Mr. John Brent, and he denied that there was any issue by her marriage with the Prince. The Brooke family, the Chiles, and the Poindexter genealogies are still continued, and Reviews terminate an interesting Part which, with a General Index, concludes Vol. XIX.

Just published, in crown 8vo, 268 pp., price 5*s.* in cloth. (Only 100 copies printed.)

The Nottingham Graveyard Guide, Historical, Descriptive, and Genealogical, with Appendices on the Churchyards of Greasley and Flawford. By A. STAPLETON. Nottingham: Messrs. Bell, Carlton Street. 1911.

THE contents of this little Work were originally contributed to the Nottingham Daily Express, under the pseudonym of "The Churchyard Scribe." It begins with an account of the Baptist Burial Ground, giving the "Pictured Monuments," Epitaphs, and Rhymes, and the Monumental Statistics. These are followed by an account of old St. Peter's Churchyard, which dates from 1751, and some epitaphs are quoted from "grave to gay." "An Historic Foundation" is the history of the Congregational Burial Ground, and certain deeds in the possession of Mr. Clements, of Nottingham, are given, amongst which a Mr. Perkins is given as Minister in 1643, and he afterwards became Captain of a troop of horse in the Commonwealth service. Another notable name was that of Morley, of the firm of Chambers, Wilson, and Morley, the well-known house of I. and R. Morley, the largest hosiery establishment in England. We have not space to particularize the other Chapels and Churches in Nottingham, but the reader of the book will be well rewarded by going through all the details of the various other Chapels, such as the Methodists, the Jews, and the Quakers' Burial Grounds, and the Churchyards of Greasley and Flawford. The book is indeed one which ought to be well supported by readers in Nottingham, to whom the Author has been the historian.

Archives Heraldiques Suisses. XXV., 3. Schulthess & Co., Zurich, 1911.

THIS Part is even to surpass the last. It gives the Arms of Humbert of Savoy, besides three other illustrations, and it shews six seals with dates from 1378 to 1803. The Arms of Geneva under the Empire are next shewn, and then those of the Family of Mirmand. The Part is further illustrated by an illuminated plate of Arms of 1512, and another dated 1652, besides five tabular pedigrees arranged as separate folding sheets. No. I. giving the line of Konrad von Staufen dated 1160, and No. V. running up to 1850. The Part will be much esteemed by its Swiss and French readers in England.

The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Vol. XLII., No. 4, for October 1911. New York Genealogical Society, 226 West 58th Street, New York, U.S.A.

THIS is an ample part of 200 pp., containing the Title and a full Index of Names for the Volume. It begins with a Paper on the earliest Cuylers in Holland and America by Mrs. Maud Churchill Nicoll, nicely illustrated with a plate of the arms, in colours, of the family, and with a seal and facsimiles in writing of a document dated 1512. also of an Act dated February 1387, and a record of Hendrick Cuyler's baptism dated August 1637. There is also given leaves of the will of Anna Cuyler, 1702, and that of Henry Cuyler, 1763. A separate plate gives the portrait of Richard Randolph Cuyler, living between 1796 and 1865, and another plate shews the interior of the Church of Hassell, Holland. The Authoress has spared no pains in her researches from 1456, and gives her own marriage to Mr. De Lancey Nicoll in 1890.

The "Records of Baptisms of the Reformed Church at Machackemeck" is a lengthy Paper of 16 pp., and is followed by the genealogy of the Thacher-Thatcher family, and a long account of the Descendants of Edward Tredwell is next given. With a continued Paper on "Registration of Pedigrees" and Book Notices the Part ends.
